Another East-West Road Planned

No one is willing to say when, but eventually Virginia Beach will have a new major thoroughfare, probably a four-lane undivided highway paralleling Virginia Beach Blvd., and extending from the oceanfront to Independence Blvd.

While in some places entirely new roads must be built to complete the highway, in others, existing roads will be widened and upgraded. The finished road will provide another east-west artery, this one south of the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway and Virginia Beach Blvd.

A third artery, probably to be known as Old Donation Blvd., stretching from Independence Blvd. to Laskin Road, north of Virginia Beach Blvd., has also been discussed and planned for several years, but no actual plans have been made for that road either.

South of the Expressway the road will begin at Norfolk Avenue and the Oceanfront and follow the existing street to its end at the railroad terminal in Virginia Beach Borough. Plans now call for the road to parallel the tracks westward, employing part of existing Southern Blvd., crossing the northernmost edge of NAS Oceana and running into existing Potter's Road.

All of Potter's Road will be utilized, except at the bridge across the creek near the Expressway. There the dangerous curve and old bridge will give way to a more southerly course across a new bridge. It will run back into Lynnhaven Road near the spot where Potter's Road now meets Lynnhaven Road, but will then curve to parallel closely the toll road westward into Princess Anne Plaza. This new part of the road will come into Continental Street just north of Lynnhaven Elementary School.

The path of the new road will then follow Continental Street to Plaza Trail, then cut through an area where a few houses now stand into Chester Street, Chester Street will be followed to Rosemont Road. From that point to the land fill area where the future amphitheater will rise, a new road will generally parallel the toll road. The path of the existing road from the land fill to Independence Blvd. will complete the thoroughfare.

City sources are only willing to say that the plans for the completed stretch are long-range, but at least one portion will probably be finished within the next five years. The section from one thousand feet east of Potter's Bridge to Rosemont Road already has engineering study money available. In addition money was approved in the last bond issue for the engineering study of South Lynnhaven Road from the toll road to another bad curve and bridge over Cox's Creek at the roller rink.

The engineering will be contracted in three phases, according to Public Works Director Charles Kiley, and is expected to cost about $20,000. The first phase will include studies on both sides of the bridge on Potter's Road; the second, Lynnhaven Road, and the third from Lynnhaven Road to Rosemont Road paralleling the Expressway.

W. M. Holloman, City Engineer, said the engineering studies will probably be completed in the next year or so, but added he could not estimate when the roads would be built. He and Kiley both indicated they are hoping to get money appropriated for this new part of the thoroughfare in City Manager Roger Scott's proposed five-year capital improvements budget, now under study.

All indications are that construction will start within the next five to six years and may even be finished by that time. Kiley appeared before an informal meeting of City Council recently to discuss the immediate engineering projects surrounding the straightening out of Potter's Road at the bridge, which he said has top priority.

A number of people have been killed on the bridge in automobile accidents in recent years, and scores of others have been injured. The curve and narrow bridge are considered two of the worst road hazards in the city.

Children To Attend New School

Approximately 780 displaced students from the burned Kings Grant Elementary School boarded school buses somewhat earlier than usual today, Thursday, for their ride to Windsor Oaks School.

Windsor Oaks is the school under construction just off Rosemont Road on Van Buren Drive. The students will attend classes there until Kings Grant is repaired. At present Windsor Oaks has 28 classrooms available but no cafeteria, office or gymnasium. All students will attend a full day rather than split shifts as was first suggested.

Kings Grant School burned on the morning of Dec. 17 after a fire broke out in the office and spread through the ventilating system and insulation. There was 50 to 60 percent damage to the school from fire, smoke, heat and water. All ceilings will have to be replaced along with electrical wiring.

School Supt. E. E. Brickell said of split shifts, "it was rejected as not being consistent with the philosophy of the School Board or with the wishes of our people; the step we are taking will insure a full day's school for every Virginia Beach boy and girl."

Windsor Oaks was due to be opened in January to children in the Windsor Oaks area. These students are presently attending Pembroke Meadows and Point O' View schools and will now continue to do so. Brickell said he felt this was better than transferring them to another unfinished school, Pembroke Meadows and Point O' View were still under construction when school opened in the fall.

One Suit Decided In Pembroke's Favor

Portsmouth Circuit Court Judge Henry W. MacKenzie has made a decision against Mrs. Gwenlyn M. Wood in her claim of title to strips of land in the Pembroke area.

Mrs. Wood had filed tensuits in October of 1967, asking damages of $110,000 and judgments of ejectment against 22 defendants in the case. The suits were based on interests Mrs. Wood had acquired in April of 1967.

The property in question was originally intended to be streets of a proposed residential development to be known as Sunny Brook. The original plat for Sunny Brook carried a reservation clause stating that the property would revert to the owner if the streets were not developed.

The developers, Sunny Brook, Inc., folded in 1965 and most of the subdivision lots were sold for delinquent taxes. In 1934 David Morgan and T. E. Pugh acquired the unsold Sunny Brook property. Mrs. Wood obtained the interests of Morgan and Pugh from their heirs in April 1967. Because the streets were closed, Mrs. Wood claimed that the property reverted to Sunny Brook, Inc. and therefore belongs to her.

The question of title has delayed construction of Pembroke East Shopping Center, which will include a Thalheimer and Woolco Department Store as well as several small specialty shops.

1969 Resolutions Are Varied

The following prominent Virginia Beach residents were contacted and asked about their 1969 resolutions or thoughts for the new year.

Mayor Frank Dusch: "My only thinking is to keep well. That's the main thing now. There are so many things starting us in the face in the coming year that I feel will have a real impact on us."

Ivan Mapp, Commissioner of Revenue: "I don't make them because I can't keep them. I gave them up a long time ago." Mrs. Lucille Clark, 1968 First Citizen: "I guess there couldn't be any better one than just to live the golden rule. If we do that, we'll have a good year."

Judge Philip Russo, of Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court: "There are so many people who just have lost faith in the youth of today. I have not. I think, by and large, we have a really good youth group, and I feel that our country has nothing to fear as far as youth is concerned. They are going to grow up into a group of outstanding citizens and lead our

Council Expected to Cut Another 'Unwieldy' Board

In keeping with the policy to pare down boards and commissions considered to be unwieldy, the city's Advertising Board will lose seven of its members with final passage of an ordinance at City Council's next regular meeting on Jan. 13. Council has already passed the ordinance on first reading at its last regular meeting which cuts the ad board from 17 to 9 members. At the same time residence requirements were removed and staggered terms set up.

In the past members of the board, which handles and places the city's $135,000 advertising budget each year, had to live in specific boroughs of the city, and appointees were chosen to represent those boroughs. The new, smaller board has no restrictions on residency. In the past all members were appointed for one year. The new board will have one, two and three-year terms for members.

All current appointments have expired. They ran out on Dec. 31, 1968, and Council is expected to consider new appointments at its informal meeting Monday and at the regular meeting the following week. No informal meeting was held last Monday, the first week Council had not met either in informal or formal session in some months. City Manager Roger Scott, said he did not expect the same type of controversy to arise over the paring down of the ad board as arose over the cutting of the membership of the City Planning Commission. He said there should be no problem since all terms have expired anyway.

The controversy over the planning commission cut may still be tested in court, according to reliable sources, who say Council does not have the right to disestablish the commission in mid-term and appoint a new one at will. The nine members of the new ad board will include the president of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce and the current president of the Virginia Beach Innkeepers Association, as did the old 17-man board. John McCombs, City Councilman, has served as chairman of the board in 1968. At the same regular meeting Council will also consider 33 new zoning items and two major apartment projects that were deferred from the last zoning meeting in December.

A total of 1,562 townhouses and apartments will be considered, and school sites and overcrowding of schools are sure to play a key role in any Council action.

The planning commission has recommended approval of 161 units for the Lake Edward Corporation at Baker and Newtown Roads, 124 units for Banks Enterprises in the same area, 264 more of Beach Associates at Kellam Road and the Norfolk & Southern Railroad and 250 for Lincoln Enterprises, Inc., at Shore Drive and Diamond Springs Blvd., for a total of 799.

The application of Marcus Weinstein for 427 units on Laskin Road across from Victor Road was deferred pending discussion with school officials after objection arose from the office of School Supt. E. E. Brickell over crowded conditions that would be created by this and another previously approved project.

The application of Kerman Realty Co. and Selma Enterprises for 336 apartments and townhouses near Union Kempsville High School was delayed at the request of the applicant after denial was recommended by the planning commission.

Another deferred item which will probably be passed is the master zoning of 21st and 22nd

Streets from the toll road to Pacific Avenue. While most approved generally last month, a few were unhappy about the lack of gas station sites.

Two new motel use permits will also be discussed by Council. An application for the Sandpiper Motor Apts., Inc. to build 14 new units may run into trouble because of necessary parking space after Council refused to close a paper street nearby last month.

Also John S. Waller is seeking a zoning change and use permit for 20 motel units at 21st Street and Baltic Avenue.

Another master zoning plan for Virginia Beach Blvd. from Birdneck Road to the intersection of Laskin Road, left out of the last master zoning of the Blvd. for more study, is scheduled for public hearing and approval.

Clerk of Circuit Court John V. Fentress administers oath of office to new police chief W. W. Davis, as City Manager Roger M. Scott looks on.

Planning Docket Is Short

An abbreviated City Planning Commission of nine members will conduct its first public hearing on Jan. 14 at 2 p.m. with an abbreviated agenda. There are only 13 items scheduled for hearing on this date.

Among the items is a change of zoning applied for by Orene Brown. This change of zoning is from Residence Duplex District 2 and Multiple Family Residence District 2 to Limited Commercial District 2. This is for property located north of Virginia Beach Blvd. and east of Maxey Drive in the Maxey Manor area.

Scheduled for hearing also is the application of Green Run Corporation for a Use Permit to construct 247 townhouses on the west side of Holland Road and the south side of South Lynnhaven Road Extended. This is part of the planned unit project being developed by Green Run Corporation.

The City Planning Commission, which was recently reduced from 15 members to nine, will presumably elect a new chairman.

1st Changes Made by Davis

Col. W. W. Davis has assumed duties as Virginia Beach Chief of Police as of Jan. 1, and has outlined specific moves designed to enlarge and streamline the staff which will work closely with him in administration of the department.

Chief Davis has created a new departmental position of "Inspections Aide" to assist in improving and establishing new policies and procedures. Davis indicates he has filled this office with Lt. Charles H. Payne, presently enrolled in the Northwestern Traffic Institute, at Chicago, Ill. He is major in Police Management and is scheduled for graduation in June.

Another position affected in Chief Davis' reorganizational moves is that of Training Officer, to be classified as a "Training and Personnel Aide" position. This position was previously held by Capt. Harry C. Terry. Chief Davis has named an officer who recently graduated from the Southern Police Institute in Louisville, Ky. This officer is Lt. Claude W. Simmons, who is presently assigned to the police department Detective Bureau.

One other important administrative position in his reorganization of the department by Chief Davis is that of Executive Officer. This position will be reclassified as "Executive Aide", and according to Chief Davis will be filled by a sworn member of the department but of less rank. This office was previously held by Capt. Garnett C. Riley.

To aid in the financial operation of the department, Chief Davis has created a new staff position of "Administrative Aide", which he indicates will be filled by a civilian who is well qualified in fiscal matters of purchasing and disbursing, as well as in property control.

Other changes expected include who may be selected to assume Col. Davis' former position of "Captain in charge of the Detective Bureau, as well as to whom may be chosen to fill the vacancies created in the promotions of Lt.'s Payne and Simmons.

Chief Davis indicates he will also continue, and possibly enlarge a program which he played a major role in placing into operation within the department, namely the placing of civilians in certain positions to enable the release of sworn personnel for patrol duties.

To further streamline the police department's overall operation, Chief Davis has made considerable revision of the department's "Rules, Regulations and Duties Manual" thus delegating specific duties to each staff position fully outlining the responsibility and authority of each supervisory position.

Still unanswered are what new methods of operation Chief Davis may institute within the department, and what new steps he may take in the way of continued modernization of the department.

Sen. Spong Cuts Ribbon For Bank

J. Burton Harrison, Jr., President, People's Bank of Virginia Beach, has announced United States Sen. William B. Spong, Jr., will cut the ribbon for the official opening of People's Bank, 1605 Laskin Rd., at 10 a.m. today, Thursday. Harrison stated the public is invited to opening ceremonies and to tour the bank's facilities following the official ceremony. People's Bank is a local bank. The stock was sold to a large number of Virginia Beach and Tidewater businessmen and women.

Following the ribbon cutting ceremony, Sen. Spong will make brief comments and hold a press conference. This will be the Senator's last press conference before the Democratic Caucus on Jan. 3.

Column Begins

A new column begins this week in the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN. L. Charles Burlage's THE GREAT AMERICAN DREAM will appear weekly on p. 4.

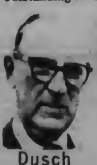

The column initially deals with a brief history of America and the events which have brought the country to its present condition. Future columns will deal with current events of all types.

Two Named Suspects

Two men have been named as suspects in the Dec. 13 robbery of the Samuel Snowden's at their Winston Avenue home. The accused were identified as Carvel Eugene Benson and Robert James Pitts, authorities said. Benson, 33, was arrested at his Sewells Point Road, Norfolk, home, while Pitts, 54, was taken into custody in Charlotte, N. C. Benson is scheduled to appear in Virginia Beach Municipal Court on Jan. 10, Pitts is scheduled to appear before Charlotte officials this Friday on a hearing to extradite him to Virginia Beach to face the charges. Both men are free on bond.

Police quote the Snowden's with saying they were robbed of $3,000 in cash and $2,000 in personal possessions by three men who entered their home, threatened them with a shotgun, bound them with an electrical cord and left them in an upstairs bedroom as the men fled. A search continues for a third suspect.

Marijuana Found

William Francis Miller, 19 year old Philadelphia, Pa. resident, is facing charges of possession of marijuana in Virginia Beach Municipal Court. According to police officials Miller was arrested Saturday afternoon on a vagrancy charge. During a routine search of Miller at Second Police Precinct police said a package of marijuana was found in one of Miller's pockets. Court proceedings against Miller were continued until Jan. 13.

Four Bound Over

Four Norfolk residents have been bound over to a Virginia Beach grand jury on charges of theft of merchandise from the Florida Wig Outlet. They are Victoria Wheeler, 32, of Reservoir Avenue; Barbara Beverly, 22, of Nicholson Street; James Williams, 28, of Hough Street; and John Hicks, 37, of Mahone Avenue. Police said the four were charged with theft of 15 wigs valued at $166.50, from the Aragona Shopping Center shop on Dec. 4. Newport News police said the Beverly and Wheeler women were sought for escaping from jail in that city on Nov. 30, and that they were also accused of attempted murder following an alleged attack on a jail matron at the time of their escape.

Men Rescued from Island

The Coast Guard rescued five Virginia Beach men from Watts Island in Tangier Sound Sunday morning after the group spent Saturday night stranded on the island in gale force winds and temperatures which dipped to 36 degrees. The men were Ronald Whitehead, 26, of Yaqui Street; Ed Barry, 26, of Vanderbilt Avenue; Benjamin Powell, 27, of Oak Lynn Path; William Powell, 25, of Urban Court; and Allen Brantley, 20, of Red Tide Road. They said they went to the island Saturday on a duck hunting trip and became stranded when they were unable to start the motor on their outboard boat. The men said they constructed a lean-to by attaching their rain gear to trees from protection from the wind and ate two black ducks they had shot. The men were rescued after a fire they had built on the island was spotted from a small boat passing the region early Sunday morning.

Navy Lt. Edwin L. Schippel, son of Mrs. Doris J. Schippel of Declaration Road and Navy Cmdr. Robert R. King Jr., son of Mrs. Robert R. King of Cardinal Road, have returned to Norfolk after completing an around the world cruise aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS America.

Maj. Harry A. Ling, right, newly assigned as commanding officer Headquarters Company, Headquarters and Service Battalion, Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic, accepts the commander's chair from departing commanding officer Lt. Col. William H. Davis. Colonel Davis, who resides at Pajute Dr. in Virginia Beach, will assume duties as H & S Battalion Executive Officer.

Bid Opening Is Monday

Bids will be opened on the city's new golf course at 2 p.m. Monday, Jan. 6, at City Manager Roger M. Scott's office. The bids were advertised before Christmas.

City Council authorized the advertising of the bids and the hiring of a greenskeeper for the new 18-hole course at its last regular meeting. The greenskeeper is expected to be progressed on the municipal course.

The course will be built on land deeded to the City by the State. It was previously a part of Camp Pendleton and adjoins the city-owned and operated Redwing Park.

Sciortino Reinstated Suspended

City Manager Roger M. Scott has agreed with the recommendation made by the Personnel Appeal Board on its first personnel matter, and has reinstated police officer James Joseph Sciortino.

Final authority on the Board's decision was given to the City Manager when the Board was set up by the City Council. The Board's recommendation overruled Moore's action.

Sciortino, 24, was fired by Chief James E. Moore on Nov. 27 for conduct unbecoming an officer. Sciortino then requested a closed hearing before the Board.

The Board recommended that Sciortino be reinstated, but suspended from Dec. 1 through Jan. 31, 1969 without pay.

Partners Added To Law Firm

The law partnership of Owen and Guy expanded as of Jan. 1 and is now known as Owen, Guy, Rhodes and Betz.

The original firm, comprised of Austin E. Owen and Richard D. Guy, has been joined by Donald H. Rhodes and Thomas F. Betz Jr. The new partnership will remain in offices located in the Beacon Building across from Pembroke Mall.

Glue Sniffing Leads to Death

A 17-year-old youth's death has become the first fatality in the city of Virginia Beach attributed to glue sniffing. The youth was identified by police as Leslie Carl McGrady of Rogers Street, Chesapeake.

Police said McGrady, along with five other juveniles all 16 and 17 years of age, were gathered at the "Cue & Cushion", family recreation center in Princess Anne Plaza, when the group decided to go for a ride in one of the youth's auto.

One of the boys is quoted by investigators as saying the group purchased several tubes of glue from three 7-Eleven Stores and one Three Giant and began riding through the Windsor Woods and Malibu sections.

Investigators indicated that McGrady engaged in "glue sniffing" by placing the tubes of glue in paper bags during this ride.

According to McGrady's companions, he suddenly became ill and grasping his chest said something to the effect that he thought his heart was stopping, then lapsed into unconsciousness. The group said they tried to revive McGrady and continued riding for another 10 to 15 minutes. When McGrady failed to respond to their efforts, the group, according to police, stopped at the Remus Lane home of Connie Ruth Snow for assistance.

Members of the Princess Anne Plaza Rescue Squad were summoned to the home and rushed McGrady to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. Investigators said that efforts to revive McGrady at the hospital also proved to be no avail. An investigation into the cause of McGrady's death from the State Medical Examiner's office in Norfolk was requested by Virginia Beach police officials. These officials said the Medical Examiner's report indicated McGrady died as the result of accidental strangulation while attempting to vomit during an illness attributed to sniffing of glue.

Police at last reports were continuing their investigation of the incident, and said that no charges had been placed thus far in connection with the case.

Building Misses Record

Even a last minute surge of building permits on Dec. 31 did not make 1968 the record construction year in Virginia Beach. The year 1965 still holds the record.

In that year the city issued permits valued at $63,522,332. In 1968 the last day helped the total come very near that total figure, but the unofficial final tally was more than $63,248,961 or about $250,000 short of the record.

All during last year building permits were issued at such a rapid pace that the value was running far ahead of 1965. Until November it looked like 1968 would set a new record that would be hard to top. Then an extremely low total in November ruined the predictions.

December was a good month, but just not good enough. The December total was more than $6 million. Of that, about $1.5 million was for residential construction. That brought the 1968 residential total to nearly $42 million, or about 65 per cent of the total.

On Dec. 31, the building and inspections division issued about $1,500,000 in permits. Of that more than $1,340,000 was for two motels. The new Holiday Inn permit is valued at about $490,000 and the new Windjammer permit is valued at about $850,000.

A number of apartment and townhouse developments are still pending and should be issued permits shortly, according to Robert Lohr, of the inspections division.

He said a number of other motels and housing developments had been expected to be issued permits before the end of the year, but tight money or other delays kept the city just shy of the record.

In addition, the Green Run Planned Unit Development permits are expected to be forthcoming shortly.

Lohr had been predicting a record all year long, and said he was really disappointed that 1968 did not bring a new high.

"But we couldn't have come much closer in our predicting," he laughed.

And the outlook for 1969 is bright. The new record just may come then.

Ad Club To Feature Topographer

Howard N. King of Harris Intertype Corporation will speak on "Atmosphere in Advertising" at the Jan. 28 dinner meeting of the Advertising Club of Tidewater Virginia to be held at the Admiralty Motor Hotel on Military Highway.

King is considered a typographical expert, a book designer and author of numerous articles on printing and advertising.

President Dick Paul said that King's presentation has been the talk of advertising clubs across the country.

Anyone interested in attending the meeting may contact a member of the Ad Club.

Solutions

Expected

On Surfing

Harold Whitehurst, director of Parks and Recreation and head of the Virginia Beach Surfing Committee, says that proposed solutions to the surfing problems of the city will be made to the City Council within the next two months.

The main problems confronting the city's surfing population are limited space and strict regulations. In finding solutions to these problems, the Surfing Committee has written 15 letters to cities where surfing is an active sport. The Committee has received about eight answers to the queries. These letters will be used in the study being made by the Committee.

A committee was first appointed by former city manager W. Russell Hatchett to consider the problems. At the end of the 1968 season Roger M. Scott, the present city manager, asked the Surfing Committee to continue to work on the surfing problems.

Turning Cars Dangerous

A lurking danger at every intersection is the turning car. AAA reminds parents that children tend to place too much trust in traffic signals and, while remembering to look right and left, forget to watch for cars coming from around the corner.

Frank W. Cox, director of Tidewater Automobile Association (AAA) states "If there were only one single traffic habit all pedestrians should learn, it must be that of looking all ways before crossing." He urged parents to teach this basic rule to their children.

"Even pre-school children must learn to protect themselves in traffic," he continued. "If everyone would cultivate this simple habit, pedestrian accidents would be greatly reduced."

"Traffic controls are added to safety, not insurance," Cox said. "To insure safety, the pedestrian has to depend on his own eyes as well as mechanical signals or signs; the green light often gives motorists permission to turn at the same time it tells the pedestrian to walk. He has to guard against the careless actions of motorists whose attention might be momentarily diverted from the driving task. Any pedestrian who automatically starts out as the signal turns green, without checking traffic, is courting disaster."

As a part of AAA's nationwide traffic safety program, a poster designed by 12 year old Douglas Masten of Port Clinton, Ohio is being distributed to schools throughout the country.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

Although the rock fishing season should be nearing its end, or at least at a low ebb, two Second Police Precinct men don't know it. Reliable sources tell us officers J. T. Haley and W. F. Bender decided to make one more effort to land a few, and both came back with their boats loaded down with rock.

New officers have just been installed for the coming year's operation of the Creggs Volunteer Fire Department. They are Floyd Waterfield, chief; Marvin Etheridge, asst. chief; Elwood Styron and Gerald Freeman, captain; Claude Morse and George Lindsey, lt. Constitutional officers consist of Richard Twiford, president; Rodney Cason, vice president; Floyd Taylor, secretary; and L. M. Hood, treasurer.

According to City Sgt. John E. Marr five men, who had served most of their sentences, were released from custody under a court ordered "Christmas Amnesty". Marr says those who had to remain in jail over the holiday were not forgotten, though, and were served a full Christmas Day dinner. The menu consisted of turkey with stuffing, ham with all the trimmings, sweet potatoes, green peas, hot rolls, fruit cake, pumpkin pie and coffee.

Oceana Volunteer Fire Dept. Chief Ellis Mills says he has hung a "help wanted" sign around the station house and invites men who would like to join the Department to contact him by telephoning 428-4428 for further information. Mills says he can only promise those who would like to join the Department two things: "long hours and short pay".

As James E. Moore closed out his final day as Police Chief of Virginia Beach he had one final thought, Moore said, "I would hope all the men in this department will give Chief Davis 100% cooperation as they have me, and if they do we'll continue to have a good department".

Every true sportsman looks forward to that day when they can take to the fields and river banks, getting to their blinds at the crack of dawn, and bagging their duck limit for the day. We understand such a day recently turned into a series of one mishap after another for police officers E. E. Marrow and W. E. Paden, as well as their friend "Jack" Pallette.

While awaiting the first flight over their favorite spot, the tide went out leaving their decoys high and dry. While attempting to retrieve their decoys in the muddy shallows their boat broke down. Giving up in disgust they returned home, only to have their trailer hitch come loose as they negotiated the bridge over Rudee Inlet, sending their rig drifting into Lake Rudee. The trio took heart, however, that the 13 hour experience was not a complete loss. We understand the group managed to bag two ducks during the outing.

Future of State Bright Reports State C. of C.

According to a recent report made by the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, on Virginia travel liquor-by-the-drink is expected to bring more tourists into resort areas, including Virginia Beach.

Although it will be at least a year or two before the word has spread that Virginia is now among the 85% of the nation's 50 states offering mixed drinks, convention business should increase as new facilities become available across Virginia. Hotel, motel and restaurant operators feel that the advent of more night life, new restaurants, plus other factors, will have a "holding effect" on many travelers. The travelers, especially commercial ones, will spend more time in the state rather than hurrying on to Washington, D. C. or Atlanta.

In spite of the bad effect the civil disturbances in Washington, D. C. had on business in northern Virginia, travel industry members report that they recouped their losses to wind up the year off only about five per cent. Report from motel operators across the state revealed "a generally good year."

Civic Council Meets Jan. 8

The Council of Civic Organizations will meet at 8 p. m. Jan. 8 at the Ocean Park Fire Department.

Program topic for the meeting is "Apartment, New Subdivisions, and School Development and How These May Be Coordinated". E. E. Brickell, superintendent of schools, and George R. Ferrell, city councilman, will be the guest speakers.

At the November meeting of the Council the North Alanton Civic League was accepted as a member of the C.C.O.

According to the Chamber travel director, Irbly N. Hollans Jr., "If the State's travel industry continues to grow and prosper in 1969 as is expected we should pass the billion-dollar mark for the first time by the middle of the year."

Galilee Elects Six Vestrymen

The annual congregational meeting of Galilee Episcopal Church was held on Dec. 15. Elected to the rotating vestry for three years were: Patrick N. Allen, Frank B. Bragg, Reid F. Ervin, James R. McKenry, E. Page Preston and William Rieger III.

Rev. Jordan discussed the long-range plans of the church's progress, while Wales gave a resume of the various committees' reports.

Knox Pannill was appointed treasurer of the church, succeeding M. Warfield Leske, who resigned after 18 years of service.

Barry Receives Federal Award

Edward Barry, a resident of Pillow Drive, employed at the Continental Army Command Headquarters, Fort Monroe, has been awarded a certificate for accruing 1000 hours sick leave.

The presentation was made by Maj. Gen. Elmer J. Gibson, CONARC Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics. Barry, a 20-year-plus Federal government employee, works in the general materials branch, maintenance division of the logistics staff. He transferred to Fort Monroe in May from Indiantown Gap, Pa.

Bowman receives the German Shooting Association's Gold Pin from two club members.

Local Man Scores in Germany

Tech. Sgt. (Whitey) Warren M. Bowman, of the United States Air Force serving with 2137 Communications Squadron at Royal Air Force Bruggen, North Germany, is a member of the Dorthausen Schutzen Verein (Small Bore Shooting Club). His rank in the Club is that of "Ritter" (Knight). Bowman qualified this year for the German Shooting Association's Gold Pin. Bowman's daughter is the Jugend konigin (young Queen) of the Club for this year. His wife, Dee, is also well known in the NATO Headquarters area for her welfare work.

Bowman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight M. Bowman live at Bowman Road.

The Bowman family in Germany live at Flaschbleich Flat, Dorthausen, Rheindahlen.

Lawrence R. White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin E. White of Paladin Drive, has been promoted to staff sergeant in the U. S. Air Force. Sgt. White is an aerial photographic systems specialist at Davis-Monthan AFB, Ariz. He is a member of the Strategic Air Command.

Airman Michael D. Fonseca, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Fonseca of Gale Drive, has completed basic training at Amarillo AFB, Tex. He has been assigned to Chanute AFB, Ill., for training in the aircraft equipment maintenance field.

The Code of Ethics

The code of ethics for city employees passed recently by City Council is bound to have far-reaching effects, some good, some bad.

The changes written in before passage have made it livable and workable. A "grandfather clause" permitting city employees to continue holding office or membership in political clubs or organizations will phase out that problem smoothly. But we still wonder at the advisability of keeping city employees out of political organizations. It still seems like some sort of punishment because of working for the municipality.

The fact that it was passed as a resolution instead of an ordinance is good. Violation of an ordinance implies criminal action, which is certainly not a good way to hold city employees. Even a mistake could make him criminally liable. As it is, only administrative action is implied.

The voluntary joining in by the staffs of the Constitutional officers is indeed welcome, since some of those same officers have been known to violate these principles in the past. Hopefully even the Constitutional officers and City Council will also see fit to include themselves, especially where pre-judicial confidential information is concerned.

The code of ethics is probably a step in the right direction, but in a city where political wounds are already deep, it came at a time when it acted like salt on those wounds.

Now we have a code of ethics for city employees. Now let us all live with it and abide by it. And now, let us see that any violator is punished.

1969 Is Here

The start of another year is upon us. It is destined to be another year of growth and change for Virginia Beach.

While the events of 1968 are still fresh in our minds we can see that all that has happened has merely brought us to the threshold of things to come in 1969. It is up to all of us to make Virginia Beach an even better place in which to live in this new year.

It is up to all of us to go to the polls in the various elections and let our voices be heard. It is up to all of us to participate in local affairs, not to gripe about something after it has happened when we did not participate.

If we can find just one resolution for 1969 which should say it all, let us resolve to make this a year of involvement.....involvement in our government, our community, our home and our church. In that way when the start of 1970 comes, the events of 1969 can make this an important year for all of us and for the city of Virginia Beach.

The Boy on the Bike

The boy on the bicycle rushing to deliver a telegram is a thing of the past. To get a telegram delivered, except by mail, either the sender or the receiver has to pay an arbitrary 75-cent fee, added by Western Union in November.

If the person getting the telegram has no phone to receive it, as in days of yore, it must be delivered. Presumably there is no charge in this case. But if the receiver has a phone but still wishes the message hand delivered also, someone must pay the extra charge.

And so the question arises.... If the messages are going to come by phone anyway, why use the telegraph wires? Why not call by phone? The rates are about the same, and in many cases cheaper.

Sure the costs of delivery have gone up, but so have the rates, even if they are now uniform nationwide and statewide. The rates are set arbitrarily and without any chance of a fight by the consumer, just as in all other utilities.

And sure delivery boys or men are harder to come by than they used to be. But the days of the delivered telegram, as a matter of course are gone forever, unless we pay up. Another part of Americana is gone, and so is another right of the consumer.

And incidentally if the costs of handling telegrams is so high, why not close the relay office at Virginia Beach. All telegrams to this city are sent to Norfolk and are phoned to Virginia Beach anyway. Couldn't they come here and be sent out cheaper? Bring back the boy on the bike somehow.

Moore and Davis

Virginia Beach has a new police chief. He is W. W. Davis, a conscientious and dedicated police officer who has come up through the ranks in Virginia Beach. His knowledge of police work has grown with the city of Virginia Beach.

As the city now rushes headlong toward becoming the largest city in Virginia, the job of law and order falls squarely on his shoulders and the shoulders of those who serve for and with him. It will not be an easy job even with the support and help of all of us.

He takes over from a long-time public servant, Chief Jim Ed Moore, who is retiring. Chief Moore guided the police department of Princess Anne County and Virginia Beach through their dark ages and guided them well. Through it all he gained and kept the respect and admiration of all who know him. We wish him well in his retirement, and we wish the same for Chief Davis as he grasps the reins put down by Chief Moore.

Letters to the Editor

He Objects

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:

I have delayed writing this letter because I wanted it to be as non-hostile as possible. I would like to offer a few comments about Mrs. Leanne T. Mott's letter in last week's SUN concerning sex education in the public schools.

Perhaps Mrs. Mott would prefer her children learning about "the birds and the bees" from the graffiti on some restroom wall rather than from a classroom blackboard. Of course, we must admit the blackboard does have a tendency to dispel the clandestine nature of sex established in some homes.

As for sparing children the problems of adult life, it is just such adult suppression of sex education which gives rise to so many misconceptions in the life of the young adult. Don't our young people have enough problems as it is without the added emotional duress stemming from ignorance of such subjects as menstruation and masturbation? If one illegitimate birth -- and the subsequent pain and heartache -- is avoided through classroom information, every citizen should sound loud kudos for the responsible teacher.

I add in conclusion, if a parent finds his or her child's innocent inquiries embarrassing, perhaps it is time for the parent to re-evaluate the nuances of his or her own attitude towards sex. Just as "beauty is in the eye of the beholder," so may dirt be in the mind of the "withholder."

Special Report

A Spoonful of News

During 1968, Virginia Beach took the lead in Tidewater and threw open all its City Council meetings to the press, even the informal sessions held as staff briefings on Mondays when City Council did not meet in regular session.

This was one of the first acts of the new City Manager Roger M. Scott informed the members of the press corps that they could attend all meetings, but that certain matters that could be considered prejudicial to the city if prematurely released would be off limits. In that way Scott made it clear he was living up to the letter of the Freedom of Information Law passed by the 1968 session of the Virginia General Assembly.

That law requires all meetings to be public, except in personnel problems or appointments or financial matters which could have far-reaching consequences if made public ahead of the time thought best by Council.

Scott sought to go one step beyond this by allowing the press to listen in anyway without the privilege of reporting until the signal was given. The first person to object to this was Morris Rowe, of the Norfolk VIRGINIA-PILOT. He said he would rather be excluded from these private matters so that he could get the story elsewhere from his sources.

A few City Councilmen felt all anyway as soon as a private session is over, and there has never been any trouble in finding out what has happened in those sessions. When these few told the amount of the bid for the Penn-Central industrial property, the entire deal reportedly hung in the balance because the figure was not to have been released. When these few told of the disestablishment of the Planning Commission and who had been out, those affected found it out by reading it in the papers. The contents of Scott's new code of ethics was in the hand of a newsman two days before Council heard it informally.

All of us, as newsmen, are able to find out and publish what happens in those closed meetings by contacting the right people. Not all City Councilmen break this silence. But enough do to make our job easy.

But now Rowe is apparently not happy with the situation he helped create. He has written Mayor Frank A. Dusch asking Council "to be more aware of the contents and guidelines of the Freedom of Information law." He said in the letter that "he believed Council in a number of cases has 'abused its legal rights to hold executive sessions on matters not exempted from public meetings by the law.'"

However, he also blames himself and other newsmen for allowing this. He cites specifically the code of ethics which he says is personnel policy, not an individual matter which should not have been exempted.

But then Rowe also asks, in effect, for everything to be made public before the meetings, so that he may use all of the matters which will be coming up at Council meetings in his stories several days ahead.

Newsmen are allowed to pick up a copy of the upcoming regular Council meeting docket on Fridays before a Monday meeting, the same time that Councilmen get their copy of the same docket. Our ahead-of-time stories are written from this and any information we can glean from our sources. And that again, is very little problem.

But now Mr. Rowe is asking that "the city manager, director of planning and city attorney file with the city clerk all correspondence, ordinances, documents, reports and lists of proposed appointments prior to the release of the council agenda at noon each Friday prior to the regular public meetings...."

He goes on to say, "To make our job easier and to save the valuable time of our city officials after each public council meeting, I would further request that you instruct the city clerk to attach the above listed papers to the council agenda handed out to us each Friday."

In this way, obviously, Rowe and others could hold a Council meeting in the newspapers and on the air prior to a City Council meeting. There would be little reason to hold a meeting or to have a City Council, it could all be handled in the press, handled in any manner the reporter wishes.

The public certainly has a right to know what its elected officials are doing in all matters, but this kind of spoon feeding request is brash and absurd.

owe said in the letter, "It makes a much better story for us to get Councilmen's comments and statements from a closed meeting...."

That is true, and that is the way it should be, if those few Councilmen wish to continue giving out information they do not consider must be held private.

The press has a grave responsibility to the citizens of a city, but that responsibility does not include handling all the affairs of government, by Morris Rowe, sometimes known by some as Jack Etheridge's "mouthpiece". That is why we have a City Council with 11 members.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"What do you mean? Did I enjoy the holidays? What holidays?" she screamed back in answer to an innocent question. "I meant did you have a nice holiday season. That's all. Nothing devious," he said, as honestly as he knew how. "Sure, I had a fine time in the kitchen, cleaning behind the kids all day long, washing and ironing, feeding the baby after a long night of entertaining the night before and making sure our house guests were happy and comfortable," she said. "Sure, I had a fine time."

The Tranquil Holiday Season

"I've got a great idea," he said. "Let's make new year's resolutions now. I'll resolve not to ask you any more questions like that one if you'll resolve not to answer it even if I don't ask." "That's not fair," she said. "How else will I blow off steam?" "Talk to the cat," he said. "She's deaf." "Use sign language."

"You don't seem to understand," she said. "I'm not really upset or mad about any of the work I have to do. I just have to let off steam once in a while. Then I'm all right." "And I'm a nervous wreck after listening to it all," he said. "Somehow or other, it just doesn't seem right." "Well, who else is there for me to blow off to?" she asked. "That's just part of the marriage contract."

"If I said 'I do', to that, I didn't hear it," he said. "And if I did, I ought to have my head examined." "Besides you get to the office every day and relax," she said, "while I have to stay here and go stir crazy. The most intelligent conversation I hear all day is on the level of our five-year-old."

"You should go to my office," he pointed out. "The conversation there is often not that high level. Besides what makes you think I relax at my office?"

"You come home all calm, cool and collected," she said. "That's all a front," he said. "I have inner tensions."

"Take a tranquilizer," she said. "That is, if I have any left after the last couple of holiday weeks."

"If you don't, you better have a new supply sent in. Maybe by the gross. Remember we're getting company again next weekend."

"There's something else I've been putting off telling you," she said, "but I guess I'd better do it now....Mother's coming for a week starting tomorrow."

"Where did you say those tranquilizers are?" he asked. "If you're really out, order two gross. Is she flying in?"

"Yes," she said. "What time does her broom get in?"

"Now don't start that again."

In 1492, three boats of a size undreamed of captained by Christopher Columbus, were seen by the naked inhabitants of a little island in the Bahamas. In this insignificant way the great story of America and its contribution to humanity began. From this simple beginning to 1968, our nation has tortuously, through war and peace, through voluntary immigration and through slavery and indentured servitude reached its present stage. It officially started in revolt; it prospered by dissent; and became great through experimentation. It is a melting pot where most of the world's cultures and races exist side by side, with the absolute necessity of peaceably working out their common destiny.

Our national language is English today because of a fierce battle which took place 3000 miles from our shores on the 20th of July, 1588. On this date the English defeated the Spanish Armada in the English Channel. Had the Spanish won, there seems little doubt that this column would be written in the Spanish language. The Spanish settled in the south; the English settled on the east coast, in 1607, at Jamestown and, in 1620, at Plymouth Rock. The French too were powerful and ambitious and in 1608 France founded the fortified port of Quebec and from thence for decades, missionaries, fur traders, and intrepid explorers pushed their way into the wilderness to the west. By 1628, however, it had been made certain that English colonization of the Atlantic Coast although toilsome and hazardous, could be undertaken with success.

From this date until America seceded from the British Empire by the Declaration of Independence in July of 1776, the colonies were primarily concerned with establishing a permanent civilization on this continent. Slowly in this environment a new philosophy was forming. The American dream was beginning to evolve in the hearts of men. The economic motive was unquestionably powerful, often dominant, in the minds of those who took part in the great migration; but mixed with this was also frequently present, the hope of a better and a freer life, a life in which a man might think as he would and develop as he wished. The common man had taken a vast step forward, in the forests of America he had become perhaps a freer individual than he had been at any time in the thousand years since his Anglo-Saxon ancestors had dwelt in the forests of Germany.

During this early period of colonization three cultures were struggling to be dominant on the American continent. The Spanish in the South, the French in the North and the English in the East. The French laid their main stress on the religious conversion of the savage. Their failure to dominate is due largely to the humble poverty of most of their settlers and the sparsity of their numbers. The Spanish were numerous and some of them incredibly wealthy. The Spanish, however, attempted to establish essentially the same form of political structure in the new world as previously existed in the countries from whence the settlers had fled. The English prevailed because they had the advantage of numbers, wealth and the quaranteness of personal liberties for each citizen.

Race consciousness and a sense of superiority were strong in the settlers and in their minds it was the hand of God that slew the Indians for them. Unlike the French and Spaniards, the English were strengthened in their race consciousness by contact with both Indians and the later negro slaves, and although there was some sexual intergradation, there was never any social approval given to the mixing of the races. In marked contrast to the Latin colonies, English wives and children shared the perilous adventure of their husbands and fathers. The English tried harder to establish in the wilderness as quickly as possible, and even, in individual cases to better, a standard of life to which they had become accustomed in England, with its centuries of accumulated resources. In the villages or in a lonely cabin on the outer fringe of a settlement the war whoop sounded and men slept with their guns beside them. Strong in their racial pride, detesting the Indian and other "vermin" that barred their way, the fabled agents and servants of God, bent on winning land and homes -- these were the men of destiny.

The year 1969 promises to be another year of progress and change for Virginia Beach. The aura of excitement which surrounds the continued rapid growth in the city forces us all into acute awareness.

What is past is prologue. What lies ahead is the only thing that matters now. What kind of year will 1969 be in the world's largest resort city?

It is going to be far different from past years. A new police chief, a new city manager and a new superintendent of schools are all beginning their first full year of progressive and responsible leadership. That leadership is paced at a rapid clip, and the breathlessness of it has caught all of us up in it.

Certainly more changes will come about in the name of progress. Some of those changes will be good, and some will be bad. The bad ones will be changed again in 1970, 1971, etc.

The city and the First Congressional District will play an important part in the selection of a new governor of Virginia. Who he will be may well depend on the outcome of the Democratic primary in July, and whom the leaders of our city support. The GOP has made valuable inroads in Virginia Beach in recent elections. That development bears strict watching in 1969.

The effects of liquor-by-the-drink on the resort city business is another situation that will be gaining attention. Those who consider it a panacea may well be in for a rude awakening, but even the worst pessimist readily admits it should be a help to the resort.

Outside interests will be keeping a watchful eye on that situation and the relative success in 1969 could dictate the future convention, club and entertainment business here.

More schools have to be built, as usual. A long-lasting water contract will be settled with Norfolk. More services will be needed, and maybe more taxes to meet those needs. As the year begins those budget hearings are moving into the highest gear.

The economic outlook, however, is bright. Homes, apartments and townhouses are being built at a pace that saw the old construction record nearly toppled even in a tight money year. Green Run Planned Unit Development, a new concept in housing, will soon be underway also.

Union Kempsville High School will be turned into a special education center as the rest of the city schools are totally integrated. And the vocational-technical high school, long delayed, should finally be started. The number of motel rooms on the drawing boards for 1969 start is breathtaking, and the municipal golf course at Camp Pendleton should be almost ready by summer. More emphasis on recreation will see a larger Little Island parking area at Sandbridge, a new city park at Green Run Farm, the finish of the Owl's Creek boat ramp and perhaps even a solution to the surfing needs and problems.

The new schools, financed by the bond issue and tax hike of 1968, will be open for the study and laughter of youth. And the King's Great Elementary School, ravaged by fire just before Christmas, will once again be back in business.

Kempsville will have its own library, a welcome addition to the cultural aspects of our city. Virginia Wesleyan's new library will be finished in the fall, and if all goes well, Virginia Beach's junior college may reach the final planning or even construction stages in the next 12 months.

In the next few weeks city officials will move into the lavish new Administration Building at Princess Anne. The building, long the center of controversy in its delays, is worth waiting for and will serve well for years to come.

Studies of future needs, such as a paid fire department for all parts of the city, will be made in 1969 as the city continues to mature so quickly from its six short years since birth.

New shopping centers will be built, at Hilltop, on Independence Blvd. at Pembroke and everywhere one looks.

Two long awaited roads should be a reality by the end of 1969. Independence Blvd., all the way from Virginia Beach Blvd. to Shore Drive will be open for traffic, and if all the squabbling between the state and federal governments can soon stop, the last link of Route 60, our very own Shore Drive, will be four lanes. Plans still call for the start of that construction from Fort Story to Atlantic Avenue very soon.

Traffic will continue to mount on Virginia Beach Blvd. More and more tourists will come to the beach during the summer season. They'll stay longer and spend more. The population of the city will continue to climb steadily toward becoming the largest city in Virginia. That goal is less than a decade away.

The world will take another 365 turns. Perhaps some astronauts will watch a few of them from the moon.

Then 12 months from now, we'll reflect again on the past... the prologue. What lies ahead is still the only thing that matters. HJL

The new Plaza Junior High School opens in September.

New townhouse apartments at Lake Edward West are nearing completion.

The new city Administration Building is about ready...at last.

New homes, like these in Windsor Woods, continue to be built.

THE WOMEN

VIRGINIA BEACH SUN

Thursday, January 2, 1969

A wild abstract print interprets Originala's Spring '69 raincoat... its collar rising high... its shaping from sashing at the waist with self belt.

Spring's coolest colours, white, blue and green, in a sumptuous gown from Nat Kaplan's 1969 collection. The sleeveless bodice has a slashed neckline, wrapped and bowed at the waist bouncing out to a round skirt that spills to the floor.

Capes are in for a new fling this spring, like this smart new silk-topped dress ensemble from Wards. One of the looks endorsed by Wards Designer Advisory Council.

Spring Fashions Have Look Of Ease and Individuality

The look of Spring '69 is the look of sportswear - relaxed, high-flying, dressed down... a whole new attitude towards fashion, a free-wheeling look of individuality. It's the result of the hippy movement, the campus revolts, influential youth, of "do your own thing." Restrictions are out... it's pick and choose and put yourself together to suit your mood.

Relax fashions is soft and feminine, yet out-going, emphatic. The look of separates, movement, activity - it's the shaped body released for movement, the shirly look, the pulled-together look, the chunky shoe, longer glove, pants all over the place. It's no one look but it has a flavor... the flavor is sporty.

Note the shape... no straight lines anywhere. Shape relaxes on the body - moves freely to suggest rather than outline. Small shoulders move to easy waists to flared hems. In today's body conscious world we're loath to give up the freedom of a shift for a tight corseted look. The result?... the new fit - waisted, but gently... a silhouette that indicates a woman rather than a fashion shape... always fluid.

The shirt story grows and grows - by itself but newer as the shirt dress. It may be a little sleeveless body skimmer with contrast collar and tab front; it may be a full sleeved, bloused top sashed at the waist over gathers and gathers of skirt, but the look of the shirt is unmistakable. Collared or cut-out, V-neck or slash neck, a shirt or shirt dress may have no sleeves, short mini-sleeves or long billowy sleeves. Two of the newest looks in shirts are the tiny tucked sleeve and the deep nautical neck surrounded by a very large relaxed collar.

From the shirt... the blouson - a fuller, softer look that is not confined to the bodice alone. Shoulders stay narrow despite flare-ups of the 40's and the body shirt has relaxed to the newer blouson. Tucking, pleating, gathers from yokes are important here - a fuller bodice that hints at shape, falls gently to the belt. Note too the blouson sleeve flowing from tiny shoulder tucks and the clustered gathers of a billowing skirt. The look of blouson goes hand in hand with the freshly eased attitude towards waists - the new elasticized waist, the softer sashes, the wraps, ties and crushed belts.

From the shirt... the jumper - the shirt plus look. The jumper may be U-necked, V-necked, tightly belted or loosely wrapped... it may be a little girl pinafore or a big girl all-in-one, part of the pants story. It's the newest twist on the separates look of shirt and skirt.

The pants takeover - biggest fashion story this season. Pants go everywhere, do everything. They've come of age in women's wear. About the only limit one can put on pants is that they're never leg-hugging - from fitted hips they drop in slight A's, billow out to gather again at the ankle or flow so fully one mistakes them for skirts.

Freshest are pants under dresses - catching on fantastically. Most often flaring modestly from thigh to ankle, they may be cuffed or not. Topping these are today's mini-dresses - marvelous shirly little dresses with long sleeves and sashed waists - or sweatey looking, wrapped and tied to one side or sexy, sleeveless wrap dresses with exaggerated V necks... and the minis can go it alone depending on your mood.

Another way to dress pants --- the all-in-one with detachable skirt - making a big splash for spring as many pants go short to above the knee. Here we see the short pants under wrap or slashed panel skirts. Or try short pants on a camisole with a soft mid-thigh top or with a short bolero or vest.

Pants are today's suits - they're ensembles with coats, they're glamorous evenings and they make the boy-girl go-together look. Pants are young or mature, cuffed or the counterfitted, tailored or billowy - pants are now - the biggest sporty trend of the relaxed fashions.

Coats and suits take up the pants trend enthusiastically. Suits, definitely part of the sporty approach, combine both pants or skirts with a shirly looking top - good tailored collars, shaped or belted waists, tab front closings. Jackets tend to be long - flaring over the hip. Exceptions - the still popular bolero and the vest jacket over an important shirt. Newest jacket around... seamed across mid-back to fit and flare over the hip.

Coats, again, are shirly, waisted, gently fitted, often belted and look terrific over pants. Often sleeveless for spring-summer, topping matching pants or skirts, they rarely stand alone - become part of a pulled-together total look. Important to watch... the mini sleeve on jackets and coats.

Evenings float... they billow, they slink, they shimmer. Evenings are extravagant, nude, sexy - they're plunging necklines, bared or laced backs, open midrifts. The shirt - long or short - is very important, especially in a blouson look with fullest, flowing sleeves and skirts. Or try the strapless gown topped by sleeveless vest or bolero. Here the hippy influence is strongest - with ornate embroideries, glittering crusts of jewels. And here too, is another pant story... ultra soft, slinky or voluminous - the pant goes to new widths from supplest glowing, barely widened legs to gathers and gathers that look like skirts to blossoming bloomers of haem vintage. Evening pants may be very cut-out jumpers, or topped by a tunic or combined with elegant shirts and vests or part of a dinner suit. However they come, pants for evening have a today excitement that's hard to beat.

Supple is the word on spring-summer fabrics - even the ones with lots of body must be able to move freely. Traditional cotton comes with new twists and shares a lot of the limelight with a range of synthetics. Cottons have texture or print - line patterned, puckered, corded, ribbed, embroidered - the popular double woven cottons with a flatter face. They combine with nylon, dacron, rayon, polyester, to give more ease and fluidity. A fabric to watch - seersucker - getting a strong play in couture looks. Pattern is strongly floral from miniature nosegay blooms and colorful decorator blossoms to giant imaginative flowers. A close second are the checks, stripes and plaids, often on flatter fabrics as well and gingham begins to look very right again for relaxed sporty dressing.

Billowy sheers are another "now" story - part of the nude look playing such a leading role in the fashion picture. The very newest - bonded or ganzas - reversible, barely see-through with enough body to lead a life of their own without linings or a starched look. The fluid sheers of nylon, cotton blends, silks should debut for day wear as well as evening. And the traditional look of linen which returns year after year, has no equal for fresh summery looks.

Post meridian fabrics are gossamer - the lightest, most supple, shiniest ever. Organza, silks, papery taffetas and laces go shirly or bare. Often with embroidered peek-a-boo cut-outs, they're stitched, tucked, printed or flowered or touched with jewels or embroidery. The newest of the new... the shimmery synthetic knits that positively slither about the body.

Clear is the color forecast - pure tones in the primaries, softly muted in the secondaries. White scores highly this season - alone or in combos with black or wine leading off, followed by navy and brown and newly fresh soft grey. The crystal brights are yellows, greens - very pure, not hard. Balancing these are the gentle hued pastels in blues, peach, mauve and the great neutral, putty.

Belts are... this season's story... an extravaganza of belts to go with the shirts, the pants, the wraps, the tunics. About the only belt you won't find this summer is the stiff little smooth leather with self-buckle... In the current mood... if it fits round waist - wear it!

Relaxed fashion - this personal, easy look should be around for a long time. It's unrestricted - pants for women, lots of bareness... easy fashion to wear... a real winner for Spring '69.

A sumptuous spill of silk... Ole Borden does a puff-sleeved, slashed-neckline gown for Rembrandt's Spring '69 collection... gives it hi-empire shaping and a deep pleat center-front, all in red, green and navy plaid on white.

Pants, pants, pants... done neat and narrow for Ben Reig's Spring '69 collection. The grey and shocking plaid jacket is masterfully cut to a longer length and double-buttons... teamed with grey straight-legged pants for an ultra chic look.

The bi-colored town costume for Spring '69... designed by Marie McCarthy for the Larry Aldrich collection. In a glen plaid, the jumper dress sports a long sleeve black bodice.

Swiss cotton for a Navy and white Spring '69 offering... from the Davidow collection.

HERE COMES OLGA!

The teenagers took over Princess Anne Country Club Thursday night for an after Christmas dance. I don't know when a larger or more enthusiastic group has been put together in one place.

Although the looks on the faces of some of the chaperones was somewhat pained (they just didn't dig the music), the kids really went for The Allens. Roy Niel, whose daughter, Nancy, was among those present, made several trips outside to check the noise level or maybe he was just trying to get a few minutes of peace and quiet.

Mrs. Margaret Moore brought her granddaughter and namesake Peggy all the way out from Norfolk for the dance, then stayed herself. "We've sent out for earplugs," she laughed, nodding to some of the other adults there.

With all the energy they were expending on the dance floors, the teens almost wore a path in the carpeting going back and forth to the punch bowl which was refilled time after time, for the thirsty crowd.

The girls wore everything from blouses, skirts and loafers, to many dressy sheer waists and velveteens, and even one lovely long brocade skirt. But the girls all had one thing in common—a distaste for shoes as evidenced by the lineup of shoes on the window sills. I'd like to have been there for the scramble when they tried to recover all the shoes before they went home. Somehow the fancy dress heels are nicer to look at than to dance in.

I couldn't possibly get all the names of the teens there (they didn't stay still long enough), but a few of them were: Mike Cole, Geoff Snodgrass, Amy Ferebee, Peyton Via, Keebie Grones, Kirkland Molloy, David Donahue, Sylvia Baldwin, William Dekker, Jerry Baldwin, Gray Hodson, John Cromwell, Rob Bagbey, John McDonald, Anne Patterson, Catherine Taylor, Kathy Cotten, Esa Gilliam, Mason Gilliam, Belford Emanuelson, Lizzy Richardson, Richard Lacouture, Petty Dickson and Alice Sterling.

Others attending were: Bill Vaughan, Sammy Brown, Bill Preston, Parks Atkinson, Mark Wales, Bill Harrison, Ann Baylor, Dave Pender, Michael Via, Michael Stormont, Jim Gentry, David Stormont IV, Henry Johnson, Charley Nash, Hunt Harris, Robin Boyd, Cecil Cutchins, Richard Snodgrass, Alice Beasley, Put Goode, Don Clark, Abbie Fox, Susanne Warren and Nanette Warren.

The dance floor stayed crowded when the Princess Anne Country Club had a teen dance last Thursday night.

Taking time out to talk were Peyton Via, Keebie Grones and Kirkland Molloy.

Beach Students on Vacation

Freshmen Meet Challenge

By Susan Axelrod

The mass exodus of homeward bound college students began approximately a week before Christmas in the Resort City. For the majority of students, Christmas vacation meant a few weeks of relaxing before studying for their first round of college examinations.

With their first semester of college life almost over, students seeking higher education have formulated many varied ideas about the collegesystems in the state of Virginia as well as institutions outside of the state.

Is college what they expected it to be? Were they prepared for the immense amount of work that college entails? Is their particular college living up to their pre-fabricated expectations?

Donna "Petie" Snider, who attends Greensboro College in Greensboro, N. C., said, "Yes, college is what I expected, but I wasn't prepared for the work I have to do. I thought that my classes in high school would have prepared me for most of the work, but it didn't."

John Wolfe is a freshman at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville. "College," he said, "isn't anything a whole lot different. I feel as though I am becoming increasingly more ignorant." John is a pledge for Chi Phi fraternity. Over the vacation John "isn't doing too much of anything."

Candy Casey is attending Longwood College in Farmville, Va., an all-female institution. "College is too much of an adjustment from high school," she said. "There is so much reading. But I wouldn't miss dorm life for anything." Candy is working part-time over the vacation at the C&P Telephone Company.

A freshman at Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia in Fredericksburg is Kitty Wyche. "People go into college without really knowing what it is. Some don't appreciate it. You learn to be more independent, but you must be conscientious because the work will really creep up on you. What everyone said to me about college is really true." Kitty's main objective of her vacation is "getting some well-needed sleep."

Britt Fanney is a student at Virginia Polytechnic Institute in Blacksburg. "I didn't have any idea of what college was and I didn't know what to expect. I tried to visualize what it would be, but I couldn't. There is a lot of work involved, but it's rewarding." Britt is also sleeping away his vacation.

Patti Jensen went to a real "away-from-home" college by going to St. Olaf's in Minnesota. "I had built up an image of college, but then I stopped doing that because I didn't want to be disappointed," she said. "I'm not disappointed at all. As a matter of fact, I love it."

Randall Malvon is also attending Greensboro College. She feels that college is a "big difference from high school. If you haven't learned to study by the time you get there, you really learn fast."

Ricky Richardson is a student at Duke University in Durham, N. C. A member of the Southern hospitality. Most of the students there are from the South, and they are very friendly. The boys are all gentlemen. I also really love the school spirit at U.T." Debbie is working at Willner's at Pembroke Mall during her vacation.

Kathy Wommack is attending William and Mary College in Williamsburg. "I was prepared for college as much as I could have been," she said, "but the thing I like most is the people at William and Mary. Everyone is so friendly that the school seems smaller than it really is." What is Kathy doing with her vacation? "I guess I'm doing what everyone else is doing—relaxing. I've got to go back and take exams."

Debbie Schwartz is a freshman at the University of Tennessee located in Knoxville. "I like it there because of the Southern hospitality. Most of the students there are from the South, and they are very friendly. The boys are all gentlemen. I also really love the school spirit at U.T." Debbie is working at Willner's at Pembroke Mall during her vacation.

Joel Mandelkorn ventured to the west coast to Stanford College which is just outside San Francisco. "I really like it. Stanford is a good school. I've never been with such a great group of kids in my life. There are so many things at school to do, so many new experiences, new interests."

New things to do, new people to meet, more work, more responsibilities... College life... a step toward maturity... a new challenge... a new frontier to be met by the younger generation.

Throw Away All But Baby

To fight mounting hospital costs and to further advance standards of hygiene, hospitals across the United States are increasing their use of "disposables."

An amazing variety of items one ordinarily thinks of as "permanent," such as high-grade surgical instruments, are now available to hospitals in low-cost, disposable form.

Baby wards were among the first to use disposables. Diapers, nursing bottles and nipples were first. Now, even bassinets are thrown away.

There are several advantages to disposables. Most important, they minimize the danger of cross-infections. They need not be sterilized before or after use, for they come completely sterile and they're thrown away immediately upon usage.

Cost of laundering or sterilizing is eliminated and storage is much simplified.

"Another big 'plus' in the use of disposables lies in today's design of complete kits for many complete surgical or medical procedures," said William O. Elson, medical researcher director of the Kendall Company, Chicago Division.

"The convenience and time-savings is great when a doctor or nurse simply has to reach for a completely sterile Curity kit, open it, and find gloves, sponges, antiseptics and other items, even a cardboard basin, together with all of the medical equipment needed for that particular procedure. When it is over, every single item is disposed of immediately.

There are many other examples; a simple but important one is a small, sealed-off package which contains a piece of non-woven fabric saturated with isopropyl alcohol is far more convenient and sanitary than the traditional cotton which the nurse or doctor soaks with alcohol by hand.

"The nation's severe nursing shortage would be much worse without disposables," according to the Kendall official. "And—the cost of patient care, which has increased from about $10 per day in 1945 to almost $45 per day today, would be even more."

Looking for something new and easy to serve for holiday get-togethers? Try these HAM-CHEESE QUICKIES.

- 3 packages pie crust mix (9 1/2 oz. each)
- 1 1/2 lb. grated Swiss cheese
- 6 beaten eggs
- 3 1/2 cups light cream
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 2 tsp. black pepper
- 4 cans deviled ham (4 1/2 oz. each)

Prepare pie crust mix, following package directions; chill. Combine all other ingredients. Roll out chilled pastry and cut into circles, fitting them like cups into miniature muffin pans. Fill pastry cups with ham-cheese mixture and sprinkle tops with Parmesan cheese. After being chilled again, the Quickies can be removed from muffin pans and placed in disposable aluminum pans for freezing. Minutes before serving time, return the frozen Quickies to muffin pans. Bake at 450° for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 375° and bake 10 to 15 minutes longer or until brown. Makes about 75 miniature Quickies. Cost of ingredients: $4.50; cost of electricity: 2c.

The dredge is dredging Tabernacle Creek to allow a flow of water to the Lotus Gardens.

Dredging May Save Lotus

Last summer an article written by Mrs. Cecil Reed of Virginia Beach appeared in the American Horticulture Magazine telling how the stand of American lotus in Tabernacle Creek is disappearing.

The Cape Henry Woman's Club is determined not to let it happen. A dredge is currently cutting a canal to allow circulation of water through the lotus stand of American lotus in the United States.

"We are hoping the flow will improve conditions," said Col. Aubrey Holmes of the Soil Conservation Dept. "The flow of water has been practically all since the canal was diverted in 1961 for farm canals.

"We cannot say that this will change the growth. We just don't know," said Col. Holmes. "We do know that something has changed it since the farm canal was cut." He added that the salt content of the water has not increased appreciably since the lotus were at their peak of blooming.

The channel will be dredged approximately 3800-3900 feet up to the intersection with Salt Pond. This will allow circulation of bay tides too, which were also cut off in 1961.

In her article Mrs. Reed, research chairman of Cape Henry Woman's Club, pointed out that six acres of the lotus have disappeared completely from North Bay and that the lotus in Tabernacle Creek produce fewer blooms each year.

The Woman's Club adopted the lotus as their club flower when the club was formed almost 15 years ago. For 14 years they have sponsored the annual Lotus Festival each summer in cooperation with the Virginia Department of Conservation and Development. They are paying the cost of dredging.

American lotus are the only yellow ones. Lotus found in other countries are white or pink.

Nobody has any sure solution to the problem said Col. Holmes. "There's something that isn't as favorable for the growth of the lotus as it has been in the past. We know that the canal was one thing that was done."

He said that when winds are from the north the lotus are left out of the water. "With the dredging, favorable winds will circulate the water instead of letting it stagnate like it has."

Maybe the new year will also mean the revival of one of Virginia Beach's greatest natural attractions—that is if the Cape Henry Woman's Club has anything to say about it.

While you may have raised your glass of champagne from France and sung "Auld Lang Syne" when the clock struck 12 on New Year's Eve, your Japanese counterpart may have sipped cola from America while singing "Olanjoh Omedeto Goshimasu" (Happy Birthday to You) — for the stroke of midnight means it's everyone's birthday!

In ancient China, people took a different approach to the First Day. They cleaned house, paid debts and closed their shops. Then they shot off firecrackers . . . and who can ever forget a New Year's in Chinatown with its colorful procession of paper dragons breathing good cheer to everyone!

In old Japan, New Year's was a time for everybody to don new clothes, take three days off from work and visit their friends. Each gatepost would be adorned with green pines and bamboo. And over each door would hang red lobsters, crabs

Cooking Is an Art

My husband had to ice his own birthday cake.

I didn't intend for him to—not really. But everything happened at once.

I had an appointment at 4 p.m., so I started on the cake early. It was baked and out of the oven with plenty of time to spare. My first mistake was trying to make cooked icing. It scorched.

Well, I started all over again. And it scorched again. By this time I didn't have plenty of time, so I went out of the house, leaving behind two layers of cake and two pans of scorched syrup.

When I returned home, there was the cake beautifully iced. My husband said he just followed the same recipe in the book that I had.

But when I looked for the vanilla the next morning to put in a coffee cake, it was all gone. I asked my husband if he knew what had happened to it. He said he had used it all in the icing. In fact, he hadn't had "quite enough."

I told him there had been plenty. He said the recipe called for a tablespoon and a half. I told him it was supposed to be a teaspoon, not a tablespoon. Still unconvinced by me, he looked in the cookbook. For once I was right.

But that wasn't all. The following morning when we had pancakes, there was no syrup. Almost afraid of the answer, I asked my husband what had happened to it. Yes, he'd put it in the icing. He couldn't find the clear corn syrup.

The really amazing thing to me is that the icing was delicious. If I had tried that kind of substitution, all I would have gotten was a complete mess. In fact, a complete mess was what I got when I followed the recipe. Some days you just can't win.

To add insult to injury, I received three cookbooks as Christmas presents.

What Did You Do New Year's?

and scarlet tangerines, standing for long life and happiness.

Gypsies in Spain used to marry on New Year's Eve. The 18th century writer George Borrow tells us that a main feature of the bridal ceremony was the feasting associated with it. Once the Gypsy couple took their vows, guests swirled down sherry and ate and sang and danced throughout the night and day.

Not to be outdone, Italians just consider January 1st as part of their Yuletide festival, and so revel until Twelfth Night, 12 days after Christmas. In France, New Year's Day is so singular that adults let Christmas pass by and exchange presents on January 1st.

The ancient Egyptians, Phoenicians and Persians began their year at the autumnal equinox (Sept. 21) and the Greeks until the fifth century B.C. at the winter solstice (Dec. 21). The ancient Romans once celebrated the beginning of the year on Dec.

21st, but Caesar by the adoption of the Julian calendar postponed it to Jan. 1st.

Though wining, dining and merry-making have been traditional ways to celebrate New Year's, each country has its own technique. In Switzerland, not only people get all fired up, but also cannon: the peaceful Swiss shoot off all their cannon at midnight. Shaking and breaking is a popular technique in Italy, where New Year's is welcomed not only with dancing, but also by throwing old china into the fireplace!

On the other side of the ocean, however, rites marking the beginning of the new year were also practiced by many North American Indian groups, but the time varied.

These New Year's observances may seem strange. To denizens of other countries, however, current American customs may also seem peculiar. To quote one source on New Year's customs: "Many Occidental countries mark the passing of the old year and the arrival of the new year by elaborate balls, drinking and generally immoderate behavior in which, at midnight, everybody blows horns, rings bells, shouts, throws confetti, sings 'Should old acquaintance be forgot,' drinks additional toasts which are usually not needed, and as an important part of the ritual, tries to kiss all the prettiest girls in the party, who offer enthusiastic collaboration."

What Do You Do with Gift Plants?

How can you care for the beautiful potted plants which are such attractive gifts during the holiday season? Most of us wish they would last for several months and may be quite unhappy when they become unattractive in only a few weeks.

The lovely flowering plants from your florist usually are not the type which can be kept as permanent house plants. They were raised in a cool humid greenhouse. They do not take kindly to the hot, dry conditions in our homes. Therefore, treat them as long-lasting, cut flowers. Enjoy their beauty as long as possible, but don't be sad when they become unattractive and must be discarded.

You should, of course, give your gift plants the best care you can to retain their beauty as long as possible. Keep them cool with a temperature of 70 degrees Fahrenheit during the day and 60 degrees at night. Since most of our homes are warmer than this, the plants may stop flowering rather soon and become drab in color or drop their foliage and should be discarded.

A humid atmosphere is best for all house plants. You can help your plants by setting the pots on crushed stone or gravel in a pan of water. The water will evaporate and increase the humidity of the air around your plants. Do not have the pot in the water or the soil will become too wet.

Flowering plants need good light. They should receive as much sun as possible during the day, but should not be in a hot southwest window. And talking about temperature, do not locate your plants on the TV. Most sets have tubes which generate considerable heat so the top of your TV may be one of the warmest places in the room.

Water your gift plants regularly. They will use more water in your dry home than they did in the greenhouse. Don't soak the soil, but do apply enough water to keep it moist.

One last comment about environment. Keep your house plants out of drafts. This is especially true of poinsettias. If they are located in a draft the leaves are likely to drop.

Insect and disease control usually is not a serious problem with the healthy plants you will receive from your florist. Washing the leaves with soapy water at room temperature will control most insects and give the plant a fresh appearance.

Stem rot may be prevented by having your plants on a slight mound in the pot. The soil should be somewhat higher in the center to prevent water from collecting around the stem which might cause rot. If serious foliage diseases develop, the plants should be thrown out to reduce the possibility of its spreading to other plants.

Cineraria and cyclamen plants are satisfactory during only one rather short blooming period. They are raised from seeds and cannot be retained satisfactorily after their first flowering season is completed.

Azaleas and chrysanthemums may be saved for planting outside if they are hardy varieties. Check with the florist to determine whether the variety you have is suitable for outdoor planting. As a rule the results are not too good. You will be much more successful if you buy vigorous hardy varieties at planting time next spring.

The hydrangea and poinsettia varieties which are used for potted plants are not hardy in most sections of Virginia. They are perennial plants however, and can be retained for blooming next year if you have appropriate facilities. They must be allowed to have a rest period, followed by the propagation of new plants by cuttings. The procedure requires many months and is suggested only if you have a small home greenhouse.

VIRGINIA BEACH Garden Club News

Linkhorn Park

Mrs. Sam Meredith won the gold ribbon in Linkhorn Park Garden Club's annual Christmas doorway contest for the third straight year, thus earning permanent possession of a silver bowl.

Other winners were Mrs. F. Patrick Kavanaugh, blue; Mrs. H. Thomas Rose, red; Mrs. J. James Davis, Mrs. H. Wadell Waters and Mrs. William Phillips, yellow.

Judges were Mrs. John Keary Jr. of Kalamazoo, Mich., nationally known flower arranging authority, and Mrs. Wayne Grunden of Birdneck Point Garden Club.

Thalia

It was a community project when members of the Thalia Garden Club had their Christmas tree lighting ceremony on Dec. 21. Girl Scouts and Brownies, Boy Scouts and Cubs all took part, followed by Christmas caroling for all. In charge of the lighting were Mrs. J.R. Cromwell, Mrs. H.C. Watson, Mrs. R.S. White, Mrs. F.L. Leonard and Mrs. O.W. Self Jr.

On Dec. 22 the club's president, Mrs. H.J. Bissett, had an open house for members and their families at her home.

Bow Creek-P.A. Plaza

Winners of the Outdoor Decorations Contest in Princess Anne Plaza, are being announced by the sponsoring organizations and their presidents, the Plaza Civic League, Dan Rivera, president; Bow Creek Garden Club, Mrs. Robert Laver, president; and Princess Anne Plaza Garden Club, Mrs. William L. Boley, president.

The categories and winners are as follows: Religious, Mr. and Mrs. Earl McCracken, Capital Hill Lane; Artistic, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Beard, Jr., Appian Way; 2nd, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hitchcock, Jr., Bow Creek Blvd.; 3rd, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Pate, Stancil Street; General, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Brown, Elmwood Road; 2nd, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Medley, Bow Creek Blvd.

Judging was done by members of the Great Neck Estates Civic League and prizes were donated by John Aragona Enterprises, Larasan Realty, Plaza Home Center and Kempsville Florist and Gift Shop. Awards will be presented at the Jan. 7 Civic League meeting at 8 p.m. at Princess Anne Plaza United Methodist Church.

Only 20 per cent of all serious accidents in a convertible involve a rollover. In the other 80 per cent, seat belts would prevent ejection.

Beauty Costs Small Fortune

The experts are finding out what every woman already knows: The cost of beauty runs high. How high?

According to "Drug Trade News," Americans (men as well as women) spent a whopping $5 billion for such beauty aids as lipstick ($217 million); face powder ($55 million); cleansing creams, powder puffs, eye makeup and face lotions ($830 million); hair products ($1.3 billion); hand products ($186 million); and toiletries such as perfumes, bath salts, and deodorants ($1.7 billion). Oral hygiene products and shaving products came to almost $1.5 billion.

For just how much sums like $5 billion can buy, in fiscal 1966 such federal agencies as the Office of Economic Opportunity spent less than $1.5 million; the Housing and Urban Development Department spent about $7 billion for its many vital programs.

Pruning isn't done just to satisfy a requirement for gardening, but rather for specific purposes: To rejuvenate weak plants; to remove insect pests and diseases from sick plants; to promote interesting branch formation and bark patterns; and to cause earlier flowering. On some plants, such as roses it is possible to develop larger flowers on longer stems by pruning to reduce the number of flowering shoots.

Summer-flowering shrubs can be pruned during the fall and winter. Those flowering shrubs and roses that made vigorous growth this past season may be pruned back to prevent winter damage, from wind, ice and snow. Final pruning should be done in the spring prior to new growth. However, when pruning in the fall and winter, do not prune spring flowering shrubs because you will cut off the spring flowers.

Army Sees Navy Side Question Is Answered -- Finally

"After being out in the boonies for a couple of months, this is a real surprise to see this side of the Army," remarked one of the 15 patients from the 67th Medical Evacuation Hospital who boarded a Command Control Q-Boat for a cruise of the inner Qui Nhon harbor.

Brig. Gen. D. H. Richards, commanding general Qui Nhon Support Command, volunteered the Q-Boat and coordinated with Lt. Col. Robert Buchman, 67th Evac Hospital commander, in setting up the excursion. The 65-foot long Q-Boat and her five man crew are on constant call to Gen. Richards, who was on deck for the first hour-long harbor tour on Nov. 11.

The cruise around the harbor was piloted by skipper, Sgt. I. C. William W. Austin of Virginia Beach and manned by crewman, Spec. 5 Mark F. Bascom, deckhand, Charles L. Conant assistant engineer, and Pfc. James R. Sprinkle, radio operator.

Encouraged to ask questions in the initial briefing by skipper Austin, the patients, all in advanced states of recovery, were curious about the capabilities of the ship. "The most frequent questions concerned the boat's speed and range," Sgt. Austin recalled. Top speed is around 12 knots at 2000 RPMs. He added, "And practically every man wanted to know if it handled like a car."

A patient from California who is recovering from fragment wounds recalled, "This cruise takes me back home to San Diego because before I came into the Army I worked around the harbor on yachts."

Most of the other excursionists had no previous nautical experience but were nonetheless enthusiastic about the boat ride. An Army cook observed, "I never thought I'd see this side of the war--the Navy side."

His buddy from Bon Son chided in, "Neither did I. But Navy life looks pretty good from here."

The patients were accompanied by Lt. Col. Ouida Mire, chief nurse of the 67th Evac, 1st Lt. Terry Werner, assistant head nurse of the duty wards, and an Army corpsman.

Col. Mire said the men were selected for the harbor trip through recommendations by their attending physicians. "When a man advances enough in his recovery that he can take care of himself, then chances are good that he will make the trip," the chief nurse explained.

Gen. Richards offered the services of his boat and crew as a morale booster for the men. Col. Mire said, adding, "and it seems to be a real success."

As they disembarked, heading back to the hospital, the men had widely varied, but consistently favorable comments. "Up tight!" a Pfc. announced. "How do you get a job like this?" queried another.

Robert Wood is alive and living in California!

And the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, as well as Mrs. Shirley Roberts of the 500 block of Mango Drive in Virginia Beach, is quite happy to find out about it.

The Robert Wood mystery began over two years ago when Mrs. Roberts wrote to a question and answer column then being published in the SUN, asking for information on artist Robert Wood, whose paintings were and are often displayed in newspapers and national magazines. Wood is always called "America's favorite landscape artist."

Mrs. Roberts had seen some of his paintings and, being interested in the arts, was interested in finding out more about him. Her investigation failed. She wrote the SUN, and our investigation also failed.

This was our first question directed to the column and the inability to find the answer was at best frustrating. We checked art and art history books, with a source at the fine arts department of Old Dominion College, the Virginia Beach library, the Norfolk library, with Richmond, Virginia Beach and Tidewater artists and with just about anyone connected with the arts.

Many people had heard of him or had seen his work, but none knew anything about him. His name appeared in no available books. We admitted defeat and told Mrs. Roberts so in our edition of Nov. 10, 1966.

As a reporter an unanswered question like this one remained on my mind. I thought of Wood often whenever I saw an advertisement for his paintings. Mrs. Roberts was the one, however, who finally came up with the answer.

After another inquiry about Wood to the NEW YORK TIMES also failed in 1967, she went to the Windsor Woods Library early this year and told her plight to the three librarians on duty. Two had never heard of Wood. The other had. She knew of his brother, a dentist who lived in Palm Springs Calif., and that Robert Wood's paintings were often sold in Laguna Beach, Calif.

Mrs. Roberts wrote the Chamber of Commerce there for the name of the gallery. Months later the answer came. She wrote to the gallery in August of this year and enclosed reproductions have been made and sold of works by Robert Wood than by any other artist, living or dead, including the old masters.

The VIRGINIA BEACH SUN is grateful to Mrs. Roberts and to Robert Wood for helping give this story a successful conclusion.

Calif. He is still an outstanding art figure on the west coast. Wood has been painting for 60 years, and his marine, sunset and landscape paintings are considered quite valuable. The price of some has reached into the thousands of dollars. But mostly he is known for the reproductions of his works. More a letter for Wood. Apparently the letter was delayed, but last week the search was over. She received a Christmas card from Caryl and Robert Wood from Bishop, Calif., a mountain town. The card had a photo of one of his landscape paintings on the front.

On the back, he wrote her a personal note, pointing out that the letter had just been forwarded, and said, "I enjoyed your letter, Thank you." He also sent a brochure with information about himself. So for the record, Robert Wood was born on the south coast of England in 1889, the son of a famous English artist, W. J. Wood. Young Robert exhibited great talent in his youth and attended art schools for seven years beginning at the age of 12. He won numerous awards and honors.

He came to America as a young man, traveled and studied the country extensively and painted its landscapes. Eventually he made his way to Carmel, then Laguna Beach,

Cox High Helps Children

The Cox High School S. C. A. held its annual Christmas Party for underprivileged children on Saturday, Dec. 21.

Co-chairmen Jamie Gray and Bill Lehaye collected toys, balloons, and food from organizations in the school and throughout the city during the week. Saturday morning Cox students carried the party to the children via bus.

Saturday night the Key Club sponsored the annual Holly-wreath Ball in the Cox gym. The band was the Venerable Bedes.

Toll Rates to Stay

No changes in the present system of toll rates was recommended in a recent analysis made of traffic and revenue of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel.

The consulting engineers firm making the study, Wilbur Smith and Associates, recently submitted the summary of their findings and recommendations to Lucius J. Kellam, chairman of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge and Tunnel District.

Results of the analysis show that toll revenues decreased by 2.8 per cent during the past fiscal year over the preceding year. The period covered in the analysis was from June 1967 through June 1968. The decrease in revenue was accompanied by a decrease in each vehicle class category of Bridge-Tunnel users.

Several factors were listed as having produced this result: the closing of the project during Christmas of 1967 following a ship collision; the static improvement made to the approach highways of the Bridge-Tunnel south of Norfolk, particularly U.S. Route 13 and U.S. Route 17; and the increase of air travel from this area to and from the north.

Also mentioned as a possible factor is the number of military personnel who have been diverted from the Norfolk area to other parts of the nation. Most recommendations made to the Tunnel Commission were to continue the present program. The commission was told, however, to make a critical review of the amount of funds in the public relations program expended for radio-

TV ads and travel organization contributions.

In spite of the decrease of traffic during the past fiscal year, the report stated that there is a potential of growth for the Bridge-Tunnel. This potential is Virginia traffic and motorists destined to other points on Delmarva in Maryland and Delaware.

According to the report, "It is this segment of the total traffic universe which has the greatest potential in the future and to this end, every effort should be made to encourage and develop this type of travel."

According to Leon Johnson, chief engineer and assistant director of the commission, a summary of vehicular and passenger traffic for the past 10 months shows, however, there is an upsurge of figures over the same calendar period of last year in all but one vehicular category. Automobiles increased 3.06%, trucks increased 7.28% and buses decreased 18.74%. This same period shows a decrease in passenger traffic of 1.90%.

Johnson also said that total receipts for this period are about $200,000 ahead of the comparable period last year.

No Decision Made on Stadium

Virginia Beach has been invited by Chesapeake Delegate Robert E. Gibson to join a four-city joint venture to build a stadium large enough to attract major league football and college bowl games.

Gibson has asked that Norfolk and Virginia Beach join Chesapeake and Portsmouth in the project by appointing their allotted members to the Tidewater Recreation and Stadium Authority.

The Authority was created by the 1968 session of the Virginia General Assembly. The state law allows each of the four cities to appoint two members to the Authority. The Virginia Beach City Council has discussed joining the stadium venture, but has made no appointments to the Authority.

In a recent letter sent to all councilmen of the four cities involved, Gibson expressed disapproval of Norfolk's plan to build a smaller stadium of its own. He contends that the smaller stadium will not meet the recreational needs of the Tidewater area.

Bank Has Plan of Investment

Five-year investment certificates, an innovation in bank savings, are being introduced by First & Merchants National Bank this week.

Robert L. Gordon, Jr., president, said that the five-year guaranteed five per cent investment certificates accrue interest compounded quarterly. Held to maturity, the investment guarantees a gain of 28.2%. "A $1,000 certificate today will be worth $1,282 in five years," explained Gordon.

The action follows a boost in the discount rate on loans stemming from the Federal Reserve Bank's rate increase announced last week. According to Gordon, the investment certificate plan should attract additional deposit money that will help the bank balance out the demand for loans.

"We want to continue to have money available for our customers," said Gordon. "The investment plan makes for a greater return on the customer's savings and we expect it to attract more time-deposit money for loans."

According to Gordon, the new plan provides that with 90 days written notice, a customer can withdraw all or part of the investment with no interest loss under existing regulations. They are also being offered to businesses as well as individuals.

Navy Ens. Gary R. Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Thompson of Lynch Lane, has made his first solo flight.

Retailers To Attend Exhibits

Many retailers from this section are expected to go to Bluefield, W. Va. Jan. 5-6-7 for two big semi-annual merchandise exhibits that make up the largest apparel market in a several state area.

Two residents of Virginia Beach are very active in the Bluefield Fashion Exhibitors Event: Milton Soffer is vice president of the association and Everett Stone is on the board of directors.

Newest spring and summer fashions will be unveiled at the Appalachian Buyers Convention at the West Virginia Hotel and the Bluefield Fashion Exhibitors show at the new National Guard Armory. A shuttle bus will connect the two events.

Cox High Is Team to Watch

The basketball season moves into high gear this Friday night, and the next two months will be devoted to the sport. Then at the end of February the tournaments begin.

The surprise team of the young season so far is Cox, still unbeaten in four outings. And the schedule for the next month favors the Falcons. Their first major test of strength may not come until early in February when they meet the Maury Commodores. Maury made its debut late this year, and, as expected, is also unbeaten in four games, the last two played during the Christmas vacation. Booker T. Washington, on the other hand, the other team expected to be a leading contender in the Eastern District, has lost one game. But that loss was to independent Norfolk Catholic, which is still unbeaten also. The game does not count on the standing however.

Princess Anne, expected to be the Virginia Beach leader, lost in its last outing before the Christmas break, to Cox by two points. Kellam is having a rather disappointing season so far, having lost already to rivals Princess Anne, Cox and Kempville. The loss to Kempville was by one point. The young Kempville five, with no senior class to add height, are turning in an acceptable job so far, with their only bad defeat at the hands of Norfolk.

Hapless Bayside, a non-winner in football this year, has also lost its first four games in basketball, and the prospects are quite dim for the rest of the season also.

First Colonial, after a brilliant football season so far, has only managed to beat Bayside, and has lost its other three games to PA, Kempville and Cox.

Union Kempville, in its last season this year before the school ceases to be a high school and becomes a special education center, has been beaten by Norfolk of Portsmouth and has soundly whipped Westside of Smithfield. The Tigers do not get underway again until a week from tomorrow, Jan. 10, against a strong G. W. Carver of Chesapeake.

This weekend has a full slate of games for Virginia Beach teams. Tomorrow night, Bayside is at Kellam, Cox is at Kempville and First Colonial is at Princess Anne. Then on Saturday night Indian River is at Cox and Lake Taylor is at Kellam.

Next Tuesday finds Cox at Bayside, Norfolk at First Colonial and Princess Anne at Kellam.

No Virginia Beach team meets the leaders, Maury and Booker T. until the following weekend, when Princess Anne plays host to Maury, Booker T. come to Virginia Beach to play Kellam on Tuesday, Jan. 14.

As the leaders continue to romp and build impressive records the team to watch in Virginia Beach could be Cox High School. If they fall, Princess Anne's Cavaliers will be waiting in the wings.

Jamboree to Honor Many

The Virginia Beach Sports Club annual Jamboree will be held Monday, Jan. 6, at the Cavalier Hotel. The popular event is expected to be a sell-out again this year, as it has been in the past.

Headlining the program this year will be Joe Paterno, who coached his Penn State Nittany Lions to an unbeaten football season in 1968 and a trip to the Orange Bowl yesterday.

The master of ceremonies for the evening will be the famous Cajun comedian Justin Wilson, well-known for his tall tales of south Louisiana.

Special awards will also be presented at the banquet. Mike Barnett, Olympic basketball player, will be honored as Tidewater's most outstanding athlete. University of Virginia's outstanding halfback, Frank Quayle will be honored as the state's outstanding college football player.

First Colonial High School, which owns a share of the Eastern District football crown in 1968 will receive two awards. Frank Webster will be cited as coach of the year in Virginia Beach and the Patriots' fleetfooted quarterback Les Whitehouse will be honored as the city's top scholastic football player.

In addition the Sportsman of the Year award will be presented. The recipient of that honor is kept secret until the night of the jamboree. Last year's winner was George Parr.

The new president of the Virginia Beach Sports Club, Richard Kilpe, is chairman of the Jamboree. Bob Johnson, outgoing president, will install the new officers.

Besides Kline, the new officers are: Ist vice president, Al Wilson; 2nd vice president, Charles J. (Mickey) Hayes; secretary, Phil Denman; treasurer, George Darden; and sgt. at arms, Howard (Moe) Saunders.

Waring Tickets Are Being Sold

Tickets are now on sale for "The Fred Waring Show," coming to Norfolk City Arena on Jan. 18 at 8 p.m.

The tickets may be purchased at the Shrine Office located at Freemason and Duke Streets in Norfolk. The prices for the tickets are $5, $4.50 and $3.50. The show is being sponsored by Khedive Shrine.

Bicycles Need Licenses

City officials are reminding residents of Virginia Beach who received new bicycles recently of the need for a license.

Such a license could prove invaluable to owners of bicycles which may be lost or stolen and later recovered by the city's police department. The information supplied the city at the time of obtaining a license will assist in locating rightful owners of bicycles.

In obtaining bicycle license the city will require information as to the make of the bicycle, its size, color, serial number and whether it is a boys' or girls' bicycle. A fee of $1 is charged for each bicycle, and the license is valid for the life of the bicycle.

During January bicycle licenses will be on sale at the City Treasurer's Office at Princess Anne Courthouse, City Hall Annex, 19th Street and Erie Avenue; Woods took Elementary School on Providence Road and Third Police Precinct on Independence Blvd.

After Feb. 1 licenses may be obtained only at the Princess Anne Courthouse and City Hall Annex offices of the City Treasurer.

First & Merchants introduces a new way for you to invest.

A five year-guaranteed 5% Investment Certificate, with interest compounded quarterly.

Guaranteed growth from your Straight Talk Bank.

Regardless of how the economy or interest rates fluctuate. Regardless of anything. This investment certificate keeps on giving you 5% interest.

The Straight Talk people at First & Merchants guarantee it.

And with this new investment plan, your interest is compounded quarterly. The first quarter you're paid 5% on your original funds. After the second quarter, you're paid the same 5% on your original funds . . . as well as on the first quarter's interest. And so on.

Actually, when held to maturity, your investment gains a return of 28.2%. If you invested $10,000, in five years you'd have $12,820.

Quick Action Nabs Suspects

Replies Are Down To Earth

Three-quarters of those who answered last week's SUN SURVEY question, "Should the U.S. continue its costly space explorations of the moon and the planets in the face of so many domestic and international programs considered in the best interests of the country?" said "No."

Not all of those in the remaining 25 percent were totally in favor of continuing in all phases. Most said they felt that we were committed to the moon program and should go ahead with a try to land a man there this year or next.

But after that apparently serious doubts arise as to the merits of further explorations. Those who indicated they were against wrote notes that were emphatic in their opposition.

While the public opinion survey does not profess to represent the entire thinking of the residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent the thinking of a cross section of the people who took time to clip the survey and return it to us.

Your attention is called to this week's SUN SURVEY question also, which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of the page.

Each week a new question will appear. The questions will be timely, and the more answers we receive the more responsible the opinion.

SUN SURVEY

QUESTION: Should the electoral college be abolished and the President of the United States elected solely on the plurality of popular votes?

☐ YES ☐ NO

Clip and return to: VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, Box 657, Virginia Beach, Va. 23451.

Fast, efficient work on the part of Virginia Beach police resulted in the arrest of three suspects within minutes of the robbery of the Atlantic Jewelry & Loan Co. at 2310 Atlantic Ave. about noon Monday.

Within moments of the robbery report, telephoned to police by the shop owner Arthur Salzberg, 53, police units had arrived at the scene of the robbery. Other units were being dispatched to locations which would block off roadways leading from the region.

Officer Joseph R. Shortal, was enroute to the robbery scene when he witnessed an auto driven by a man going in the opposite direction. Shortal said he pursued the car, at speeds near 100 mph, along Atlantic Avenue and Shore Drive. As the chase continued along Shore Drive Shortal reported seeing at least two other people in the car "bobbing up and down", and requested a road block be set up in the vicinity of Great Neck Road and Shore Drive.

Juvenile Division Sgt. Douglas McCloud, and his partner Det. J. E. Haslinger, who were near the Ft. Story west gate swung onto Shore Drive ahead of the fleeing auto, with Shortal still in pursuit, in an attempt to slow the suspect auto down.

According to Shortal the suspect auto slowed as it approached the road block, and attempted to make a U-turn to escape in the opposite direction. At this point Shortal said he eased his patrol car against the suspect vehicle, blocking escape of the occupants. As Shortal held the suspects under guard, he was joined by other police officers.

A search of the suspects' auto produced four hand guns, a quantity of ammunition, several hundreds of dollars in cash and a large assortment of jewelry and cameras. In addition, a small amount of cash, with the exception of one gun believed used during the robbery, were taken from the Atlantic Avenue shop.

The suspects have been identified as Bernice Porter, 22; Leon Daughtry, 23; and Herman Bracy, 23, all of Portsmouth. They are scheduled to appear in Virginia Beach Municipal Court tomorrow on charges of armed robbery.

In reconstructing the crime, police quoted Salzberg as saying two men and a woman came into his store inquiring about pawning a ring. One of the men then reportedly pulled a gun on Salzberg and told him, "This is a stick up." According to Salzberg the men then forced him into a back room and tied his hands. Before the trio fled they apparently ripped open the store safe, which Salzberg said contained approximately $1500, rifled the cash drawer, and went through cases containing jewelry and cameras. Salzberg freed himself and phoned police.

Shortal said his records indicated a lapse of 14 minutes from the time of his receiving the robbery report until the apprehension of the suspects.

Excuses, Postpone Opening

The flu season has been cited as one of the reasons for the postponement of opening bids for the city's new 18-hole golf course adjoining Redwing Park. The bids were advertised just before Christmas with opening set for last Monday, Jan. 6, at 2 p.m., in City Manager Roger Scott's office.

Few bids were submitted by that time and Scott was encouraged to call for the postponement. He said a number of firms which would have ordinarily submitted bids were unable to do so for a variety of reasons.

High on the list of reasons was absences caused by the flu. That was followed closely by lack of personnel to offer a bid because of the holidays. Short notice was also listed.

Scott figures the flu season should be about over by 10 a.m. Friday, Jan. 31. That's the new date set for opening the golf course bids.

The course, which should be ready late this year, is to be built on land acquired by the city from the state military reservation at Camp Pendleton.

Appointments, Zoning Expected

Monday's City Council meeting will probably be a long one, particularly the zoning part of it. At least 33 items will come up for consideration for the first time, plus some deferred items. A total of 1,562 apartments and townhouses in a number of large and small projects in all sections of the city lead the zoning docket.

Last month some apartment development action was deferred because of school problems in the areas. No doubt some of the new items will be studied by City Council quite closely as to school needs and existing schools.

The matter of schools and the possibility of another school bond issue in the near future will have a direct relationship to the next operating budget and possibility of a tax hike to pay for it. Budget hearings are underway by the city manager and department heads now.

A number of appointments also look before City Council Monday. Council met in executive session at the conclusion of the informal meeting last Monday to discuss probable appointments to various boards, commissions and committees.

The Tidewater Home Builders Association has appointed Howard Weisburg, Fred Neapolitano, Lawrence Sancio, Lee A. Gifford and M. J. Evans to a committee that will meet with Council-appointed members to iron out the above problems between the home building industry and city government. Council's members will be appointed Monday.

Council is also expected to appoint a replacement on the Tidewater Virginia Development Council Board of trustees for George C. C. Phillips, who is deceased.

At the request of Council's representative to the ad hoc community college board, Albert Bonney, Council must appoint three representatives from Virginia Beach to the 12-man four-city Tidewater community college board. None may be an elected official.

The newly trimmed nine-man Ad Board will also be appointed, but no complete change in personnel is expected, although the board which handles the city's $135,000 advertising budget is being cut from 17 to nine members. Final passage of that action also comes Monday.

In addition Council is finally expected to appoint a representative to the Hampton Roads Stadium Authority, created last year by the Virginia General Assembly. So far Chesapeake, which initiated the cooperative authority, is the only city to appoint one.

In informal session last Monday Council agreed to go along with City Manager Roger Scott's recommendations not to increase sharply the salaries of the assistant commonwealth's attorney as has been requested by Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans.

Scott said he could not see raising those salaries while others in like categories in the city would not receive raises.

It was also pointed out to Evans that he had a larger full-time staff than any other city of like size and population in Virginia, even exclusive of the two police investigators he also has. The same was true of his request for another legal secretary which Council denied. Scott said he has more secretaries than others in like situations.

Scott added that this was the first request from Evans ever turned down and said that if the State Compensation Board would okay those raises the city would go along and pay its half.

Evans said he was having difficulty keeping qualified assistants at the authorized salaries. His top assistant, Joseph L. Lyle, Jr., left the office Jan. 2 to enter private law practice, although he is helping out on a part-time basis. No replacement has been hired. Lyle's salary was $12,000, Evans sought $15,000.

Council also heard a request Monday for about eight acres of land adjacent to Virginia Beach Junior High School by the Virginia Beach Little League Inc. The private organization is seeking a permanent home for a four-field facility to be built at its expense if the land is donated. Council is investigating, but appeared to favor the request. It was pointed out that in other boroughs of the city permanent facilities are available.

Council will also consider the appropriation of $11,687 as the city's half of a culvert project along Five Forks Road put in by Lee A. Gifford. The project costs about $7,000 more than had been agreed to by the city more than a year ago.

Patients Move into New Wing

Virginia Beach General Hospital opened its new 50-bed extended care unit Monday.

Twelve patients were moved from the annex on 25th and Arctic into the unit, which is located to the north of the main hospital on First Colonial Road. The addition houses patients' rooms and the Physical Therapy Department.

Area-wise the Physical Therapy Department is about three times as large as it formerly was. In addition to the extra room the department has acquired an important piece of equipment, a Hubbard Tank. This is a large tank in which the patient can be completely submerged for hydrotherapy.

The hospital annex on 25th Street, which was reactivated because of an acute shortage of beds, has been closed. This, however, is a temporary measure. The annex will be renovated since it is felt that an increase in population and additions to the hospital staff will eventually necessitate its reopening.

According to Earl Willis, administrator of the hospital, the new addition will make operations considerably easier, eliminating the problems caused by working out of two buildings four miles apart.

Willis has also said that plans are being made for a third floor to be built over the hospital's East, West and South wings. This addition will make room for another 68 medical-surgical beds and 11 intensive care coronary beds.

At the same time the third floor is built a fourth floor will be provided for. The fourth floor will have the walls and roof built so that the costs will be less when the floor is completed in the future.

Willis says the construction might begin some time this summer.

Present plans, which will cost $3.6 million, are a modification in view of the loss of the Hill-Burton Act funds. Had the hospital received the funding the hospital would have completed both the third and fourth floors, adding space for 138 beds.

A fund drive will be held this spring to help finance the construction. Over $1 million is aimed for in the drive. Money that cannot be raised in gifts and pledges will be obtained by long term borrowing.

Field Is Open for Candidates

With the Democratic primary for Virginia Beach's two members of the House of Delegates still six months away, the field is apparently wide open.

Until a few days ago it was expected that the incumbent delegates, Kenneth Whitehurst, Jr. and B. R. Middleton, would be shoo-ins. It was also expected they would run together, although elected from varying factions two years ago.

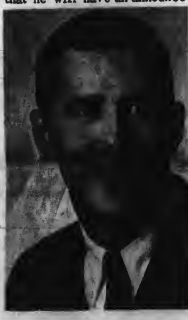

Since that time the two worked closely together on legislation during the 1968 session of the Virginia General Assembly and later in the year were co-campaign managers in Virginia Beach for Rep. Robert Downing's successful re-election bid.

But with the announcement last weekend that Whitehurst will not seek re-election "because of business and personal reasons", the entire picture is changed.

He said his decision was influenced partly by his recently opening a new law office to which he feels he must devote much time as possible.

Middleton said he was quite surprised by the stand taken by Whitehurst, although he knew of the decision before it was publicly announced. He added that he will have an announcement

Whitehurst

Changes Continue

The first week of operation of the Virginia Beach Police Department under the direction of W. W. Davis gives every indication of continued improvement of the efficiency for which the department has been noted during the past six years.

Chief Davis' reorganization of the department places it on the level of modern metropolitan police department operations.

Included in new positions created by Chief Davis is that of "Administrative Aide", Miss Donna Alvis, who was employed for the past six years in the Chesapeake city purchasing department, has been named to the position.

Former Det. Sgt. Warren Grant has been promoted to acting lieutenant, and named to another new position by Chief Davis as his "Executive Aide". Lt. Grant will concern himself primarily with assisting Chief Davis in planning, budget, and research matters, as well as handling press releases from Davis' office.

Another new position created by Chief Davis is that of "Training and Personnel Aide", Lt. C. W. Simmons, formerly assigned to the Detective Division, has been named to this office. Simmons told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN he will devote a large portion of his time to departmental supply and recruitment and processing of new personnel, in addition to establishing a full time "in service" training program.

Capt. R. C. Davis, who formerly commanded the 2nd Precinct, has been named director of the Detective Division. When asked how he viewed the new assignment Capt. Davis said that while he "certainly will miss the people of the precinct who have worked so well with me over the past four years... who had extended so much cooperation and understanding... I'm pleased to once again return to the Detective Division. Davis formerly served in the Division in the early 60's and intend to meet it's challenges. Many things have changed, but with the high caliber obvious in personnel assigned to the division the transition should not be too difficult."

Other changes made by Chief Davis included transferring Capt. G. C. Riley from executive officer to 1st Precinct C.O., Capt. W. J. Moore, Jr., from 3rd Precinct C.O. to 2nd Precinct C.O., and Capt. H. C. Terry from 1st Precinct C.O. to 3rd Precinct C.O.

Various operational offices within the department have also been renamed by Chief Davis. The Juvenile and Detective Bureaus were designated as the Juvenile and Detective Divisions, while the Central Files Bureau will become the Central Services Division.

Chief Davis indicates that other reorganizational and operational changes are in the planning stages, and that he is awaiting outcome of budgetary requests before publicly outlining what these will involve.

First Baby Bides Time

The stork might spend a lot of time circling over the General Hospital of Virginia Beach, but he doesn't land very often.

According to the maternity ward at the hospital the first baby of 1969 was born on Jan. 2 at 8:41 a.m. The baby boy, Christopher Holmes Foster, was born to Mr. and Mrs. John H. Foster. He weighed seven pounds, 7 1/2 ounces.

Christopher Holmes Foster was preceded three days earlier by the last baby of 1968—also a boy, Stephen Michael Crain, born to Mr. and Mrs. George Stephen Crain, made his appearance on Dec. 30th at 1:09 a.m. He weighed in at five pounds, 11 ounces.

Liquor Sales Top $3 Million

Virginia Beach residents and visitors spent $3,528,361.39 on wines and liquors in state liquor stores in the resort city during fiscal 1968, which ended June 30, 1968.

According to the annual report of the Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board the store in the 3100 block of Pacific Avenue topped all others in the city.

The total sales there including the state taxes were $1,031,028.57. After all taxes and expenses were paid, the net profit for this store alone was $178,152.61.

The other store in Virginia Beach Borough traditionally does the second largest amount of business in the city, but this report shows that the store at 4722 Indian River Rd. edged it out this time. The total there was $721,702.55, with a net profit of $117,992.89.

The store at 2000 Atlantic Ave. only did $718,514.65, with a net profit of $109,316.16. This store, incidentally, is the ninth oldest in the state, having been opened on May 30, 1934, only two weeks after the sale of liquor in Virginia was legal again.

The store in the Princess Anne Plaza Shopping center reported sales of $564,750.02, with a net profit of $91,992.23. The city's newest liquor store in Pembroke Mall Shopping Center bring up the rear with sales of $492,365.60, with a net profit of $77,003.31.

These totals do not include sale of spirits on military installations, which is high, although no exact figures are available. Sales of liquor brought into the state from other areas are not included either. Liquor may be brought into the country legally in certain quantities from other countries.

The bridge construction of South Lynnhaven Road is about half completed. It was due to reopen Jan. 6.

Study Picks 6 Libraries

Six Virginia Beach public school libraries have been selected for a pilot study of the types of tasks performed by personnel in school libraries.

The schools are: Plaza Elementary, Arrowhead Elementary, First Colonial High School, Kings Grant Elementary (despite its recent fire), Linkhorn Park Elementary and Frank W. Cox High School.

The American Association of School Librarians, through the School Library Manpower Project funded by the Knapp Foundation of North Carolina, Inc., has embarked upon a national study to identify the tasks performed by personnel in school libraries.

The study is designed to improve the preparation of the school library staff. The Research Division of the National Education Association has been chosen to carry out Phase 1 of the five-year project, the identification of school systems having superior school library programs.

On the basis of a "Criteria of Excellence" established by the NEA Research Division, the Virginia Beach School System has been invited to participate in the study. The Criteria of Excellence states that a library at the school level must be a center with a unified service program involving various types of print and non-print materials; electronic devices, etc., in support of the learning process. The school library must be an integral part of the school's instructional program contributing to the development and implementation of the total curriculum and achievement of the educational objectives of the school.

Address For Taxes Changes

Individual Federal income tax returns should no longer be filed with the Internal Revenue Service district offices in Virginia, but with the IRS Service Center, Philadelphia, Pa. 19155, beginning Jan. 1. This applies both to tax returns and remittances and those with refunds due.

The IRS Mid-Atlantic Region, which includes Virginia, is the latest to require direct filing of all individual income tax returns with IRS regional service centers, under a law enacted Nov. 2, 1966. Boyle, District Director of Internal Revenue, said recently.

Direct filing of returns will eliminate initial handling at the district office, and avoid necessity for trans-shipment to the Philadelphia Service Center.

Boyle emphasized that direct filing will in no way curtail services taxpayers have been accustomed to receiving from the IRS district office. He said, "By relieving the district office of the burden of receiving returns and preparing them for trans-shipment, we will have a greater opportunity to render services to taxpayers."

City to Oppose Rates

The Richmond law firm of Hunton, Williams, Gay, Powell, & Gibson has been retained by City Manager Roger Scott to represent the city of Virginia Beach in an opposition to a proposed rate increase of Princess Anne Utilities. The company is seeking a quarterly rate of $16.50, as opposed to the present quarterly rate of $12 for sewage services. The Hampton Roads Sanitation District, which will assume the company's sewage treatment in the near future, has formally requested approval of the rate increase from the State Corporation Commission. The request is scheduled to be aired in a public hearing in Richmond on Feb. 12.

Year Sentence Given

A 21-year-old Florence, Ala. man has been sentenced to 12 months in jail in Virginia Beach Circuit Court after pleading guilty to a charge of disturbing the peace. Robert E. Campbell had been charged with possession of narcotics, but the court accepted his plea of guilty to the lesser charge. Police said Campbell was arrested Sept. 19 following discovery of a quantity of marijuana during an investigation at 17th Street and Atlantic Avenue. Judge Paul W. Ackiss ruled Campbell must serve 90 days of the sentence, with the remainder of the sentence being suspended.

Who Crashed?

Mystery surrounds events leading to the crash of a light plane, owned by Douglas Earl Morgner of Virginia Beach, in a cornfield near the South Norfolk Airport last weekend. The plane was found in the field about 100 feet from the end of the airport's east-west runway. Morgner is quoted as saying he has no knowledge of who may have been flying the plane. Investigators said they were told of an auto being seen at the airport and hearing the sound of a plane's engine a number of hours before the discovery of the plane.

Billups Convicted

Herbert (Beanie) Billups, 19, of Pandora Avenue, received a 15-year sentence in the state penitentiary in Circuit Court following conviction of a series of charges involving store-breaking, armed robbery and statutory burglary. The store-breaking charge involved illegal entry of the Diamond Springs Road offices of the Sandler & Sons seafood company, with the company nightwatchman Julius Selby identified as the victim of the armed robbery. The statutory burglary offenses were allegedly committed at the Frank W. Cox High School, the John B. Dey School and Brooks Storage & Transfer Co., Inc. on Diamond Springs Roads.

Glue Sniffing Charged

Five 16-year-old youths are scheduled to appear in Virginia Beach Juvenile Court next Tuesday charged with violating State laws which make glue sniffing a misdemeanor. Police officials said the five allegedly engaged in glue sniffing during a Dec. 29 auto ride through the Princess Anne Plaza, Windsor Woods and Malibu sections of the city. According to police 17-year-old Leslie McGrady of Chesapeake accidentally strangled to death during an illness reportedly brought on by glue sniffing during this auto ride. Investigation indicated the six juveniles had purchased at least eight tubes of glue from various stores as they rode through the city.

Fire Hits Little Island

Volunteers from the Princess Anne Courthouse, Chesapeake Beach, London Bridge, Davis Corner and Ocean Park fire departments were joined by Coast Guard units in a four hour battle with a marsh fire Sunday at the Little Island Recreation Area. The flames cut a path a mile long a half mile wide through the area before being extinguished. Fire fighters had to use water from a pond near the Back Bay National Wildlife Refuge Headquarters to battle the flames. Firemen managed to contain the flames before they reached a kerosene storage area, and there were no reports of any injuries. Early investigation indicated the fire may have been started by fire works which ignited some brush and were fed by winds before the flames could be extinguished.

Liquor

Estimates for the next fiscal year are much higher and will reflect about six months of sales of spirits for those establishments which have liquor-by-the-drink licenses.

C. of C. Sets Annual Meeting

The annual Chamber of Commerce dinner meeting will be held on Jan. 21 at 6:30 p.m. in the Virginia Beach Civic Center.

Base Cited for Youth Program

A citation for assistance to disadvantaged youth, signed by Hubert H. Humphrey, the Vice President of the United States, has been received by the Commanding Officer, Naval Air Station Oceana.

Written in behalf of the President's Council on Youth Opportunity, the commendation is in appreciation for outstanding accomplishments in supporting the program to enhance opportunities for disadvantaged youth during the summer of 1968. Under the program, underprivileged youths were helped in the fields of employment, education, health and recreation.

Assistance received from NAS Oceana helped materially in improving the lives of the young Americans involved in the program. It has aided in equipping them for a productive role as responsible citizens of our nation.

Capt. William A. Schroeder, Jr., who assumed command of NAS Oceana this month, is continuing the station's plan in developing young Americans and is fully supporting the program initiated by the station's previous commanding officer, Capt. A. K. Earnest.

New Show Begins on WVAB

Jerry Marshall, one of America's most popular award-winning disk jockeys has come to Virginia Beach. "The Jerry Marshall Show" started this week on station WVAB, where it will be heard from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. five days every week. WVAB is at 1550 on the radio dial.

Jerry features a smooth, flowing and upbeat selection of today's "now" sound of music...

the most popular kind of music that station WVAB has become known for in the Virginia Beach area. A native easterner (Far Rockaway, N. Y.) Jerry returned to the New York area after his college years to work as an announcer on New Jersey and New York radio stations. He quickly became a master of the music listeners loved. He is enthusiastic, which wins audiences, but he's also calm, unfrenzied and fluent in his delivery—attributes of which too few deejays can boast. He meets many of his fans in person, too, working as host and special guest at dozens of show business and youth rallies, talent shows and major fund-raising events.

Cocktails

Marty's Lobster House, Heritage Inn, the Copper Kettle, Kona Kai Koffee Shop, Knife and Fork Restaurant, Chuck Wagon, Angelina's, Lone Pine Restaurant, Hurd's Seafood Restaurant, Seven Seas and the Holiday Inn on Military Highway.

The first six named above lie along the resort strip of Virginia Beach Borough. The others are scattered throughout the city, including the Shore Drive, Military Highway Pembroke, Princess Anne Plaza and Lynnhaven.

The first legal drink can still be expected at any time, depending on the ABC Board.

Group to Visit 4 Shows

Virginia Beach will send representatives to four major travel shows starting the last of this month, according to Mrs. George Leary, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce travel and tourism committee.

The schedule of shows include Ohio Valley Sports & Travel Show, Cincinnati, Jan. 18-26; Cleveland Home & Flower Show, Feb. 22-March 2; International Flower Show, New York City, March 8-16; Chicago World

Flower Show, March 22-30; and the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, Aug. 21-Sept. 1. "We are going into the vast Midwest market for the first time with the Chicago show," Mrs. Leary stated. "We believe there is great potential in this area and the Chicago show is a test of this market," she added.

Other members of the Chamber's travel committee include

A. B. Crews, Walter Leveridge, James G. Kontopoulos, Mrs. Laura Lambe, Mrs. Patricia Perrenot, Fred Strickland, Charles W. Gardner, John B. Smith and George H. Davis.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

New officers have just been installed to guide the operation of the Davis Corner Volunteer Fire Dept. for the coming year. Operational officers consist of W. A. Garrett, Chief; James Coley, 1st Asst. Chief; D. A. Perkins, 2nd Asst. Chief; W. A. Steele, Jr., 1st captain; T. A. Harper, 2nd captain; and R. S. Hill, Sr., engineer. The department constitutional officers are J. S. Williams, president; J. Mackie, secretary; J. M. Atkinson, treasurer; and H. A. George, chaplain.

Members of the Fraternal Order of Police, Princess Anne Lodge #8, will install new officers for the coming year at a special dinner meeting tomorrow night. The evening's program will also be highlighted by the naming of the "Police-man of the Year" for the Virginia Beach Police Department.

H. Bates Reese and Kelly Davis, who served as co-chairmen for this year's "Bayside Joy Fund", sponsored by the Bayside Lions Club, indicate the program was highly successful. A special "thank you" is being extended to everyone in the Bayside Borough for their generous contributions on an individual basis, as well as through the many civic and fraternal organizations, public schools, and church organizations of the borough. A total of 128 families were able to enjoy a happier Christmas through the public effort.

Members of the Virginia Beach Borough Volunteer Fire Dept. will gather in a special dinner meeting this Saturday night to formally install the department's newly elected officers. A major event of the evening will be the naming of the department's "Fireman of the Year."

One particular morning in question is still the talk of the police department Juvenile Division. Everyone arrived at the office looking forward to a cup of coffee to shake those "morning doldrums". The process of elimination selected the "day's coffee maker", who respectfully shall remain nameless. When the moment had arrived to indicate the coffee should be in readiness, everyone advanced on the percolator with cups in hand. Alas, the coffee had not been placed in the pot. Lamenting over what to do with cups of fresh, clear boiling water, everyone patiently retreated to their desks while the "coffee maker" quietly began the morning chore again in hopes of saving the day.

Management Classes Set Real Estate Law to Be Offered

The number of courses offered in the hotel-motel management series developed by the Educational Institute of the American Hotel and Motel Association for its Graduate Diploma program is being expanded.

Co-sponsors of these courses are the Virginia Beach Innkeepers Association, the Norfolk-Portsmouth Hotel-Motel Association and the Distributive Education Services of Virginia Beach City Schools and Norfolk City Schools.

The next course will be Hotel-Motel Communications which will be a study of oral and written communications, the art of listening and methods of getting your ideas accepted. It will be held at the Norfolk Technical Vocational Center from 7:00 - 9:00 P. M., beginning Jan. 13th and ending Feb. 19th.

The instructor will be Allen T. Weed, manager of the Ocean View Quality Motel. Weed is a graduate of the hotel school at Michigan State University and has varied experience in hotel operation.

The Graduate Diploma offered by the Educational Institute of AH&MA is recognized throughout the hotel-motel industry. Six basic courses are required plus three elective courses for this diploma. They may be taken in any sequence.

A certificate is awarded upon completion of each course.

Courses to follow this Spring are Hotel-Motel Food and Beverage Purchasing, Hotel-Motel Front Office Procedure and Hotel-Motel Supervisory Housekeeping.

For more information please call the Distributive Education Services: Leslie Parr at Bay-side High School or Miss Carolyn Litchfield at Kempsville High School.

This Is Banking Week

Chapters of the Virginia Bankers' Association have set aside the period Jan. 5-11 as American Institute of Banking Week.

The American Institute of Banking is an Educational Section of the American Bankers' Association. Over the years, the A. I. B. has become the world's largest single adult education organization, continually striving to spread knowledge of banking wider and deeper among the members of the profession.

Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr. endorses Banking Week and calls its purpose to the attention of Virginia's people.

The Distributive Education Service will offer a Real Estate Law class for Real Estate Salesmen. The 10 hour class will begin Jan. 21, at 7:00 p.m. in Room 5-09 Princess Anne High School. It will meet Tuesday and Thursday nights 7-9:30 p.m. through Jan. 30.

Thomas F. McPhaul, the instructor, is an attorney-at-law. He is a member of the firm Hofheimer, Nusbaum and McPhaul. He has taught Real Estate Law in Extension courses held in this area by the University of Virginia as well as the Norfolk Realtors Institute.

Anyone interested should contact C. H. Lewis, Coordinator, Princess Anne High School, 499-1261.

Drive Opens

The American Society of Notaries (ASN) has announced that it will conduct a state wide membership drive in Virginia during January.

The nonprofit society was organized in 1965 to improve notarial practices and to uphold high standards for notaries public. Members receive a variety of benefits including group insurance, correspondence courses and discounts on books.

Community Growth!

Encouraging community growth and development through the employment of savings in home financing is what the savings side of this business is all about. Generous returns are the saver's reward.

Continuing progress for the community through the careful reinvestment of savers' funds in prime loans on single family homes is the purpose of our management policies. Debt-free home ownership is the borrower's reward.

When these two factors are joined together they help to assure personal progress for each individual saver and home buyer. This, in turn establishes a pattern of advancement for the entire community.

Join in this rewarding program of community and personal enrichment. All savings in an account you open by July 10 will receive a full share of earnings next December 31.

The Race of Growth

The Tidewater Association of Home Builders have already appointed five members to a committee to study and hopefully solve the problems faced by the home building industry and the city. City Council will appoint members to that committee Monday.

This committee is an absolute necessity if we are to see continued orderly growth in Virginia Beach. The warning signals have been up for some time, but it has taken some people too long to see them. Now we are all becoming painfully aware of them.

This city must continue to grow. The homebuilding industry is a major part of that growth. As the homes are filled, unfortunately, the taxpayers, homeowners especially, feel a real pinch. Mostly that pinch is from the cost of building new schools for all the new people. The homeowner never pays enough taxes to support his children in schools, much less build them.

Bond issues are the result, followed by higher taxes....for the homeowner. Having just been hit with a 60 per cent tax hike in 1968 because of a massive bond issue, we now face a 40 per cent hike in 1969 for another school bond issue. Granted that our relative tax position is good, but it won't be the way it's going now.

Obviously we need a broadened tax base, but we also need the homes and schools. Perhaps this committee can bring the problems to light and in studying them, come up with good lasting solutions.

At least it is a step in the right direction. The spirit of cooperation can never do harm and will most likely perform a great service.

Still the best answer for Virginia Beach and the entire state would be racetracks. That would help to level the line on taxes and provide money for those schools too. Now is the time to think about that so that the 1970 Virginia General Assembly will see a ground swell for those racetracks as well as a great need.

Tag Time Blues

This is the month that Virginia Beach residents must buy city decals to stick on their windshields. The cost is ten dollars to all legal residents. Service personnel, while their cars may be licensed in Virginia but who do not claim this state or city as their legal home, may purchase a special sticker at a cost of one dollar.

Notice that word "may". They do not HAVE to do so. But if they don't want to be bothered by policemen harrassing them about the lack of a sticker and if they do not wish to have the burden of proof of nonresidency on them, then it behooves them to spend a dollar to save time and aggravation.

The whole thing is still wrong and each year it is swept under the municipal rug after tag time and not looked at again until the next year. Then because it worked reasonably well the year before the muddled system is perpetuated.

There just has to be a better way, even to giving the non-residents their tags if necessary, although the present dollar charge now barely covers the cost of printing and handling.

Even the loss of revenue would be better than the necessary police checks to find real violators and the few cases which cause extremely hard feelings each year between military and civilian authorities.

We'll go along with any fair system that makes sense. This one does not. But please let's settle it once and for all in 1969 for the 1970 decals.

Whitehurst's Decision

Del. Kenneth Whitehurst's decision not to seek re-election to the Virginia House of Delegates came as a surprise. Although his decision is based on personal and business reasons, it is sad to lose such a dedicated young man as he.

Whitehurst's service in the House only extends to one term and will include the important 1969 special session on constitutional revision. But in that short span of time he won the respect of his colleagues in the General Assembly, the admiration of those he represents in Virginia Beach and the confidence even of that faction which opposed him in the hotly contested 1967 Democratic Primary.

He and his colleague, Del. B. R. Middleton, while originally nominated from totally opposite sides of the Democratic fence, worked well together both during the session and after. They were considered a strong team to represent this city's needs on a statewide level.

Their re-election as a smooth team was fully expected, and Whitehurst's announcement caught many, including Middleton, off guard.

Fortunately Virginia Beach has a wealth of young, capable legislators in its midst. The campaign which will follow should prove to be interesting. But the loss of the talents of Ken Whitehurst is a sharp blow to Virginia Beach. It will not be an easy task choosing someone to take his place.

We wish this energetic and conscientious attorney well and hope that perhaps he can see his way clear someday to return to the political arena. His kind is always welcome.

HANDWRITING ON THE WALL

letters to the editor

Code of Ethics

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:
Regarding the new code of ethics for city employees, I think it is a good thing and another step forward for our city. I am sure that most of the city employees have always abided by standards now set forth in written form in this code, but to have it in black and white makes it official. I regret only one part of it, it seems that a man's job should not be able to dictate his membership or active participation in political clubs or organizations. The loss of this freedom, not only to our city employees but also to civil service and other government employees, seems a shame. I had always thought freedom of assembly of any kind was all right, but I guess it just isn't so if politicians don't want it that way.

Otherwise I am glad to see this code pass unanimously, and I feel it should set an example for our neighboring cities.

Wallace G. Wilson

More gas

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:
All I read in the papers lately is how many more apartments are being built and how many more schools they will require. What about the continuing problem of more and more service stations? Must every four-corner intersection of the city be dotted with service stations?

Frankly, I don't see how any of them can make a profit. Apparently a lot of them don't from the number I've seen boarded up or with "For Rent" signs on them. Yet permits are issued to build still more. If the city can't limit their number, can't there be some regulation as to their looks and upkeep. I'm not talking about all of them. Some are neat and have attractive landscaping. But others are terrible—dirty and with wrecked cars parked all over the place. Don't the owners realize they're driving away potential customers that way?

If we have to have them, why not at least set a few minimum standards for them?

Special Report

The Too Quiet Beginning

All is just too quiet on the state scene as far as the three announced Democratic gubernatorial candidates are concerned. With the start of 1969 and a primary six months away, it's getting near to "roll-up-the-sleeves" time.

Only one candidate is particularly active at present, and he's running as hard right now as he has since he decided several years ago to run for governor. State Sen. Henry Howell of Norfolk is still fitting all over the state making speeches to any group that will listen. Civic groups, charitable groups, college groups and political groups have all heard from Howell lately. His schedule at present seems far fuller than the other two.

Most of William Battle's present campaigning is apparently behind-the-scenes manipulation. Announcement of his key people, many important names among them, is expected shortly. Then the Battlewagon will probably be ready to move toward July.

Lt. Gov. Fred Pollard has already made his key people known and should also be ready to move out into combat soon. Party faction labels are just about completed too. Howell is "the liberal", Battle is "the moderate". But no one has been able to hang "the conservative" on Pollard and make it stick. He contends he too is a moderate who has some conservative leanings. Even a few political pundits say there is little basic difference between the Battle and Pollard philosophies. That remains to be seen as the actual campaign unfolds.

So far it has been only jockeying for position, and the nagging question of whether all the nags are at the starting gate still crops up. Several other names are tossed around every once in awhile as possible compromise or dark horse candidates, but so far no one is taking any of them very seriously.

With the April deadline for filing still three months away there is always a possibility of another entry, but the three front runners already have a distinct advantage because they started so soon. In fact, they started sooner than in any campaign in recent memory.

Governor Godwin's call for harmony has so far gone unheeded and is likely not to be answered at all. This then could be the bloodiest campaign in many years. The Democratic fratricide of Chicago could follow the candidates into Virginia.

The obvious winner nationally was President Nixon. And that could happen in Virginia. The GOP position jockeying has begun with attorney Richard Holton smiling a lot and waiting to be nominated by convention. Richard Brydges of Virginia Beach and Howard Adams of Richmond look like strong candidates for Lt. governor and attorney general slots respectively. Harmony is the key word for those Republicans, and the more squabbling the Democrats do the better they like it. And with good reason too. It could prove to be just enough advantage.

Should Henry Howell bolt the Democratic primary as he has reportedly threatened, that could complicate things more. However, it is hard to believe that he would do so after his longtime arguments about being a "true Democrat."

And let us not forget that the 100-man House of Delegates has to be elected this year also. Already there are runnings, as in Virginia Beach. One incumbent has said he will not run, and at least three are ready to jump in the breach. Factionalism could yet play an important part in that race too. Again the GOP could be the beneficiary.

The year 1969 has begun quietly on the political scene, but that doesn't mean it'll stay that way long.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Thank goodness," he sighed. "It's time to go to work. I don't think the time would ever get here."

"Don't be sarcastic," she warned in her usual ominous tone. "Who's being sarcastic?" he asked. "I really mean it. I want to get to my nice quiet office where only about 15 people will be asking questions and wanting me to make decisions."

"There's not that many people around here to ask you questions or asking you to make decisions," she pointed out.

And So To Work

"I wish I could do that," she said. "But it's worse for teachers than it is for students there. If I don't punch in exactly on time, I'm in trouble."

"It's the same way at my office," he said. "If I'm one minute late, my secretary glares at me all day."

"I'll get a maid soon, and you won't have this much to do," she said.

"Thank goodness," he said. "I wasn't going to mention it again. I thought I was the maid."

"All right what did you do this morning anyway?" she asked. "First I got up an hour-and-a-half earlier than usual. That was a bad beginning," he said. "Then I got the girls up. Boy, is that a hairy experience! I dressed them. Then I shaved and dressed myself in ten minutes, got the baby up, fixed my breakfast and ate it, cleared the table after the pig pen the girls left when they rushed for the school bus, took care of the dishes, swept the floor and collapsed."

"I do that every morning," she said.

"Collapse or shave?" he asked.

"I mean all that preparation and cleaning up," she said. "And now that I'm working too, you have to help."

"Help?" he yelled. "It took you 20 minutes to comb your hair while I was dressing the girls?"

"I just washed it, and . . . ."

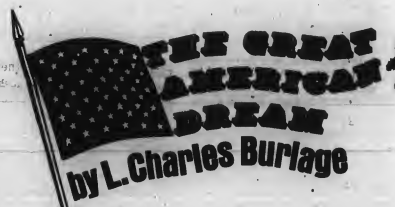

"Yeah . . . . you couldn't do a thing with it," he finished. "But that won't happen every morning," she said. "We'll just have to share the housework on weekends in the mornings and in the afternoons too so that I can bring in a few dollars."

"The housework too?" he asked quietly.

"Sure," she said. "You scrub and wash the floors and do the vacuuming. I'll do the laundry and ironing."

"That reminds me," he said. "I have a hole in the pocket of one of my pairs of pants. Will you please sew it up."

"See me in June when school's out," she said. "I'm a teacher now, not a seamstress."

The greatest problem in the colonies was the scarcity of labor. A man of any value who was free to do as he chose, would naturally not be a wage earner, when, with no more labor than if he worked for someone else, he could get a house and a farm of his own, and by so doing put himself socially and economically on a par with the overwhelming majority of his fellow citizens.

For the first few generations the colonists experimented with the use of indentured servants, whose time and service were bought for a term of years by paying their passage over. Indian slavery was also tried on a small scale, but proved unprofitable, the Indian not being used to a settled life and proving unruly in confinement.

In desperation and at considerable profit, the colonies solved their labor problem in a manner which was to have profound implications in the future development of the nation. Negro slavery was introduced on the continent. A Negro slave could be purchased for 18 to 30 pounds, and if he lived an equal number of years, the cost would be only one pound annually during his service, and in addition, the master owned all of the slave's children, which added a considerable unearned increase to his capital. With the granting by Spain to England of a monopoly of the Spanish slave trade in 1713, a flood of slaves began to be shipped to the colonies, the New Englanders seizing upon the profit to be made in the traffic.

Slavery was most prevalent in the South because it proved an effective labor force to harvest the single staple crop—cotton. Built on human degradation, the type of life that evolved in the South was in many ways the most deplorable America has known and that section has become in retrospect, as was illustrated in "Gone With the Wind," our land of Romance.

As we go northward in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York, the slaves were less evident for the simple reason that they did not prove so profitable in the economic life of these colonies. Their industry was manufacturing and sea commerce. In New England where the soil and climate were poor, those who wanted wealth turned to overseas trade, the most profitable branch of which was importing slaves from Africa for use in the South.

Outside in the dusk from the slave quarters came the throaty voices of Negroes singing in the dialect of their new tongue, with overtones of the swish of an overseer's lash or the beating of remembered far-off tom-toms in the jungle. It might be a gay jangle, or one of the plaintive melodies that the slaves had made their own:

"De night is dark, de day is long,
And we are far from home.
Weep, my brudders, weep!"

Life was varied and colorful in the far-scattered regions; of the new world, but the America of the future was to stem from none of these. A bit of all of them was to be mingled in the melody of the future. In this manner, a civilization was established on our continent.

Kings Grant Undaunted by Fire

By Carolyn McAllen

A gold bird is poised in flight above red flames on the bulletin board in the temporary office of Kings Grant School, now housed in Windsor Oaks.

Across the board in gold letters is the caption, "As the Phoenix, so shall we rise again." The board, said Mrs. Ann Lindsey, was the idea of some of the seventh graders. It seems to symbolize the feelings of students and faculty alike of the school that was gutted by fire on Dec. 17.

After a meeting of the architects, engineers, insurance representatives and school board personnel Monday morning, it was recommended that the school's four-classroom wings be "torn to the cement slab and rebuilt."

"They said that the walls should come down," said Garland Jackson, administrative assistant to Supt. E. E. Brickell.

"They found more damage than was first thought. We don't want to build up something not safe," he added that the new structure would meet present safety requirements. The old building had fire walls onto the ceiling rather than the roof as now required by state regulations.

The deadline for bids on the reconstruction is expected to be Feb. 1. Cleaning out of debris has been completed.

"I want you to give the teachers all the credit you can," said Mrs. Lindsey. "They've done a tremendous job." Faculty members began preparing for the move to Windsor Oaks on Dec. 27 when they returned to the Kings Grant cafeteria to pack up their students' books and classroom supplies. Between then and Jan. 2 they prepared for the reopening of classes.

"I think I set a new first when I called a faculty meeting on Jan. 1," laughed Mrs. Lindsey. "I bet that's the first faculty meeting on New Year's Day."

Tuesday Mrs. Lindsey was delivering books to teachers who needed them. "You can see there are not many," said Mrs. Lindsey. She pointed out that the main loss was paper back work books. A room to room cleanup crew, along with students and teachers, have been helping clean the text books, which were mostly damaged by smoke.

"It's a dirty job, but we're pleased with the results," said Mrs. Lindsey.

Mrs. Ethel Brewster, librarian, said she thinks a good portion of the library books are salvageable. Film strips were saved, although some of the canisters which held them partially melted. "But we don't have any projector now," said Mrs. Brewster.

One major complaint has been the early bus schedule necessitated by the move, Mrs. Lindsey said. "We had no choice since the buses had such a long distance to travel, and the school system does not have six extra buses so we would only have one run." The first load is picked up beginning at 6:55 a. m. and the second load at 7:30. Classes begin at 8 instead of 8:20 as most schools do. The same buses carry a load to First Colonial and must be back in the Kings Grant area by 8:20 to begin their third run.

"The parents just don't understand," said Mrs. Lindsey. Students now buy milk, snacks and sandwiches in a classroom which is used as a temporary cafeteria until the Windsor Oaks cafeteria is completed. Also in the room are tables of art and classroom supplies which were salvaged. The wrappers of many were damaged by smoke, but the contents can be used.

Windsor Oaks was scheduled to open in January for students in the Windsor Oaks area of Princess Anne Plant. These students will continue to attend Point O'View and Pembroke Meadows. Some classrooms in Windsor Oaks do not have doors yet, and others have temporary doors. Partitions have not been installed in restrooms yet, as workmen concentrated their efforts on preparing 28 classrooms for approximately 780 students after the holidays.

Construction on the building continues, but classrooms are complete and fully equipped with furniture and materials.

The classrooms are heated, although the halls are chilly because of construction on the rest of the building.

"The children have adjusted remarkably well," commented Mrs. Lindsey with pride.

Banking Group Has Anniversary

N. Lewis Overton, Jr., chapter president, has announced that Wesley B. Simmers, national president of American Institute of Banking, will be the principal speaker at the 15th annual banquet of the Tidewater Chapter, American Institute of Banking, to be held at the Golden Triangle on January 11.

The American Institute of Banking, an educational section of the American Bankers Association and largest adult educational organization of its type in the world, provides an opportunity for bank people to acquire a broad and comprehensive education in banking. From its inception in 1899 as "The Bank Clerks Institute," the A. I. B. has been a membership of individuals organized into self-administered local units. Today, with a membership of over 209,000 bank employees and officers, it functions as a unique part of banking's educational process.

Pre-standard, Standard, and Graduate certificates will be awarded at the banquet to those who have completed the required courses.

Wesleyan Foresees Busy Year

1968 was a very significant year in the young life of Virginia Wesleyan College and Pres. Lambuth M. Clark calls 1969 a year which will be particularly important in setting the course for future orderly development of this private, church-related, liberal arts college.

A few of the highlights of 1968 included groundbreaking for a new 210,000 volume library, approval on the first two years of academic work from Virginia State Board of Education, establishing a summer study program in Graz, Austria with 20 other colleges and Universities and passing the 400 mark in enrollment.

Pres. Clarke says 1969 may well be one of the most important years which Virginia Wesleyan will ever face. The college will move to a full four-year academic program in the fall of 1969 with divisional and department majors within the expanding liberal arts curriculum.

Dean Hays is calling for a minimum of seven new teaching faculty in September. This will bring the total number of full-time faculty to 25 with an additional 10 part-time teaching personnel. Dr. Hays is discussing with faculty members some innovative programs at Virginia Wesleyan for the near future. Each department is now instituting opportunities for independent study within its major program.

College officials express concern that construction must begin on the new science center early in 1969 for completion in September 1970. Funds are now being raised locally to complete the amount needed for the science facility. The grant and loan of approximately $700,000 has been approved by the U.S. Office of Education contingent upon the college's providing $303,302 for the $1,000,000 structure. A final report on the local financial effort for the science center will be made in February.

"It is more apparent each day that our location astride the Norfolk-Virginia Beachline is excellent to serve the greater Tidewater area," says Pres. Clarke. "Our village concept is designed primarily as a residential college, but in a great metropolitan area such as this we will always have a number of commuting students in our academic program." Students and faculty alike report that the unique village idea lends itself very well to close associations between faculty and students. Attention has been given locally and nationally to this new concept in higher education facilities.

Farmers who earned at least two-thirds of their 1968 gross income from farming operations should file their declaration of estimated Federal income tax, including self-employment, from 1968 with the Philadelphia Service Center, Philadelphia, Pa. 19155, on or before Jan. 15, 1969. Form 1040-ES should be used for this purpose.

Farmers' Deadline Nears

Fishermen who expect to receive at least two-thirds of their gross income from fishing may file estimates or Form 1040 in lieu of an estimate, on the same dates prescribed for farmers.

James P. Boyle, District Director of Internal Revenue of Virginia, said however, that farmers do not have to file an estimate if they file their 1968 Federal income tax return and pay all the tax due by Feb. 17, 1969.

VIRGINIA BEACH SUN

Youth Is Handicap to This Executive

Mrs. Janet Rule is another of the enterprising women who are invading the men's world of business.

Janet is the head of a Virginia Beach firm known as "B-J Research Services." It is an intriguing business which offers marketing research services such as interviewing, coding and tabulating.

Janet, like many other working women, is a housewife and mother in addition to being an executive. She and her husband, Paul, have two children, Ricky, three and Lori, six months. The biggest problem in coordinating her homelife and work has been in finding a reliable babysitter.

"Of course," Janet admits, "everything doesn't always run smoothly. There are times when everything is running wild around the house and all I can do is stand in the middle of the floor and yell, 'Lucille Ball gets paid for this!'"

There is little time for hobbies, but Janet enjoys decorating their home. "I move everything around a least once a month," she said. She also likes to write whenever time permits.

The services offered by B-J are used in the expanding field of advertising and mass communications.

B-J's interviewing services include telephone interviewing, door-to-door interviewing and lab interviewing. Janet says that one of the biggest drawbacks in her business is the misconceptions people have of what B-J does. "People do not understand that we are not trying to sell anything. We do not even push the products for which we are doing a job."

In her particular line of work Janet gets to meet many different people. She uses local clubs, such as garden clubs and church clubs in the interviewing services. "Many organizations like to earn money for their treasuries, and being a respondent for an interview is one way. B-J pays the respondents $1 to $1.50 each.

At the present Janet wants to start using the Distributive Education clubs in the schools in her work. She has approval to use the high school students and feels that they will be a large asset to the company.

B-J Research Services was begun in July 1968. At that time Janet was a partner in the concern, but she acquired the entire interest in November 1968 and has run things by herself since then. The office is located in the Byler Building on Virginia Beach Blvd. She is secretary, bookkeeper, tabulator and coder and anything else the job calls for. There are times when she has as many as 15 interviewers working for her...she can't do everything herself!

Janet is learning by experience the many problems encountered by an executive. She was called to handle an emergency job two hours before packing for a vacation recently.

Like any good executive she found someone to take over while she was gone, but she had many anxious thoughts over the decision.

The most exciting moment for Janet was when she received the first check for the first job completed. "It was a wonderful feeling," she says. The success of the business has surprised her. As she has neared the completion of each job, Janet has thought to herself, "This is it, there won't be any more," but something else always comes along. She hasn't been without work yet. She entered the company thinking it would probably be a part-time occupation, but it is becoming more and more demanding on her time.

Janet feels that her age may be a handicap in the job. She is only 23 and feels that most people expect a more mature person to be in her place. She thinks that good health, enthusiasm and honest hard work make up for the lack of experience, which she will eventually gain.

Janet feels that she would like more education. She thinks that a good education is an unbeatable asset. The only trouble right now, she says, "is that I can't find time to squeeze school into my schedule."

Janet doesn't plan to end her business ventures with B-J. She has some more ideas she would like to put into effect. She would like eventually to get an assistant at B-J so she can do other things. She has developed a great interest in advertising appeal for women, and would like to promote some of her own ideas along these lines. She sums up her feelings in one sentence, "I love to create new things!"

Council Sets Dates

Two dates to circle on calendars were tentatively set by the Virginia Beach Council of Gardens at its meeting Wednesday, Jan. 8 at Thalia Methodist Church.

One is for the annual spring flower show which is now planned for April 11. It will be held in several homes in Thoroughgood.

The other date is the annual spring luncheon. It is set for May 14 at the White Sands (formerly Bow Creek Country Club).

A nominating committee was elected to present a slate of officers for 1969-71 to be elected at the March Council meeting. Mrs. Richard Dunaja is chairman. Serving with her will be Mrs. Oscar Forbes, Mrs. August Culpepper, Mrs. C. W. McAllen and Mrs. Theodore Beasley.

Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher, HANDS chairman, announced that scrapbooks for HANDS projects are due March 1, and that judging of projects will take place about March 15. June 1 is the deadline for entering the 1970 contest.

Point of View Garden Club has contributed $156 toward the crepe myrtle trail.

The Council presented the Rev. W. L. Asher, pastor of Thalia Methodist Church, with a donation in thanks for allowing the Council to meet in the church.

The next Council meeting is scheduled for March 12 at 10 a.m. at the church.

Carlson, chaplain. Back row: Mrs. W. W. Davis, trustee; Mrs. C. W. Simmons, trustee; Mrs. J. W. Pritchard, secretary; and Mrs. Robert Stone, trustee.

F.O.P.A. Installs Officers

The Annual Installation of Officers of the Princess Anne #8 Ladies' Auxiliary to the Fraternal Order of Police was held at a luncheon at Shore Drive Inn on Jan. 4.

Installing Officer for the ceremony was Capt. Harry C. Terry of the Virginia Beach Police Dept. Capt. Terry, National Guard of the Grand Lodge Fraternal Order of Police, presented a centerpiece of gold mums and carnations to the Auxiliary which was used for the luncheon and then sent to a shut-in member of the Auxiliary.

Incoming officers installed were: Mrs. N. M. Bordner, president; Mrs. H. C. Terry, vice president; Mrs. D. G. McCloud, past president; Mrs. J. W. Pritchard, secretary; Mrs.

U. F. Duprey, treasurer; Mrs. K. J. La Grotte, conductress; Mrs. E. R. White, guard; Mrs. C. E. Carlson, chaplain; Mrs. C. W. Simmons, three year trustee; Mrs. W. W. Davis, two-year trustee; and Mrs. Robert Stone, one-year trustee.

Mrs. Bordner was presented with a past president's pin by Mrs. D. G. McCloud, immediate past president.

Bored with Housework? Get Busy

It isn't him. It isn't them. It isn't you.

So, if boredom bugs you, don't blame your husband, the children or yourself. Instead seek a cure for boredom and you may gain a whole variety of new pleasures.

Your best-intentioned friend may give you absurd-sounding advice if you confide that the day-to-day routine is getting you down. "You have to get out more and do more things," she may say.

Isn't that a laugh with a schedule as full as yours?

If you're like most women, you are probably either (a) a member of something you wish you were out of; (b) tied to a project you feel you ought to complete though you don't feel like it; or (c) a victim of the common psychological tendency to put unpleasant housework off by doing a lot of little things that aren't really necessary.

Take a tip -- do less! Duck. Pass-the-buck. If you want to get out of the group, make up your mind and do it. Tired of the project? Drop it, and make it up to the family (if it's something for them) by tossing them a special banquet. In housework, do the bad part first, then let the small stuff compete for your attention with more pleasurable activities.

But don't stop there. You can save time in other ways. Make a deal with another mother to pick up your children after school, then do the same for her a week later; you both get an afternoon off!

Spend 49¢ on a package of aper papers, then skip dishwashing for as long as they last.

Tack a "duty sheet" to the refrigerator door showing which child is to do what household chore, and when. Why should you be the horse?

Skip the late at night movie in favor of bed, then get up two hours early and just loaf.

Schedule the household chores, instead of just doing them "as they come up," and you can arrange an extra day each week free of toil.

What to do with the time you save? Plenty -- and pleasantly. Pick one from Group "A" and one from Group "B" and see what many women miss out on.

Group "A" -- Outside Activities:

1. Get a job. Working in a retail store, you'll meet new people, see more of your friends and probably trim your waistline (if it isn't a bakery). Retarded children's homes need mothers who understand. Door-to-door sales companies need representatives (it's easier than it sounds). How about helping as a doctor's receptionist, or joining one of the poverty programs? There's plenty of part-time work around if you look for it.

2. Go to school. Pay, and you can take college courses. For free, a local high school may have classes two nights a week. By mail, you can learn all kinds of things. You can add to your knowledge of child psychology, learn to sculpt, or find out how tough things really were for Marie Antoinette and her crowd. Or, wouldn't it be fun to learn the meaning of terms on a Chinese menu? (In Moo Goo Gai Pan, for instance, "Moo Goo" means mushroom, "Gai" means chicken, and "Pan" means sliced.)

3. Lead a protest demonstration. If you want better school facilities, more cops on the beat, rubber mats under the playground slide, or whatever, marching down to city hall may do you a lot more good than writing letters. Getting girl friends together and signs painted can be exciting, and worthwhile. Be sure you clear your plans with the police; they are almost always neutral.

Group "B" -- At Home!

1. Read the Bible from cover to cover, skipping wherever you wish. Start with the Book of Proverbs. Whether you are deeply religious or close to the borderline, says Dr. Oswald Hoffman of radio's famed Lutheran Hour, "The Bible's advice on family relations and child rearing is one of the most enlightening guides a woman can find." The book is filled with ideas.

2. Paint! So you're not a Da Vinci -- who cares? A "how to do it" book plus some brushes and oils will get you started, and you may surprise yourself. But look painting on canvas isn't the only way; paint walls! Or windowsills. How about painting the attic into a tropical paradise (a lot of green and yellow, fake in the trees somehow, make the top blue, and throw in a few birds -- distant ones so all you have to show is the outline)?

3. Buy a marriage manual. Let your husband see you reading it, and leave it where he can find it. We rarely see as much as we can when we travel, many people would enjoy concerts more if they knew what to listen for, and books help us to get maximum pleasure out of travel, music and marriage.

4. Joke around. Two quarts of coffee and three girl friends, each of whom is told to be ready with three jokes before she comes. Mix, and enjoy. Serves four.

5. Plan on being rich. Think of a fat after-tax income level (how about $50,000 a year?), get some girl friends to do the same, then decide how you'll spend it. Cut things out of magazines. Make a scrapbook.

When the game is over, don't be surprised if you realize that you have the greatest treasures of all. Once you are relaxed, enjoying life fully, free of boredom, delighted with your friends and new adventures, you may find that you have new glee in greeting your children after school and your husband after work. You'll have the home and family that millions of girls crave -- plus freedom from boredom to boot.

A Banshee Before Breakfast

There's nothing like trying to get a sleepy seven-year-old on a school bus at 7 a.m., especially when her six-year-old sister is in one of her "better" moods.

Thanks to Kings Grant School burning down, the first load of students are picked up from 6:55 on. That's fine with me--without sister Susie's help.

I figured the best thing to do was to feed the older one separately before the others rather than try to get everyone organized for an early breakfast. The seven-year-old has cooperated; I haven't even had to physically pull her out of bed in a week, which is a record.

Monday the six-year-old got up at the same time. While I was trying to fry an egg for her sister, Susie was sitting on her bed howling because she didn't have any pants. I went out in the garage (it was cold!) and got a pair.

In the middle of buttoning the toast, Susie was in tears again (she doesn't cry quietly either). Now she needed socks. I asked her why she didn't just ask me for them instead of screaming. She said I was busy. So I got her some socks--out of the garage again.

Two minutes later I heard another Banshee howl. The socks were short ones. She wanted long. I told her she only had two pairs of long socks, and I didn't have time to look for them. She screamed a little louder while I tried to ignore her, which was pretty hard since she had followed me into the kitchen.

Somehow the seven-year-old caught the bus in spite of me. Then the rest of us sat down to eat. Susie sat in her chair, mouth drooping, tears running down her face. Nobody had cut up her egg. Of course, she's been cutting it herself for the last six months, but that didn't make any difference.

All was quiet until I got ready to leave the house. The howls broke out again from the living room. She wanted a bow in her hair. The only trouble is that she has a pike out and her hair is so thin that even tape wouldn't hold a bow on it.

Thank goodness she only acts like that once or twice a week.

Do-It-Yourselfers Learn Crafts

Once a month a group of enthusiastic women meet for a "do it yourself" handicraft session.

The sessions are sponsored by the PAVAB District Boy Scouts, and are co-ordinated by Mrs. N. M. Irish, Mrs. C. E. Rice and Mrs. Carson Creecy. The workshop is held every first Tuesday from 9:30 until 11:30 a.m. in Thalia Trinity Presbyterian Church.

There are usually around 40 women at the sessions, representing approximately 20 cub scout packs in the area. Although the workshop is primarily directed toward cub scout pack den mothers, the sessions are open and many other interested area leaders attend the sessions, including Boy Scout leaders, Girl Scout leaders and Sunday school teachers.

Programming for the workshop include new crafts a month in advance of the regular weekly scout meetings, as well as new games and skits the leaders can utilize in working with their groups.

A free preschool nursery is provided for the workshop, but a donation of 25¢ is requested for the materials to be used in the crafts. There is always free coffee and donuts at the sessions.

Baby Care Classes Offered

Red Cross Baby and Child Care classes will begin Monday, Jan. 13 at the annex of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach, 25th Street and Arctic Avenue.

Classes will be held from

This workshop session is one of two that is presented each month. The session is repeated on the second Tuesday night of each month at the Cub and Boy Scout Leaders Monthly Round Table. These meetings are held at Thalia Elementary School.

Monthly morning workshop sessions have not been held in this area before. Until this year the workshops were held two or three times a year.

10 a.m. to noon on Mondays and Thursdays for three weeks and will be taught by a registered nurse. Reservations may be made by calling the Virginia Beach Red Cross office at 428-1902.

HERE COMES OLGA!

A gay time was had by all who attended the Jaycette New Year's Eve Party at the Cavalier. Entertaining the Jaycettes and Jaycees that evening was Dave Williamson, folk guitarist and vocalist.

Looking Christmasy in a green, low back full skirted cocktail dress was Mrs. Keith S. Bonney (Donna), party chairman...wearing a green velvet long sleeved dress was Mrs. Charles J. Hayes (Jeri), president of the Jaycettes and wife of the Virginia Beach Jaycee president. Mrs. Leigh Stewart (Gwen) of Norfolk wore a dress of antique satin with candlelight bodice and pale mint green skirt. Mrs. Linwood M. Benton (Phyllis) wore a black knit with rhinestone buttons and full skirt. Mrs. O. M. Sawyer (Cheryl) wore a white wool dress with white beading around the neck.

Sometimes I wish men would go in for more of the unusual in clothes so that I could bring them in the picture a little more. Every once in a while I do come across a man who has picked up some of the new styling in men's clothes and when they do, I for one feel it is quite a treat. I am afraid men are still a little timid as to the new styles and colors. Well we can hope they will come around.

Of course the women mentioned above were accompanied by their husbands. Breakfast was served around one a. m. and by this time everyone was ready to eat.

Saturday night I decided to take in the clubs at Oceana. First I went to the CPO Club. The crowd was not large, but those who were there were having fun.

One of the tables was celebrating the retirement of Chief James Price after 27 years of serving in the Navy. I know he is glad the day has finally come to stop punching the clock every day. I wish we could stay young and then, when we retire, boy could we have fun every night and sleep late the next day.

Those celebrating with Chief Price were: Mrs. Price, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis J. Welch, Mr. and Mrs. James Bourdeau and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Via.

Duane Markham and his band were very good and their music kept the people dancing. I felt sure that after so many parties Christmas and New Years that almost everyone would be too tired to move.

Some others there were: Mr. and Mrs. Andre R. Lakorney--this couple danced every dance and they were very good dancers. They were young, and they stole the show as dancing was concerned, she was quite attractively dressed in a very short silver dress, full skirt and silver shoes. Mrs. C. L. Potter, Mr. and Mrs. David Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Harper, Nick Nickerson, Miss Martie Sheerfield, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron J. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph King, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kenney and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rowley, Nick Nickens, and Miss Carolyn Neary were also there.

I left the CPO Club and decided I would try the Officers Club at Oceana. The crowd was small, but one table particularly seemed to really be enjoying themselves. They were still full of pep; Christmas and New Years did not seem to take anything out of them. When the band was playing, they were dancing. During intermission they were at the piano singing. At this table were Lt. and Mrs. Ronald S. Bird, Cmdr. and Mrs. S. V. Reynolds, Cmdr. and Mrs. R. F. Noll, Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. J. R. Wilson, Cmdr. and Mrs. R. L. Kraus and Mr. and Mrs. Gustav F. Watters. Leaving their table I moved over to talk with some j.g.'s and lieutenants and their dates. They were all trying to see who was a lover--

Are You a Game Cook? If Not...

When it comes to playing the game (admiring the quail, grouse or pheasant your husband's brought home from the hunt), most women find it easy. But when it comes to cooking the game -- that's another story. Actually the myth that wild game cooking must be complicated is just that -- another myth.

According to L.W. "Bill" Johnson, a lifetime outdoorsman who's been collecting and testing wild game recipes for over 50 years, you can prepare any game as simply as time permits. Tangy, tasty Grouse with Orange Slices, for instance, takes just half an hour; but you might prefer becoming immersed in all the exotic details of Partridge in Wine Sauce on squares of puff paste.

These dishes are as much fun for the family as they are for the chef since they provide as unusually delicious diversion from the routine round of beef, fish and chicken. Mr. Johnson found out just how popular wild game really is when he conducted a recipe contest recently that brought in more than 4,000 entries in various categories.

Four hundred of the best of these recipes are now included in his new book, the Remington Wild Game Cookbook--a volume of mouth-watering ideas that also contains advice on special sauces, stuffing and relishes, and practical tips on

Improper drawing, dressing, packing and transporting, Mr. Johnson believes, are reasons why the small or large game may not taste good. Handling game the right way is a necessity for good cooking.

Come hunting season, you, too, can switch from those tired family staples to exciting recipes like Venison Stroganoff, Moose Meatloaf or even Raccoonburgers!

Recipes from the Remington Wild Game Cookbook:

VENISON STROGANOFF

- 1 lb. venison steak cut in long, thin strips
- 3 tbs. flour
- salt, pepper
- 1 onion
- 1 c. tomato juice
- 1 1/2 c. water
- 1 tsp. sugar
- 1 can mushrooms
- 1/2 c. sour cream

Dredge meat with flour and salt and pepper. Brown lightly in fat with the onion. Add tomato juice, water, sugar. Simmer until tender. Ten minutes before serving, add mushrooms, sour cream. Serves 4.

MOOSE MEATLOAF

- 1 lb. ground moose meat
- 2 eggs
- 2 tbs. grated celery
- 2 tbs. grated cheese
- 1/3 c. grated onion
- 1/2 c. water
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. sage
- dash black pepper
- 2/3 c. breadcrumbs
- 1 c. milk
- catsup

Add ground moosemeat, eggs, and other ingredients mixed together to breadcrumbs soaked in milk in a large mixing bowl. Mix well. Shape into a loaf and spread catsup on top. Place in a greased pan. Add approximately 1/2 cup water around loaf. Cover and bake in 350 degree F. oven 1 hour. Serves 4.

RACCOONBURGERS

Young raccoon should be spoked in salted water 6 hours, old ones 18 to 24 hours. Age meat in refrigerator 1 to 2 days. Strip meat from bones, discarding all fat. For each pound of meat, add:

Mrs. Freeman in the costume she wears to give her talks on Williamsburg arrangements an authentic touch.

Mary Freeman Likes Old Things

"I just like old things."

That was Mary Freeman's explanation of her love of Williamsburg-style flower arrangements. Anyone seeing her home in Thalia would believe her without question. Besides having antique furniture she collects antique kitchen utensils and hat pins.

"I get most of my things at antique sales," said Mrs. Freeman, wife of H.O. Freeman, now retired from VEPCO.

Mrs. Freeman, who has been a garden club member since 1945, specializes in Williamsburg arrangements. She has visited Williamsburg many times and met Louise B. Fisher, who made flower arrangements for Colonial Williamsburg before her death and authored a book on Williamsburg arrangements.

Williamsburg-style arrangements were made in "pewter, glass, bricks (a type of container), turquoise, vegetable dishes, anything handy around the house," Mrs. Freeman fills the bottom of her containers with a combination of sand and vermiculite to give them weight and hold flowers in place. In the winter she uses dried material and in the summer fresh flowers.

The characteristic shape of a Williamsburg arrangement is a symmetrical triangle or fan shaped. "I try to carry out all the colors in the container," Mrs. Freeman added.

She dries most of her materials herself either by hanging them upside down or laying them in borax and cornmeal. Among her favorite materials are goldenrod, Queen Anne's lace, coxcomb, larkspur, pressed leaves, Yorktown onion and yarrow. For fresh material the Colonials used lilacs, magnolias and tulips.

Mrs. Freeman is a member of Hill'n Dale and Thalia garden clubs. She is a past president of the Norfolk Federation of Garden Clubs and was chairman of the Christmas Flower Show in Norfolk for two years. In the latest Christmas show she won an Award of Merit in horticulture.

Given a choice of her birthday present last year by her husband, Mary Freeman chose another trip to Williamsburg this time at Christmas to see the annual candle lighting ceremony and Christmas decorations.

Besides her two garden clubs, Mrs. Freeman is also an active member of a Kings Daughters Circle and of the Cape Henry Woman's Club. It's a good thing she and her husband are retired—otherwise they wouldn't have time for all their activities.

Books Can Help Grades

In Colorado, two cowboys discovered a priceless cave city.

A small boy in Jordan chased a scold and found the Dead Sea Scrolls.

These and other stories of hidden treasures are all the more exciting because they're true. Youngsters and parents, too, will find history newly entertaining in a number of fine children's books available at local stores.

Many mysteries remain to be solved, and today's readers may be the solvers.

Many a youngster finds history barely passable. But a book of this kind, which presents the past with all the action of a detective story or adventure, can cast new light. It can turn a sleepy student into a midnight oil burner.

Report card problems?

A small book investment could bring grade A results.

Lake Smith

The Lake Smith Garden Club held its January meeting at the home of Mrs. M. A. Graham on Rylands Road.

A membership drive is in progress in Lakeview Park and Lakeview Shores. Anyone interested may contact Mrs. F. R. Keyes at 464-3700 or Mrs. Graham at 464-1818.

Mrs. Graham won a blue ribbon in the artistic class. Mrs. Keyes and Mrs. P. K. Wenzel earned blue ribbons in horticulture.

Lynnhaven African Violet

The Lynnhaven African Violet Society heard Mrs. C. L. Hershberger, Sr. speak on Christmas at their December meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Hershberger.

Mrs. Ella Lumby and Mrs. Doris Phitopoulos of the Pioneer African Violet Society were guests at the meeting and judged African violet arrangements and also Christmas packages decorated with violets. Winning blue ribbons for arrangements were Mrs. C. W. Diggs, Mrs. E. Dawson and Mrs. Hershberger. Mrs. Carl Salland and Mrs. Nelson Charlton won blue ribbons for violets they exhibited.

Dr. Dickinson To Address Club

The Women's Auxiliary to the Virginia Beach Medical Society will have a program on yoga given by Cammy Sessa of the Virginian-Pilot at their meeting on Jan. 15.

The program, which begins at 10:30 a.m., will be followed by brunch. The meeting will be at the home of Mrs. E. J. Armbruster on Lee Road. Co-hostesses will be Mrs. Raymond Redford, Mrs. Davis L. Sarrett, Mrs. Fitzhugh Mayo, Mrs. John Mapp, Mrs. J. L. Nakanishi and Mrs. Robert T. Mosby.

Yoga Is Program For Auxiliary

The Princess Anne Women's Club of Virginia Beach will meet on Jan. 14 at the American at 11 a.m.

Speaker for the meeting will be Dr. William Andrew Dickinson Jr. Dr. Dickinson, a resident of Virginia Beach, is co-director of the Coronary Care Unit and Electrocardiography of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. He is also president of the Tidewater Heart Association.

Foliage Is Easier than Flowers

Foliage plants are easy to grow in the average home. This is quite the reverse of problems you will have with some flowering plants.

Many foliage plants will maintain nice green growth under relatively poor light conditions and in a warm, dry atmosphere. Therefore, in selecting a gift plant for a friend who enjoys house plants, a foliage plant may be more acceptable than one which produces flowers and may need to be discarded in a few weeks. The same holds true in selecting plants for yourself.

The coleus is an attractive foliage plant having variegated leaves with green, red, brown, yellow and pink colors. The plants are easily grown under average light conditions. They grow rapidly and need to be repotted regularly in a fertile, light soil. Pinch back repeatedly to maintain a well-rounded bushy form.

Coleus cuttings root quickly in water or sand. New plants should be developed continually during the year to replace those which become old and misshapen. The flower stalks detract from the attractiveness of this plant, and should be pinched out as they develop.

Philodendrons are very popular as house plants. They are native to Central and South America and endure both high and low temperatures in the

Supervisor To Be Speaker

Mrs. Mary Barber, supervisor of vocational office training for the Virginia Beach schools, will speak to members of Cape Henry Woman's Club today, Jan. 9, at the American. The business meeting will start at 11 a.m., followed by lunch.

With the full fury of winter upon us, we must keep a calm outlook on getting rid of the snow and ice that cover our walks during these periods of "falling weather."

Many people use salt or compounds containing salt to remove the ice. It must be remembered, however, that salt is most definitely harmful to shrubs and trees, and will kill them if the quantity is great enough. The salt is accumulative over a relatively long period (such as a year). Thus, salt applied several times during one winter will definitely be enough to kill a shrub if the run-off from the melting ice goes to the proximity of it. Often only one application can damage or kill a shrub. This is the main reason that salt should not be used on steps and walks.

I have seen just this past summer many shrubs in one major planting area that were killed by putting salt on the walkways last winter. Needless to say to those of you who have purchased plant materials recently, shrubbing is expensive. Not only this, but for those of us who have aged shrubbery of considerable size, it takes a long time to grow it to a comparable size.

Many people use sand to relieve their snow and ice problems. Others just shovel and sweep the snow and ice off their steps and walks while fresh before it freezes.

Both sand and salt will be messy to walk on and then track into the house. When tracked in, they should be gotten up as quickly as possible to keep danger of damage to floors and furniture at a minimum.

The vest costume -- a fresh look for spring -- and especially in American leather, notes Leather Industries of America. Here is a fetching A-line skirt and matching vest of red cabretta leather, both contrast-stitched in navy. Designed by Viola Sylbert for Albert Alfus. Body shirt in navy ribbed cotton is by John Romain. Her shoe is one of the new versions of the spectator -- this one a waxy brown leather slip-on with low heels, spectator perfs and decorative tie, by John Romain. Extra-roomy barrel tote, also in waxy leather, has double handles and an outside pocket, by Ronay.

Try the Norfolk Island-Pine as a charming conifer for the house. This is a very satisfactory small evergreen tree. You may start with a six or eight-inch plant which will grow slowly and add interest to your home for many months. It is easy to grow if kept moist, out of drafts and is given partial shade.

The screw pine is another fine house plant. It is not a pine but a tropical plant which grows to a height of several feet. The long sword-like leaves are arranged in a corkscrew or spiral manner around a short central stem.

Screw pines are easy to grow and like full sunlight. Most of them develop suckers at the base which may be removed and used as cuttings for propagating new plants.

There are, of course, many other foliage plants which are ideal as house plants. Our main point at this time is that these plants are longer lived, and usually more attractive in the average home during the winter than most flowering plants. Try some. You will be delighted with the results.

Metal Containers Special

Metal containers suitable for flower arrangements can add an extra touch of elegance to the home, if used properly.

Such metal containers can be found in the market in almost endless variety, said Miss Katherine Hable, Extension home economist at Virginia Tech.

Of the several metals available, the warm metals--copper and brass--do something rather special for both flowers and their settings during winter. When polished to a lustrous sheen, copper and brass objects reflect a glow when touched by sunlight, firelight or lamplight, Miss Hable said.

But it should be kept in mind, she warned, that metallic surfaces are quite conspicuous in a flower arrangement and a very bright sheen may "steal the show" unless the flowers are selected carefully for compatibility with the metal.

On the other hand, age softens the color and tempers highlights of copper and brass so they are less demanding of attention.

Antique shops are a prime source for a variety of metal containers, including many utensils originally designed for functional use, such as molds and huge ladles. Excellent reproductions, as well as today's designs, are available. Original, one-of-a-kind, hand-wrought objects can be found throughout the country at art fairs and craft shops.

Recreation Classes Set

The Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Department will begin its "Winter Series of Adult Recreational Classes." Registration for all classes will be between Jan. 13th and 17th.

The basic registration fee for all of the classes will be $3. A few classes, however, will have additional in-class fees of a nominal amount.

Ceramics will be offered at a later date due to construction delays. Those interested in participating in the ceramics program should call the department to find out exactly when this activity can be restarted. The fee for Ceramics Workshop participation has been increased to $5 per six weeks. This increase is necessary to take care of the cost of the growing program.

The classes being offered are: Arts and Crafts, Decoupage, Needlepoint, Painting, Italian Cooking, Party Foods, Trimmings, Flower Arranging, Knitting, Ballroom Dancing, Bridge, General Sewing, Bishop Sewing, Oil Painting, Interior Decoration, Cake Decorating and Early American Samplers.

Anyone interested in further information should contact the Parks and Recreation Department at 497-4884.

Phantoms Lose Cox Junior Leads District Scoring Hockey Game

Plaza Roller Rink hosted a roller hockey game Jan. 5 between the Seaford Panthers of Seaford, Del. and the Plaza Phantoms.

The Seaford Panthers won the game with a score of 14 to 3. In the first period of the game the Phantoms scored one point; the Panthers did not score. At the end of the second period the Panthers were leading four to three and then scored ten points in the third period for the final score.

Both teams are members of the Tidewater States Chapter of Hockey.

The Plaza Phantoms is made up of male Virginia Beach residents from the ages of 14 to 30. They practice on Sunday afternoons from 4:30-6 p.m. at Plaza Roller Rink. Anyone interested in playing with the team may join the Sunday afternoon practice sessions.

Kline

His name is Keith Sudduth. He's a junior at Cox High School and he leads the eastern district in scoring in basketball so far this season. In his first six games he averaged an even 24 points. Tuesday night he continued to take command of the backboards in the Falcon defeat of winless Bayside, scoring 28 points.

The Cox record now stands at 7-0 and even the district favorites, Maury and Booker T, who fought it out Tuesday night at the Arena to a Commodore win 85 to 76, are beginning to take considerable notice of the Virginia Beach team.

The only other Virginia Beach team considered even to be in contention in the district is Princess Anne, which has only lost one game. And Ricky Michaelson of PA is the city's only representative in the high scoring department. He is averaging just better than 19 points a game.

The other Virginia Beach schools, First Colonial and Kellam are having rather disappointing seasons.

But all the records to this time have really only been the warmup records. The district clashes began on Tuesday night, and from here on out the records count toward deciding who will make the playoff.

Cox's first real test comes next. Tuesday night against Granby. Then the Falcons meet Booker T, and Maury in the first ten days of February. That same night Maury comes to Bayside, PA is at First Colonial for a return bout, B.T. Washington is at Kellam and Norview is at Kempville.

Next Wednesday Kellam is at Maury and Union Kempville travels to Westside in Smithfield.

Union Kempville comes back into the picture this weekend

after a long holiday layoff. The Tigers play host to C.W. Carver of Chesapeake Friday night.

First Colonial is at Cox, Bayside is at Princess Anne and Kempville travels across the Norfolk border to Lake Taylor.

On Saturday night Indian River comes to Kellam, Craddock is at Kempville in two non-district clashes and Maury invades Princess Anne for a game that could prove to shake the confidence of the surging Commodores.

The flu and cold season has played havoc with the basketball teams as it has with just about everyone else. Even Cox's Sudduth had a bad first half in last Friday's game because of a cold. But that has not really hurt his record greatly. His average only dropped one point.

Last Friday night Kellam won its first game of the season in a close one from Bayside, 65-63. Cox romped over Kempville 59-38, and Princess Anne won a decisive victory over First Colonial 63-51 to maintain a better than average season so far.

On Saturday night, Kellam was trounced by Lake Taylor 75-51. Mike Futrell scored only 9 points, although the Knight scoring leader had scored 18 the night before. Cox won an easy victory over Indian River 79-53.

In Tuesday's action Cox continued to roll by downing Bayside, 86 to 50. First Colonial handed Norview a 64 to 60 loss and Princess Anne handed Kellam another defeat, 76 to 53.

Central Location Sought

A committee, headed by J. Frank George Jr., was appointed at the Executive Committee meeting of the United Communities Fund recently to proceed with plans for a more adequate service facility building in Virginia Beach to house UCF agencies.

"We're not planning any $6 million building, but we are looking into the feasibility of better housing the agencies serving Virginia Beach," said R. L. Sheetz, executive director of the UCF.

He added that UCF had been looking for a convenient location for a year. He said they were looking for a central location in the city, UCF agencies already have several agency extension offices in Virginia Beach.

"We want a central location where number of different offices can operate from the same place," Sheetz said.

Among the business covered were the election of Board and Executive Committee Members as well as officers to complete unexpired terms. There were Budget Committee Appointments made also.

Dates Set To Register

The Recreation Department of Virginia Beach announces class registration in Upholstering, General Sewing, Ceramics, Millinery, and Party Foods.

Jan. 13 Upholstering Registration will be held at Union Kempville 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. in the Recreation office. The fee is two dollars. Students will have to furnish materials.

Registration for General Sewing, Ceramics, Millinery, and Party Foods will be at Seatack Elementary School, Jan. 14, 15, 16 and 17 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. The fee will be three dollars for six weeks.

"We really love our electric baseboard heat with room-by-room control. Our two children keep their rooms at different temperatures and everybody suits themselves."

Mrs. L. L. Stone, Richmond, Virginia

You hear a lot about electric heat these days. Some fact. Some fiction.

Well, the only way to get the truth is to ask someone who has electric heat. And that's exactly what we did.

Mrs. Stone, how do you like the room-by-room control?

"All our family likes it. My son doesn't like his room warm at night—so he keeps his cool. My daughter likes hers warm. And my husband and I keep ours—sort of lukewarm. We really love this individual heating where everybody suits themselves."

How clean is electric heat?

"I don't have to wash down as much as I did in my old house. I think it's much cleaner."

How about noise?

"At first, we had a tiny little clicking noise, and now we have no sound at all."

What about the electric bill?

"My husband handles the bills. But he hasn't complained about them a bit. I've heard him say that he likes the Veeco Equal-Monthly Payment Plan because he knows just where he stands. And if I'm not mistaken, we sort of balanced out last year."

Mrs. Stone is just one of the thousands of satisfied electric heat customers in the Veeco service area. If you'd like to find out how easy and economical it is to convert to an electric heating system, just call your Veeco Authorized Comfort Conditioning Contractor. His number is in the Yellow Pages.

He'll come out and give you an estimate—in dollars and cents. And at no obligation to you, of course.

But you should be warned. Once you find out how little it costs to have clean, quiet, trouble-free electric heat in your home, you'll probably want to convert right away.

And who knows? You just might want to be in one of our ads next year.

K.H.S. Decorates Doors

By Debbie Bowman
Kempville High School

Kempville High School had their first annual door-decorating contest during the week of Dec. 16-20.

The winning doors were as follows: 1st place - Mrs. Melik's 11th grade homeroom; 2nd place - Mrs. High's 11th grade homeroom; 3rd place - Mrs. Partin's 10th grade homeroom; 4th place - Miss Traugott's 9th grade homeroom. Monetary prizes of $20, $15 and $10 were offered to the winning classes.

The bandroom door was adorned with the traditional "BAH - HUMBUG!", thus winning the Scrooge Award.

Art students showed their talent by covering the art door with a psychedelic Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus, using the phrase, "Have a Cool Yule!"

Gospel Concert To Be Jan. 19

Ebenezer Baptist Church Men's League will sponsor a gospel concert on Jan. 19 at 8 p.m.

Featured at the concert will be the Huntville Chorus of Portsmouth, Va., the Shiloh Baptist Church Male Chorus of Boykins, Va. and the Ebenezer Baptist Church Male Chorus. Ebenezer Baptist Church is located on Baker Road.

ODC Presents Comic Opera

The Old Dominion College Opera Workshop, under the direction of Dr. Harold G. Hawn, chairman of the ODC Department of Music, will present Mozart's comic opera, "The Marriage of Figaro," in the Norfolk Museum Jan. 9, 10 and 11, at 8:15 p.m. There will be a special matinee for public school children Saturday, Jan. 11, at 2 p.m.

The opera will be presented in English. Accompaniment will be provided by the ODC Theater Orchestra under the direction of Dr. John E. McCormack. Gary Meredith will play the harpsichord.

1968 Traffic Toll Plummeted

The city of Virginia Beach recorded a total of 15 traffic fatalities on 1968. The figure shows a substantial reduction in the traffic fatality rate of 1967 when a total of 40 fatalities were recorded.

Police officials indicated the fatalities occurred in 14 accidents. Those who lost their lives in traffic accidents in the city included 11 civilians and four servicemen. Two of the fatalities were pedestrians.

According to official records the highest number of fatal accidents on any of the city's thoroughfares occurred on the portion of Shore Drive which by-passes Fort Story.

When questioned about factors which may have contributed to the fatal accidents city officials named excessive speed, inattentiveness on the part of motorists and a disregard for posted traffic regulations.

The VIRGINIA BEACH SUN asked Virginia Beach Traffic Safety Chief Reeves Johnson what he thought was the most important factor in lowering the city's traffic fatality rate. Johnson said he felt this was "primarily due to increased law enforcement, and patrolling of thoroughfares by officers of the police traffic bureau as well as improving road markings such as highway guide lines, and road edge markings."

Regarding what action may be planned in the future to make the city's thoroughfares safer

Johnson said, "We will have in the mill within the next six months some proposals for what we hope can be done to continue lowering the fatality rate in the city". While he declined to go into detail as to what these proposals may include, Johnson did indicate his line of thinking included continued improvement of highway lighting and additional marking of pedestrian crossings.

The first traffic fatalities of this year in the city have been identified as two Navy men who died in a single car accident in the early hours of New Year's Day. Police investigators said William L. Austen, 22, of Oroville, Calif., and John D. Burke, 21, of New Orleans, both attached to the Atlantic Fleet Antisubmarine Warfare Force, were fatally injured when their car went out of control on Shore Drive and plunged down an embankment near the Ft. Story west gate. According to police investigators, the bodies of the men were found in the wreckage of their car by a passing motorist about 7:45 a.m. It is believed the accident occurred about 3:25 a.m.

William Mills Wins Fla. Trip

William Mills, new car sales manager of Thompson-Royal Dodge, has won an all expense three-day trip to the Super Bowl game in Miami Beach, Fla. on Jan. 12.

The trip was one of the prizes in a contest sponsored by the Dodge Division of Chrysler Motors. Mills won his trip through his outstanding sales of Dodge cars and trucks during the period of Oct. 21st through Nov. 30, 1968.

Included in the trip is an awards banquet in Miami Beach in which merchandise awards such as a 1969 Dodge Charger, mink coat, color television and other prizes will be awarded to the top Dodge Sales Managers from all over the United States.

*Legal Notices

"Notice to the Public"
Notice is hereby given to the public that Princess Anne Utilities Corporation has filed with the State Corporation Commission revised rates, rules and regulations for sewerage service rendered in the vicinity of Princess Anne Plaza in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, which involve increases over the charges now being made. The proposed rates filed to become effective upon the order of the State Corporation Commission and after commencement of delivery of effluent to Hampton Roads Sanitation District are as follows:

A Two-Part Rate
Treatment Charge:
The exact charge of each individual customer as billed by Hampton Roads Sanitation District on their rate schedule which is based on metered water usage; and Service Charge:
For transportation to Hampton Roads Sanitation District, maintenance, service and collection;

To each residential customer - $28.50/qr.
To each apartment customer - $19.00/qr.
To each commercial customer - a factor times the residential base rate of $28.50. Said factor would be the customer's 1967 water usage divided by the average 1967 water usage of a residential customer.

An investigation of the proposed charges has been entered upon by the Commission, and a hearing on such new rates has been set for 10:00 A.M. on February 12, 1969, in the Courtroom of the Commission, Blanton Building, Richmond, Virginia, at which time and place members of the public generally may appear and present such relevant data as may be desired and may be heard.

Trio 'Like What They See' Here

January 2nd marked not just the first work day of 1969, but also the arrival in the area of three amiable, intelligent actors to begin work on "Star Spangled Girl" at Lake Wright Playhouse.

The three--Crickett Coan, Nick DeCarlo and Ken McGlon--will star in the play, which opens on Jan. 14. They are all hard workers, and began work as soon as they arrived. A typical day for them includes work in the morning, work in the afternoon and work in the evening as soon as the present production at Lake Wright, "Born Yesterday," is finished for the evening. This hasn't left them much time to see the area.

They are impressed with the playhouse at Lake Wright. They agree that the facilities are some of the best they have seen. Because of their present schedule they miss several things that most people take for granted--such as a car, T.V., private parties in homes, pianos. These are some of the things they have to leave behind when they travel. Crickett and Ken are from New York. Nick lived in New York until two months ago; he now lives in Hollywood, Fla.

Nick was in the area in 1963 when he was in "Camelot". Crickett and Ken have never been here before. So far they have not even seen the beach, but they look forward to it. Ken in particular wants to make a side trip to Williamsburg.

Rehearsing for "Star Spangled Girl", opening at Lake Wright Playhouse Jan. 18, are Ken McGlon (holding Nick DeCarlo) and Crickett Coan, who prepares to land a well-aimed blow.

Crickett and Nick had met once, briefly, in Charlotte, N.C., when they were working on separate plays. Ken had not met either of the other two, but to hear them joking and talking you would think they were lifetime friends.

All three have an impressive background in the theater.

Crickett Coan, who is originally from Winston-Salem, N. C. has toured in a road show of "Any Wednesday" and appeared in summer stock doing such roles as Charlotte in "Night of the Iguana" and Annie Sullivan in "The Miracle Worker." In addition she has had leading roles in off-Broadway productions in New York.

She enjoys knitting, sailing and diving. She wears a wig in "Star Spangled Girl". Without the wig Ken says she looks like Dorothy Lamour. One of the things that Crickett misses most is being able to do whatever she wants at any time. Everything in New York stays open much later than here.

Nick DeCarlo made his professional debut at the age of 12 as a singer. Since then he has touched most facets of entertainment throughout the United States and Canada. He worked on "The Matchmaker" and "Light Up the Sky" as a producer-director. He has worked in T.V. as an actor in "The Brighter Day", "Robert Montgomery Presents" and "Studio One". Nick has choreographed and directed productions of "Bells Are Ringing", "Little Mary Sunshine", "Tea and Sympathy", and "The Seven Year Itch". He has also designed wardrobe for Zsa Zsa Gabor and Hugh O'Brian--in fact, Nick was working on Hugh O'Brian's personal wardrobe when O'Brian was selected for the "Best Dressed" list.

Nick misses his books and records most. He has a collection of three or four hundred books and 250 records. He also misses his car.

Ken McGlon has just finished his first feature film, "Take Your Own Trip," in which he plays the lead. He has appeared at Lincoln Center as Dionysis in Euripides' "The Bacchants" and off-Broadway in "The Owl and the Pussycat." He has toured the country playing "Young Mark Twain," and "Young Tom Jefferson." Ken is equally at home in musicals or drama. He was featured in the pre-Broadway tryout of "Allegro," after playing opposite Carroll Baker in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" and Patricia Mursell in "Kiss Me Kate." He holds his M. A. degree in Theatre and Television from Indiana University.

Ken likes to water ski. He describes the sunsets here as "gorgeous." "You can't see a sunset in New York," he said, "because there are too many buildings." Like Crickett, he too misses the night life.

Crickett, Nick and Ken like working on "Star Spangled Girl", which was written by Neil Simon.

In the play Crickett is Sophie-Rouschmeyer-from-Hunneycutt--Arkansas "who," to quote Crickett, "lives in San Francisco next door to two nuts." The two nuts are Norman Cornell, played by Nick, and Andy Hobart, played by Ken. Norman and Andy run a political protest magazine, and after Norman causes Sophie to be fired from her job, she goes to work for the nuts as a maid and secretary--occupations for which she is completely unqualified.

There is an intriguing love triangle in the plot. Norman loves Sophie, Sophie and Andy love each other, but Sophie has to be nice to Norman because he writes better than Andy. Crickett says Sophie loves Andy because he smells better than Norman. Crickett has an impish sense of humor so if you really want to find out how it happens you will have to see the play.

Wroten Stymies Planning Group

The new City Planning Commission, which was scheduled to meet Jan. 14, did not meet. This step was taken under advice of the City Attorney's office in view of the pending court action by Ben W. Wroten, chairman of the 15-man Planning Commission that was dissolved Dec. 31, 1968.

Wroten's action against the city and Mayor Frank A. Dusch claims that formation of the new Planning Commission was illegal and in violation of the law and the City Charter.

The motion, which is being filed by Wroten's Attorney, A. Joseph Canada, says the City Charter makes provision for all members of the Commission to be appointed by the City Council for a term of four years. It is Wroten's contention that he is still a member of the Commission.

Included in the motion is a recommendation that the size of the Commission be reduced by not appointing new members as the present members' terms expire. City Council cut the size of the Planning Commission in an effort to make the Commission more effective.

The present nine-member Planning Commission was for-

Alphon

Electoral System Supported

The vast majority of those who answered last week's SUN SURVEY were against doing away with the electoral college entirely. A total of 85 per cent said "No" to the question, "Should the electoral college be abolished and the President of the United States elected solely on the plurality of popular votes?"

Only ten per cent said "Yes," and the other five per cent were in favor of some type of reform without actually abolishing the present method of electing the Chief Executive.

With all of the present talk about the usefulness of the electoral college, we found the results of the survey somewhat surprising.

While the public opinion survey does not profess to represent the entire thinking of the residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent the thinking of a cross section of the people who took time to fill the survey and return it to us.

Your attention is called to this week's SUN SURVEY question also, which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of the page.

Each week a new question will appear, and the results will be published the following week. The questions will be timely, and the more answers we receive the more responsible the opinion.

SUN SURVEY

QUESTION: Should the Virginia General Assembly hold annual sessions instead of biennial?

☐ YES

☐ NO

med at City Council on Dec. 9, 1968, it was to become effective Jan. 1, 1969.

The newly appointed Commission were sworn into office Jan. 9 by Circuit Court Clerk John V. Fentress. They also had an organizational meeting on the same day and elected J. Roy Alphon as chairman. Others elected at the meeting were J. Harry Mote, vice chairman, and Walter Pankiewicz, secretary.

Other members of the nine-member Commission are J. A. Holland, C. W. Beard, Herman Bonney, Russell D. Brown, Roy DeHart and William Cleaves. Cleaves is the only member who was not on the 15-member Commission.

Harry Marshall, City Attorney, has recommended that the Planning Commission not take action on anything until the present situation has been clarified by his office. No date has been set for court action, therefore the first meeting of the new Planning Commission has been postponed indefinitely.

Marshall is expected to tell the City Council at its Jan. 20 meeting that it will have to retract its move in abolishing the 15-member Planning Commission.

If the city maintains the old Commission it is probable that Cleaves will be appointed to take the place of H.B. Eichelberger, H.B. Meekins and Elmer Meeks, whose terms expired Dec. 31. Thus the original purpose of reducing the size of the Commission would be served. The City Charter provides that no more than 15 or no less than five members serve on the Planning Commission.

There were only 15 items on the agenda scheduled for hearing by the new Commission on Tuesday.

Council Moves Thru Long Zoning Docket

City Council moved with almost unequal speed through a 38-item zoning docket in its regular meeting Monday. While a number of the applications for zoning changes and use permits were controversial the matters were handled with dispatch.

Only one item bogged Council down for any length of time, and it will eventually receive another hearing. The application of Burnell Ray Gallop to rezone a portion of his nine acres at Kempsville and Indian River Roads was deferred for 60 days. Gallop sought to construct a building to repair buses on the property now zoned for limited commercial use. He now operates a charter bus service and buses are parked on the property.

The Planning Commission recommended a modification of his request, asking that the building be set behind a tree line on the property. Gallop and his attorney, L. Charles Burlage, were agreeable, but a large delegation of residents of the area were on hand to oppose it. They have successfully fought Gallop's attempts in the past to get the property rezoned, but this time were only unsuccessful in seeing it deferred.

On the argument that it would be spot zoning, an application of J. Edward Byrnes was denied by Council. He had sought to have land on Princess Anne Road near Downey Drive zoned for a doctor's building.

This picture of the new administration building, taken recently, shows it to be nearly ready for occupancy.

City Moving Day Arrives

Moving day is finally coming for city employees. On Monday, Feb. 17, they will begin work in the new city administration building at Princess Anne.

The building will be occupied several months behind schedule, and the matter of penalties for the general contractor, W. B. Meredith II Inc., is still to be settled. Originally the building was to be occupied in the summer of 1968, but extensions were granted until Nov. 1. Work has been progressing normally since that time, and the Feb. 17 date is no longer considered to be tentative.

Strikes, shortage of materials, bad weather and the extra features added to the building have all been blamed for the long delays.

The Colonial-style City Hall was built at a cost of $1.3 million. It was the hope of former City Manager W. Russell Hatchett that Princess Anne of England could dedicate the building, but the invitation was declined because of the Princess' continued schooling. She was 18 during 1968. No formal program is scheduled on the first day of occupancy, but a dedication ceremony and tours are planned at a later date. The 125 employees who will begin their new work week there have been relieved of most of the headaches of moving. All they have to do is pack. A contract mover, to be chosen shortly on bid, will take care of the rest. Over the weekend they will move the furniture into marked spots for each thing in the color-coded building. All this is being handled by the city's director of general services, Oral Lambert.

The move is being made from a number of different locations. The Dept. of Public Works is coming from 18th St. and Arctic Ave.; The Dept. of Law, Finance and Planning are coming from buildings on Courthouse Drive; Refuse Collection and Purchasing from locations on Princess Anne Rd.; and from the old courthouse will come the City Manager and his staff, Personnel, General Services and the Industrial Development Authority.

On the second floor of the new building will be the Mayor's office also, coming from 19th St. and Arctic Ave., then the City Council chambers (it has met in Circuit Court) a press room and a luncheon room, among other additions to the municipal complex.

On the first floor a new print shop will join the host of offices. The third floor of the new building will not be occupied until needed. The building is expected to serve city needs for about 50 years.

With all the vacant space being left in the old locations, the next weeks will be filled with refurbishing and the movement of all other city offices to the complex, and for the first time since merger in 1963 most city offices will be centrally located in one place. The DPW building will probably be sold. Reportedly Colonial Stores Inc. is interested in the property for expansion.

Smaller satellite offices of service departments are expected to spring up in the future in key locations throughout the city.

City Manager Roger Scott, who as assistant to City Manager Hatchett, helped in the design and formulation of ideas for the new building has called the new City Hall a "marvel."

"This is a structure the citizens of the city can be proud of for many years to come," said Scott.

One Jail Escapee Caught

Leroy Boone, one of three men who escaped from the Virginia Beach City Jail last Aug. 21, has been captured by the FBI in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Boone, 20, of Bayside Road, was being detained in the city jail after receiving a life sentence on conviction of armed robbery and a sentence of 20 years on conviction of statutory burglary. He was convicted of being one of three men who last January broke into the L. M. Sandler & Sons, Inc. building on Diamond Springs Road. Money and jewelry valued at $29,000 were reportedly taken as a nightwatchman was held at gunpoint.

Officials said Boone is being held under $50,000 bond pending outcome of an extradition hearing in New York scheduled for next Monday.

Two other men, Cleveland McKinley Davis and Elton M. Askew, who escaped with Boone are still being sought. The men escaped by overpowering a jailer and locking him in the maximum security section of the jail.

Council Split on Naming Ad Board

City Council took tough stands Monday on two separate matters, but one came as a bit of a surprise.

Representatives of the Virginia Beach Innkeepers Association asked Council to delay appointing members to the recently trimmed down advertising board and asked Council again to give immediate consideration to the establishment of a department of tourism.

The president of the Innkeepers Association and the president of the Chamber of Commerce are automatically members of the board while in office. The current innkeepers president is Charles Gardner, who was the spokesman for the group Monday.

Gardner said his group was dissatisfied with the composition of the board and asked for the delay to talk about the appointment. While discussion continued between Gardner, attorney and innkeeper L. Charles Burlage, S. A. Karageorge and Councilman John McCombs, himself an innkeeper, other Councilmen appeared restless.

Finally Councilman Murray Malbon made a motion to delay. Silence followed, but Councilman Curtis Payne finally seconded it.

On a voice vote the motion was defeated on a tie vote, 5-5. McCombs did not vote, since he was one of the appointtees to the ad board. This was the first split of this kind in the memory of all who were present.

Gardner was assured by Councilman Larry Marshall that he would personally ask for the resignation of any new member who did not perform. McCombs suggested that the new board could talk about a committee to work with the innkeepers and that Council could not possibly get a dept. of tourism this year in time to handle the pre-season advertising anyway.

Most of the controversy arose because the ad board has not met in nearly three years, and an executive committee has handled all transactions. Council has now agreed to write in provisions for dismissal of those missing regularly scheduled meetings, and apparently regular meetings will be scheduled.

The seven members, other than the presidents of the Chamber and Innkeepers, were then appointed unanimously. They are: John McCombs, George Davis and Gerald Lavenstein (three years); Robert Steinbier and Dr. Ira Hancock (two years); and Mrs. Lucy Traflet and A. B. Crews (one year).

In the other tough stand Council approved the hiring of experts at an estimated cost of $5,500 to fight proposed rate increases of Princess Anne Utilities Corp. The hearing is scheduled Feb. 12 before the State Corporation Commission.

The company wants the large increases to become effective at the same time the lines are taken over by Hampton Roads Sanitation District. The single family hike asked is from $12 to $26.50. The city has a large stake in the matter because of property in the area. A total of nine schools, a library and a fire station would be affected. City Attorney Harry Marshall said the increase would cost the city about $5,500 for schools alone in a year.

Several Councilmen said they felt the large increase is being asked in order to get a smaller one. One Councilman called the request "ridiculous."

The two men to be hired to fight the case are an engineering consultant and an accountant, according to City Manager Roger M. Scott. The city has successfully fought off rate increases before and is trying to stem the tide now before all other companies also seek increases.

In other action Council approved an additional $64,796 for the welfare dept., since new guidelines had been received from the state and federal government.

Mixed Drinks Return to Beach

W. Russell Hatchett, former Virginia Beach city manager, was the recipient of the first mixed drink sold in Virginia Beach since Prohibition. The drink, a martini, was sold at The Copper Kettle restaurant at 7th Street and Atlantic Avenue on Jan. 9.

Hatchett, one of the biggest boosters of liquor-by-the-drink in the area, was visibly happy over the historic occasion. "I thought we'd have this before they got to the moon," he said, "but they got to the moon first."

In a more serious tone Hatchett added, "It's not a special privilege I'm enjoying tonight...we should have had it all the time."

The Copper Kettle restaurant was the first Virginia Beach establishment to receive its license after liquor-by-the-drink was voted in by the Nov. 5 referendum. Although the license was not received until 1:30 p.m. on Jan. 9, owner Charles Gardner was prepared to start serving the public by 5 p.m. that same afternoon.

In getting ready for the new service Gardner hired extra personnel and indoctrinated his staff in the new phase of operations. Only a small amount of structural preparation had to be made since The Copper Kettle is in the process of remodeling anyway.

Gardner says they have ingredients for everything except a Margarita, and that is because tequila is not sold in this state. Prices for drinks range from $.80 to $1.25.

Other restaurants in Virginia Beach have applied for licenses and will be receiving them shortly. There are a series of small problems according to AEC sources, however, that are holding up the licensing. These problems include inadequate table sizes, minor discrepancies between floor plans and physical facilities and the lack of certain food items on some menus.

Hatchett enjoys first drink.

Legislators Favor Constitutional Revisions

The reaction in Virginia Beach to the voluminous 542-page document that is the report of the Commission on Constitution Revision was generally favorable.

The 1968 Virginia General Assembly set up the commission under the leadership of State Supreme Court of Appeals Judge and former Gov. Albertis S. Harrison, Jr., to update, modernize and otherwise overhaul the Virginia Constitution. The report was made public last week. Since that time legislators statewide and public officials in all sections of the Virginia General Assembly will be called shortly by Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr. to discuss the report and to enact a new constitution.

Already there is growing sentiment for changes other than those in the report, and most legislators agree the extraordinary session will not be a "rubber stamp" affair.

The major changes in the new proposed document call for an extension of the biennial sessions from 60 to 90 days and the new debt limit would be tied to the general fund revenue, not the value of real estate in the state as it is at present. This would sharply increase the states borrowing power.

It had been thought that tuition grants would be abolished or that the law governing them would be substantially reduced.

A fight is shaping up over this. But probably the item that has met with the least favor so far is the lack of annual sessions. Another floor fight is expected on the methods of borrowing and the debt limit. Virginia Beach legislators say they are generally pleased with the revision job done by the commission. There are, however, disappointments to all three.

State Sen. Edward T. Caton III was unable to be contacted. He left on a hunting trip at the beginning of the week. But Caton has been quoted as saying he is encouraged by the proposed requirement that all school divisions statewide must meet uniform standards or face cutoff of state funds. On the other hand he is reported to have said the power proposed for the State Board of Education is excessive, and he called the new method of bonding a "step in the right direction."

In addition he expressed disappointment over the sections concerning tuition grants. Caton is also reportedly in favor of annual sessions, not recommended in the new Constitution.

Del. B. R. Middleton of Virginia Beach said, "Generally I think they did an outstanding job, but there are several things which I do not agree with." Specifically Middleton said he favored the new debt limit tied to the general fund, but that he was not sure this would still provide sufficient funds for needs. He added that he was opposed to any bonding without referendum and the new Constitution would allow for borrowing part without consent of the voters.

"I personally think it will work much more of a hardship on me for semiannual 90-day sessions than under annual sessions," said Middleton.

He suggested an annual session, if for no other reason than for budget matters. He sees a floor fight over this section, the debt section and voting provisions. Middleton is on the education committee and said he still favors the abolishment of tuition grants.

"The only thing affecting the Beach in particular is the portion for reclassification of real estate," said Middleton. "In urban areas rather than taxing farmers at a residential tax rated the Assembly would be able to fix the tax rate."

Middleton said he favored this since it would affect a large number of residents of Virginia Beach.

Del. Kenneth Whitehurst of Virginia Beach said, "Overall the revision is certainly a betterment for the State, and it's basically good. This revision has modernized the Constitution which is certainly good for Virginia Beach, which is more modern than other cities in the state."

He said he was interested in the section dealing with planning on a regional basis, as advocated, which he said could affect all urban areas. He added that he favors the annual sessions and that he envisions a floor fight over that and the new debt limits.

"I've still got a lot more studying to do on the revisions," He added.

A 71-year-old man died when fire broke out in his residence in the 400 block 33rd Street early Monday morning. Investigators identified the man as Halson R. Battley.

According to Chief E. B. Bayne of the Virginia Beach Borough Fire Dept., the fire broke out in a den in the rear of the first floor of the home and was confined primarily to this area.

Bayne said firefighters found the body of Battley in a corner of the living room in the front of the home. He apparently had started to flee the building by way of the front door then

Beach Struck Light Blow F & M Reports Increases

A check with Virginia Beach institutions and doctors show that even though Virginia Beach has escaped some of the by-products of the flu epidemic such as blood and drug shortages, the area has still been hit by the "bug".

Earl Willis, administrator of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach says that there have been very few cases of flu hospitalized, and even then the hospitalization has been because of related causes rather than the flu itself. The illness has placed a burden on the hospital staff, however, since quite a few employees have been ill.

Willis also said that to his knowledge there has been no shortage of medicines; neither has there been a direct shortage of blood. He did say that if the shortages continue in other areas there could conceivably be a problem here.

Dr. James P. Charlton, a local physician, said that this is the greatest influx of flu since he has been here. The epidemic seemed to start a couple of weeks before Christmas and has continued until the end of last week. He felt that the epidemic was now tapering off.

Dr. Charlton agreed with Willis' observation that there had been no drug shortages. "The druggists have done a terrific job," Dr. Charlton commented, "nobody could get medicine they needed."

The staff in Dr. Charlton's office were hit by the flu, causing a slow-down in operations. According to Dr. Charlton all routine work such as well check ups had to be cancelled during the peak of illness among his staff.

The office of vital statistics of the Virginia Beach Public Health Department reported 386 flu-like cases for the last 10-day period. This figure was

Hearing to Study Crime

The Virginia State Crime Commission, in cooperation with the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce, is planning a public hearing at the City Council Chamber, Norfolk City Hall, on Jan. 23, at 10:30 a.m.

Norfolk Delegate Stanley C. Walker, chairman of the nine-member Commission, said that the Norfolk public hearing will be one of several to be held throughout the State.

The purpose of the hearings, he said, is to learn from segments of the public, including organizations and individuals, the causes of crime and methods for curtailing it.

Chambers of Commerce in Portsmouth, Virginia Beach, Chesapeake, the Peninsula, Williamsburg and Nansemond County will be invited to request local organizations to be represented.

After completing its study, the Commission will submit a report to Gov. Godwin and to the General Assembly, Del. Walker said.

Builders Take Plane To Houston

A large group from Virginia Beach is among the 107 members of the Tidewater Association of Home Builders and their wives who are in Houston, Texas this week attending the national convention of homebuilders.

The Tidewater group chartered United Airlines plane which left Norfolk Regional Airport at 1 p.m. last Saturday according to Bing Carter, TAHB press relations chairman.

Among those in the delegation are the president of TAHB, Howard Weisburg, of Virginia Beach and Stanley Waranch, also of Virginia Beach, who is seeking the national office of vice president-secretary. Waranch is now a national director.

A number of top speakers are expected to address the group during the week on the problems of home building, mortgage loans and tight money, among other subjects.

The next regular meeting of the TAHB will be held on Tues., Jan. 28 at Lake Wright Motor Hotel, Virginia Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr. is scheduled to be the guest speaker.

Courses in English Composition, United States History, Business Organization and Management, and Accounting will be offered Russ said. These are all college credit - three semester hour courses.

Classes will be held on Mondays and Thursdays from 7 to 9:45 p.m. Bulletins for the evening college are available at the Registrar's office.

Applicants should be high school graduates, but may be admitted as special students, if they are 18 years old. Special students are required to maintain a C average.

The College is approved for Veterans benefits under Public Law 89-358 (GI Bill).

Kiwanians Install Officers

New officers of the Virginia Beach Kiwanis Club were installed last week at the club's annual dinner meeting and Ladies' Night at the Americana Hotel.

The new president is Maurice Long. New vice presidents are A. W. Doney and H. E. Phillips. The vice president-elect is Col. J. K. Hostetter (Ret.). S. W. Griffin was installed as secretary and Thomas Kolcum was installed as treasurer.

The installation ceremony was conducted by Kiwanis Lt. Gov. Walter H. Hicks.

The new board of directors of the Virginia Beach service club consists of Barrie Gilley, Jack Johnston, Dick Conick, T. H. Howard and William J. Harna.

During the evening William Kellam presented Hurley Harrell with a plaque as the outstanding Kiwanian of the year in the city. Harrell was honored for his service to the organization and to the city of Virginia Beach.

More Changes Made

Chief W. W. Davis, in his continuing streamlining of the Virginia Beach Police Department, has announced additional personnel changes, advanced training of police officers, and improved operational improvements to increase efficiency.

According to Chief Davis, Capt. Robert K. Halstead, who is in charge of the Central Services Division, will attend a five week "Customer Executive Training Program" at the IBM headquarters in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. The course will consist of the latest advancements in computers systems and how the systems can be put to use in law enforcement.

The department's "K-9 Corps" is being enlarged with additional personnel, and a specialized training program for dogs and their handlers will begin shortly to increase the Corps effectiveness.

Chief Davis has announced steps to increase police protection on the many waterways in and around the resort city. Davis says he is planning on obtaining an additional police boat, preferably in the "28 footer class". Although it's purchase will depend upon the availability of funds, an operational date of this spring is planned. The department already has received tentative approval to dock the boat at slip 13 of the Rudee Inlet Marina. Davis says he has approved the training of officers C. E. Ball, W. F. Bender and C. E. Gmitter in a 12 weeks U. S. Power Squadron boating course for Patrol Boat duty.

New members have been named to the department's Personnel and Accident Review Boards. Lt. C. W. Simmons has been named chairman of the Personnel Selection Board and will be assisted by Lt. W. L. Grant and Sgt. D. G. McCool. Capt. G. K. Bryan has been named chairman of the Accident Review Board, with Lt. C. D. Hathaway, Jr. and Lt. A. R. Nobles appointed as board members.

Sgt. C. N. Kerlee has been appointed officer in charge of the department's Communications Section. While Kerlee will continue to operate from the Central Services Division, he will be responsible for the overall operation of the department's radio and teletype networks.

Capt. W. J. Moore, Jr., Second Precinct C.O., will undergo 12 weeks of training at the FBI National Academy. Moore will become the fifth officer in the Virginia Beach Police Department to graduate from the Academy.

Det. Joseph P. Vitale, Jr., assigned to the Vice Squad, will receive special training at the Federal Narcotics Bureau in Wash., D.C. where he will attend the Law Enforcement School on Dangerous Drugs and Narcotics.

Council

Other appointments made Monday by Council included: Welfare Board-Mrs. Louise Allen, James K. Kontopoulos, Mrs. R. B. Tynes, H. O. Freeman, Charles H. Curl, Marion Bright and Charles Cashman, Jr.; Building Code Adjustment Board-Civil Engineer; Civic Center Committee-James Morrow, James Kontopoulos, Rev. C. M. Morgan, D. Murray Malbon, James Kitchen, Clayton Shoemaker, Albin Mailhes and the President of Va. Beach Jaycees, ex-officio; Community College Committee-Frank Cox, Dr. Clarence Holland and Richard Guy; and Southeastern Virginia Regional Planning Commission-L. H. Burton.

Zoning

same problem. That one was deferred for 30 days.

Kernal Realty Co. was denied zoning changes for 336 units near Virginia Beach Blvd. and Clearfield Avenue because Council felt the best use of the land would be for multiple family dwellings.

The Master plan zoning changes west of Cypress Avenue on 21st and 22nd Streets were again delayed for planning commission consideration.

An application by Lakeside Construction Corp. for a zoning change to industrial at Fenton Street and Indian River Road was denied by Council after much civic league opposition.

A number of apartment and townhouse developments, however, were approved Monday, after Council heard from School Supt. E. E. Brickell that the needs could be met.

An application of Marcus M. Weinstein for 230 units on Laskin Road across from Victor Road was approved, as were 293 units to be built by Lake Edward Corp. Banks Enterprises was granted a use permit to build 124 more nearby the Lake Edward development.

The Cavalier Golf and Yacht Club was granted a use permit to build its new golf and boating facilities replacing the old buildings. The Sandpiper Motel was granted permission to build 14 new units.

Donnelly Advertising Corp. of Va. ran into trouble trying to erect a sign atop the Seay building adjacent to the expressway. The planning commission recommended denial since all efforts are being made to enhance the aesthetic appearance of the property near the road.

Another matter was deferred for 60 days because of confusion over who really opposed the application. Herbert A. Culpepper and others sought to get commercial zoning on the corner of Oceana Blvd. and Virginia Beach Blvd. The Council had already approved a master zoning plan in Oceana calling for more commercial use and more apartments, but did not so recommend for the property in question.

One of those who favored the change this time was a nearby church that had opposed it before. Reportedly the church also has a buyer for its property if the land is zoned commercial.

BBB Checks Agencies' Practices

Charles A. Martak, manager of the Tidewater Better Business Bureau, has announced that his office is conducting an investigation into the practices of certain employment agencies.

"Most agencies are responsible firms," Martak stated, "but a few agencies are using deceptive practices that are causing concern to this Bureau as well as the legitimate agencies."

Two of the principal complaints have involved misleading advertising for jobs, and the failure of certain agencies to fully inform employee-clients of their fees.

The BBB suggests you call them for a free report on any firm, if their reliability is in doubt. The BBB also has a free pamphlet available, "Facts you should know about Employment Agencies."

Three Bound Over

Three men have been bound over to a Virginia Beach Circuit Court grand jury on charges of possessing narcotics. Police officials said the three were charged following discovery of a quantity of marijuana and other drugs in a Pacific Avenue residence last Nov. 25. The accused were identified by investigators as James A. Purvis, 18, Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Richard A. Gommali, 21, and Benjamin F. Gunnell, 21, both of Chicago.

Attempt Fails

Thieves failed in their attempts last weekend to force their way into a safe in the Virginia Beach City Treasurer's Office. Police investigators said thieves chipped a two-foot wide hole through a fireproof safe adjoining the vault. However, entrance to the vault was blocked by a steel reinforced wall which lies the 9 by 10 foot vault room, while the walls of the safe were constructed of hardened steel. Authorities said the building at Princess Anne Courthouse was entered by prying open a window.

Body Found

The body of a Navy man who had been reported missing from the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base was found in an auto parked in a wooded area in the 200 block of 83rd Street. Authorities identified him as John Allen Rhodes, 23, of May, Va. Investigators said the man's body was found by a passerby. Early medical examinations indicated Rhodes died of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Local School Officials Speak to Safety Group

The Virginia Beach Highway Safety Commission held its second meeting Jan. 8 in the Assembly room of the 3rd Police Precinct.

Ed Brickell, superintendent of schools, a member of the Commission and Elmer Barbour, the coordinator of driver education for the Virginia Beach School System outlined their "Driver Education Four Phase Program" for which they were presenting a revision application for Federal matching funds. The Commission approved their project application.

City Council endorsed the action Monday so that federal funds may be allocated.

The Commission discussed generally a number of matters that they may begin to consider toward improvements in the Highway Safety field. It was decided that the main item on hand was asking for suggestions and developing legislative recommendations to be sent to the Governor on Highway Safety as required by the State Code. Chief Johnson, chairman of the Virginia Beach Highway Safety Commission stated, that the Commission invites any thinking from the citizens or those in official positions that they may have for new legislative measures in Highway Safety and indicated that they must have all information before March 1 so that it may be submitted to Richmond.

3 Elected To Board

Three representatives from Virginia Beach were re-elected to the Board of Directors of the Virginia Travel Council at the recent annual meeting of the state-wide travel organization held at the Homestead in Hot Springs.

Mrs. Laura Lambe, of the Laura Lambe Advertising Agency, was re-elected a regional vice-president to represent the Tidewater area. Mrs. Lambe is a member of the board of directors by virtue of the office. Mrs. Lambe chaired a special meeting on municipal advertising during the convention. Re-elected along with Mrs. Lambe were Earl V. Slattum, of Virginia National Bank, and Albin R. Mathews, executive vice-president of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce. Robert Porterfield, of the Barter Theatre, Abingdon, was re-elected president of the council.

ance is scheduled in Virginia Beach Municipal Court tomorrow for a man and woman facing charges of possessing narcotics. Authorities identified the accused as Linda Sue Finnemore, 20, and Thomas Rain Wright, 31. Police investigators said the pair were arrested Sunday during an investigation of a residence on W. Farmington Road, Det. H. J. Coffield told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN the accused are also wanted in Arizona and North Carolina, and that the continuing investigation indicates they may also be wanted on various charges in a number of other states.

Cleared of Charges

Mrs. Dorothy Hendricks Waller has been cleared of charges of possessing stolen property in Virginia Beach Municipal Court. The 42-year-old woman who resides on Rosemont Road was arrested recently in connection with a burglary ring allegedly operating in the resort city. Judge P. B. White dismissed the charges on grounds the woman did not show any criminal intent and that she had no knowledge of items which were found in her home had been taken during burglaries in the city. Seven other persons are awaiting court action in connection with the alleged burglary ring operation.

Norfolk Man Held

A Norfolk man has been bound over to a Virginia Beach Circuit Court grand jury on statutory burglary charges. Police said Daniel E. Neely, 22, of East Ocean View Avenue, has been charged with breaking into Penny's Restaurant. According to investigators $300 in cash and a $200 television set were taken during the burglarizing of the Shore Drive restaurant.

Those desiring to submit their thoughts may do so by contacting the Chairman of the Commission, Reeves E. Johnson, Bureau of Safety, P.O. Box 6175, Virginia Beach, Virginia, 23466 or any of the members on the Commission.

Industrial Authority Answers Occupied with Tract Mean Money

Discussion of the city's new industrial park at Little Creek took up most of the time at the Jan. 7 meeting of the Industrial Development Authority.

At the meeting L. Dean Curtis, city industrial director, revealed plans for an automated air freight terminal facility to be located on the new 183-acre tract. The freight facility would be included in the $12 million general expansion plan for the Norfolk airport. Curtis has met with C. Preston Mangum, Norfolk airport manager about the plans; he has also talked with J. J. Gara, Norfolk Port and Industrial Authority chairman about the matter.

Ralph H. Burke Associates of Chicago, planning consultants for the project, are making final plans for the expansion program. They should file their final report within 90 days.

Other discussion of the Little Creek tract included a proposal that a study be made to best utilize the tract. Paul Royer, a consultant from the Richmond office of Wilbur Smith & Associates, suggested that the port of Baltimore be examined for the study.

Curtis was authorized by the authority to advertise for bids on clearing the land.

Setting aside some land in the Little Creek park for a school site was informally mentioned at the City Council meeting on Jan. 13th. Patrick Standing, director of planning for the city, said, however, that the two uses of the land were incompatible. Other council members said that the land was too valuable to be used for a school site.

The Authority passed a resolution allowing Curtis to spend over $3,000 for preparation of promotion material on the new park. A resolution was also passed asking the city manager's office for action on redistricting of fire districts in the city.

An announcement had been made earlier in the week that another firm had purchased a site in the Virginia Beach Industrial Park located at the Lynnhaven Road ramps of the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway.

The firm, Cardinal Contract Furnishing Co., has purchased 2.5 acres in the park, according to Roger Gray, firm president. A $350,000 building will be erected on the site, with a 30,000 square-foot capacity. Cardinal paid $15,000 for the land.

A studio, showroom, warehouse and offices will be housed in the structure. The firm specializes in furnishing and renting luxury apartments. The end of the year is given as the projected time for starting the building.

Cardinal is the second announced tenant of the Park. The first tenant, Nautical Boat Works, a division of United States Sales Corp. announced their intention of building there in November. The Company plans to build a $250,000 boat manufacturing plant with a supporting office building on the five acres they bought there for about $40,000.

New Light Should Help Intersection

Virginia Beach City Traffic Safety Chief Reeves Johnson says work should be underway next week on installing a new traffic control system at the busy intersection of Virginia Beach and Independence Blvds. The new system, which was planned to have been installed about Labor Day of last year, will permit a smoother, more rapid handling of traffic making left turns onto and from both thoroughfares.

Johnson said the new system, which cost approximately $9,000 for the equipment alone, will consist of four traffic control phases. It is designed to permit a holding of through traffic while left turn traffic is moving. This is expected to greatly reduce the backlog of traffic at the intersection.

According to Johnson, the system will be even more sophisticated than a similar one installed at Ward's Corner in Norfolk.

Another improvement under consideration for the intersection is the lengthening of left turn lanes to permit additional autos making turns to clear the main lanes of the intersection.

Johnson said the Virginia Beach City Highway Commission is continually seeking methods of improving the traffic flow along Virginia Beach Blvd., and that the main problem appears to be improving of handling traffic making turns.

Johnson said that "an overall study for major redesigning of the Blvd. may be needed in the future. However, this is now in the thinking stage only, and no concrete proposal has as yet been made from the Virginia Beach Highway Commission."

In their speeches to the Council of Civic Organizations Jan. 8 School Superintendent E. E. Brickell and City Councilman George R. Ferrell left their audience with the feeling that the real problem in coordinating private development with the construction of new schools is a simple one -- the lack of funds.

Both Brickell and Ferrell presented plans that will help to eliminate the problems of school shortages facing the city in the near future. What neither Brickell nor Ferrell did say is where the funds to execute these plans will come from. Brickell explained to the CCO members how the present plan of co-ordination between the Planning Commission, City Council and School Board works. The plan, which went into effect about two months ago, is one basically of information. The Planning Commission informs the School Board of zoning and building permit applications before they are heard and the School Board is in turn able to tell the Planning Commission and City Council what school demands will be made on a specific area if the applications are approved.

This procedure tells where the schools will be needed, but it does not secure school sites or construct buildings. In view of the almost overwhelming problems concerned with getting school sites, such as the high price of land and the inability to obtain land where it is needed most, Brickell said the School Board is giving "serious thought" to a school planning department. This department would have a trained individual in it to locate and purchase sites.

One plan suggested by Brickell to secure a school land site in Bayside Borough was to swap some of the property at Green Run Farm for property at the Virginia Truck Experiment Station off Diamond Springs Road.

Brickell pointed out one bright spot in the picture. That is a movement on the part of some developers and groups to donate property for schools in areas that are being developed, or may eventually be developed.

Ferrell said the City Council has recently become interested in a five-year program of capital improvement. One phase of the program would be to have $200,000 to $300,000 a year for the sole purpose of purchasing raw school sites before land that

Morse Presented Award Twice

Men of the Virginia Beach Borough Volunteer Fire Dept. were honored with a special dinner dance last Saturday night in marking the installation of the department's newly elected officers.

New officers are E. B. Pinner, president; Paul Mauch, Sr., vice president; William Holland, secretary; Roy Pallett, treasurer; and Father F.V. Bambrick, chaplain. Elmer Tarrall, of the Civil Defense Fire Dept. who installed the officers, praised all firemen of the city for their devotion to duty and protection of the lives and property of the citizens of Virginia Beach.

The highlight of the evening was the naming of the volunteer firemen of the Year. S.W. "Peewee" Morse, a past president of the volunteers with over two decades of service with the unit, received the award. Morse, who was honored two years ago, was cited for his outstanding devotion to the unit and public service to the people of the community. Burks Withers presented Morse with the award, which is sponsored by the Withers & Taylor Real Estate Company.

Among those on hand for the occasion to pay tribute to the volunteers were fire chiefs of all the fire departments in the

A number of special guests invited to attend the event included Virginia Beach City Manager Roger Scott and Mayor

Frank Dusch; Chief R.W. Boggs of the Norfolk Fire Dept.; Chief R. A. Baines of the Suffolk Fire Dept.; and James Jessup of the State Fire Marshall's office in Norfolk.

Dr. H. D. Kahn To Attend Meet

Dr. Howard D. Kahn, of Virginia Beach, is among those registered for the 46th Annual Southeastern Educational Congress of Optometry to be held Feb. 15-18, at the Regency Hyatt House in Atlanta.

The professional vision care practitioner will hear lectures by some of the Nation's most noted authorities in the ophthalmic field. More than 2,000 persons from 20 States are expected to attend.

would be needed in the future goes up in price. At the present the city is having to finance school building 100%. Even the land has to be bought on bond money.

Although neither Brickell nor Ferrell could say where funds would come from to build more schools in order to keep up with the present construction boom, Ferrell said that "some thought" had been given to taxing developers to help defray costs, but it will take state legislation to do anything about it.

Constitutional Update

The report of the commission on Constitutional Revision has turned in a document that appears generally to be an outstanding one geared to a modern Virginia.

What is done with it by the members of the special session of the Virginia General Assembly merely remains to be seen. There is already the promise of a large floor fight on at least one section.

The proposed new Constitution calls for extending the once-every-two-years session from 60 to 90 days. The merits of this are questionable. While there must certainly be arguments in favor it would seem better to meet each year for a shorter period to keep current and to deal with the "now" problems facing Virginia. Perhaps alternate years could only be for budgetary matters, but every two years just doesn't seem often enough.

On the subject of increasing the debt limit and subsequently the state borrowing power the method chosen of matching the limit to the general fund revenue seems fair and even conservative. Although it is a sharp departure from tradition, tradition does not pay the necessary bills.

It is particularly gratifying to note how many private citizens have taken an active interest in this new Constitution. This after all will be the guideline for Virginia for many years to come. We only hope that interest will not wane and that our delegates and senators can take with them to Richmond a real consensus in this matter.

So far the proposed changes appear good. But more refinement must still be made by us through our elected representatives.

The Future of Tourism

City Council has chosen a new advertising board to deal with and dole out the city's $135,000 advertising budget. The Virginia Beach Innkeepers Association was not pleased with the way it was done and sought to delay the selection until they could talk about it with Councilmen. This failed.

The ad board has been trimmed and should now be a working body. It is ridiculous to have such a board when it has not met in two years. The future of tourism is certainly one of the more important aspects of growth in the resort city.

There is no quarrel with the way things have been done in the past as far as advertising or public relations are concerned. But it should certainly seem that a working board should meet and plan with an advertising agency. They must work closely together.

Hopefully the new ad board will choose to set up an executive committee or some sort that can work with City Council on a proposed department of tourism or community relations. Obviously the Innkeepers should have their say. They do now, as one of the members of the ad board is always the Innkeepers president. But perhaps the Innkeepers as a whole should have more say about the promotion of tourism here. How can it be harmful? After all they know more about it than anyone else, and Council would be well-advised to listen.

The growth of tourism has already been fantastic, but plans big ones must be made for the future. Ad board, City Council, department of tourism, Innkeepers, Chamber of Commerce...all of them should be working together toward a common goal. There is no room here for personalities or pettiness. The matter is too important.

Nixon's the One

Now truly, Nixon's the one. He's the one who will serve as Chief Executive of this country for the next four years. His Inauguration Monday begins a period of adjustment that can be extremely painful.

But let us hope this will not be so. Let us hope that the change of Administration can be smooth and that there will be few abrupt changes that can upset the balance of government.

Mr. Nixon has diligently sought the office he now holds. The people have elected him. Now he must lead and the people must follow.

We look forward to the Nixon years as a period of cooling off for a troubled country and troubled world. Both foreign and domestic we face many problems.

and neither Nixon nor anyone else can solve them all quickly. But we must try to bear with our new President as he tries to cope with all these problems.

President Johnson's emotional farewell presented as a State of the Union message pointed out that the cause of freedom is not won easily. Now Mr. Nixon as President must deal with the Vietnam war and attempt to bring it to a successful conclusion, just as one tremendous example.

Trouble has plagued the Johnson Administration as it tried to move the country forward. Now as we place our faith in Nixon we must hope for better.

Winter Problem

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN
What keeps a resort city like Virginia Beach alive during the off-season? I've noticed the many restaurants and motels, closed up and down the beach area. Not only that, I've heard from different people that many establishments which do stay open lose a great deal of money during the winter months.

It seems like such a terrible waste to me. Is anything being done about this situation? Does the city have any kind of study underway which would show how to keep Virginia Beach open all year?

Liquor-by-the-drinks should help. Even if we should get racing in the area it would still be a somewhat seasonal activity.

Has anyone thought of any type of entertainment that could be enjoyed anytime, anywhere, in any weather? Within reason, of course.

People always go to a resort area to have fun. The fun here has been based on sun, sand and water...now with a little spirit thrown in. Other cities seem to do O.K. without benefit of the elements. What are we lacking, other than people?

If the city hasn't a committee working on this problem now, I suggest they appoint a "Fun Committee" in charge of developing and sustaining year-round entertainment. Sincerely, Mrs. C. Mather

Weird Politics

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:
I have read with interest of the dissolving of Virginia Beach's old city planning commission and the establishment of a new one, without some of the members and the old chairman.

The situation is almost laughable. City Council meets in closed session and does away with the old and appoints a new, axing the old boss. Then the dropped members find out about it by reading it in a newspaper. I don't blame Mr. Ben Wroton and others for being just a little miffed and trying to do something about it. It was handled all wrong. But on the other side of the coin, it seems that some members of that all-powerful planning commission have begun to feel too powerful. These folks are appointed by Council, and the Councilmen are elected by the people. Best they realize they were appointed, and who by. I doubt seriously if even the City Charter intended to appoint these men and give them absolute power, even extending to not being able to be fired by the ones who appointed them. Sure it should take a good reason, and streamlining the commission seems a valid reason.

Personally I'm glad this mess is going to court to be settled. And if it favors the fired members on a technicality, what a shame that will be. The commission will then be serving at their own will, with complete power. Then all Councilmen can do is wait for terms to expire.

I have only recently moved here from out-of-state, and have been watching the politics closely. Boy, is this a weird one.

Bailey R. Evans.

Special Report

Issues, Answers and GOP

The proposed new Constitution will surely give some fuel to the small fires that are still burning along campaign trail for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Actually anything will be a shot in the arm to the lagging campaign that may have already reached one of its peaks. The candidates have been remarkably quiet of late. As has already been pointed out this does not mean they are taking Caribbean vacations or have forgotten their course. It merely means they became painfully aware that the whole thing got too early a start.

The people, and after all they are the ones who eventually will make the selection, were already grumbling about the charges and countercharges that were running so wild before Christmas.

The constitutional changes obviously give the three candidates a real issue to talk about. And it is an issue that they should talk about, since one of them will likely be elected governor in November.

There has already been enough naming of campaign workers, and enough labeling of political leanings. The people of Virginia are intelligent folks and deserve to hear how the three feel on specific sections of this proposed new Constitution.

Granted all three made some initial statements about general feelings as soon as it was made public, but they have not really gotten down to the nitty gritty.

Annual sessions, the new debt limits, voting provisions, education, tuition grants, welfare and regional planning are but a few of the things about which the voters of Virginia really want to know how the three Democratic candidates feel.

It is time for Messrs. Battle, Pollard and Howell to get back in the saddle and talk to us. Enough of this running around the state speaking to every little charitable or service organization that can provide ten members of an audience.

The gubernatorial race may take another peculiar twist if Linwood Holton, the golden hope of the Republicans in Virginia is made a federal judge. The judgeship is certainly a plum and if Mr. Holton is offered it by President Nixon, after he takes office, we would be much surprised to see him turn it down. The judgeship has been vacant for some time, and President Johnson does not seem ready to fill it in his last days.

The GOP ranks were also immediately up in arms about this possibility when it became public knowledge. Holton gave the Democrats a good run in the 1965 election against overwhelming odds. He is an extremely popular man and candidate. He has been looked to as a possible compromise if events in the Democratic Primary went all askew.

Quickly the Republicans began to recede their strength in case Holton is removed.

Their immediate conclusion was not a good one. The prognosis shows that while there are some shining stars in the GOP rank and file, none is actually strong enough to be known statewide the way Polton is.

Six months from now the Democrats will have made their choice and will have to live with it. Then the GOP can get into the act with someone. It all depends on whether it is "Judge" Holton or not.

Meanwhile the campaign should begin moving again soon, this time maybe the issues will be discussed.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"You certainly look comfortable sitting there with your shoes off watching television," she said. "Did you forget about having to go to the airport to take that picture of 107 people?"

"No, I didn't forget," he said precisely, without looking up.

"Well, what are you doing here?" she wanted to know. "The plane left about 20 minutes ago."

Okay,

"Yes, I'm aware of that," he said, teeth clenched.

"I get the feeling something went wrong while the kids and I were out," she said. "Want to talk about it?"

"Not really," he muttered. "But I guess I'll have to tell somebody. It may as well be you."

"Now, let's see," she said. "When I left you were shaving and said you had plenty of time since you didn't have to leave until 12:30."

What's

Your

Excuse?

"Right," he said. "I thought I had plenty of time."

"What do you mean?" she asked.

"Well," he began. "I dressed leisurely and noticed that the clock said exactly 12 noon. I put on my watch and noticed it said 12:35. But I knew that couldn't be right. So I called my friendly automatic time lady who assured me it was my watch, not the clock that was correct."

"The clock on the stove downstairs was all right," she said. "And the one in the girls' room. I remember noticing both of them this morning."

"Too bad you didn't notice our clock radio," he pointed out. "Any idea how it might have happened?"

"Well, come to think of it," she said. "I remember one of the girls unplugging it to plug in a toy for awhile yesterday. I guess that did it."

"Short attention span she had," he said. "Only played with it for a half hour."

"At least she plugged it back in, and it could have happened on a weekday and made all of us late. This way it was only you," she said as he winced. "But you still could have made it in time. Why didn't you?"

"I dashed out of the house and noticed the car listing slightly to port," he said. "It was a rear tire, very flat, but of course, only on the bottom."

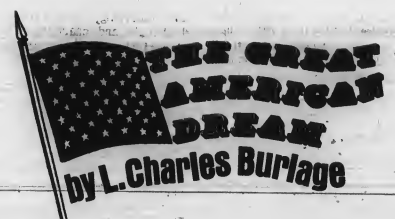

She laughed. He clenched his teeth again. "Did you change the tire?"

"I did not. I called the auto club and let them get their hands dirty," he said. "I've belonged to that thing 14 years and never used them before because I was always in too big a hurry to wait for them. Anyway, they just left. They thought the whole thing was rather amusing."

"So do I," she said simply.

"Would you please tell that to the boss when all 107 people collectively and individually start calling him wanting to know where I was."

"Sure, I'll tell him," she said. "But you don't seriously expect anyone to believe it, do you? Those are the oldest excuses in the world. I'll tell him you overslept."

The whole structure of colonial administration had been molded for the purpose of seeing that the colonies remained in their proper roles: in the royal plan, as producers of raw materials and consumers of manufactured goods. Most of the laws passed in England had this for their purpose.

The colonies, however, were beginning to feel their own muscle separate and distinct from their mother country. Numerous conflicts arose which pitted the interests of the colonists as an entity against the interests of the Crown. Slowly there developed in the minds of the colonists, a conviction of the need to end their dependence on England, America was becoming more self-conscious and sure of herself.

In 1763 the process was hastened. England as its solution to the Indian problem by proclamation forbade any colonists to cross the watershed of the mountains to settle. The English feared, with the savages already hostile, to the English regime, that there would be constant trouble on the frontier if the settlers pressed into the Indian hunting grounds.

In 1764 in an effort to secure additional revenues, the Sugar Act was passed. This was followed by the Stamp Act of 1765 and the Townsend Act of 1767 which taxed every colonist alike and excessively. The excitement was intense. The economic structure of the colonies already seriously affected, was threatened with ruin. The reaction as expressed from Patrick Henry to the dignified papers of the representatives, as well as the mobbing and burning of houses in various towns, made the British government realize it had gone too far. Much that was ominous for the future had happened. There was no turning back. The final Declaration of Independence in 1776 and the military events that followed are too familiar to need retelling. Peace came in 1783.

It was a weak and not wholly united nation which emerged on the stage of world events with the advent of peace. America turned its eyes to a critical examination of itself. It found scarcely a nation, practically there was no central government, merely the empty shell of a loose union. America not only examined itself but slowly and surely it began to turn its eyes to the West.

In 1849, at Sutters Creek there occurred an event that altered the history of the nation -- gold was discovered. It soon became evident that the deposits were fabulously rich. At once, the greatest gold rush in history began, and the "Forty-niners," as the first yearmen came to be called, have forever taken their place in our picturesque history with the Pilgrim, the Pioneer, and the Cowboy.

By 1850, California, which three years before had been a foreign state with its Mexican ranch owners, its Spanish missions and a few scattered American farmers or ranchers, had nearly a hundred thousand Americans, and was in turmoil. Significantly, the frontier had been pushed to the blue waters of the Pacific. American ended for all time its dependency on Mother Europe. It was alive; it had wealth; it had adventure; and it had a serious problem which was forming a dark ominous cloud on the eastern horizon -- it had slavery.

Twin Plays Open At Dinner Theatres

Ed. Note: For the first time in the history of dinner theatres in the area two playhouses have opened with the same play within a few days of each other. Stage Door Dinner Playhouse got the jump by opening with Neil Simon's "Star Spangled Girl" last Saturday night. Lake Wright Dinner Playhouse opened with it on Tuesday night. The merits of such shenanigans will not be discussed, but theater audiences certainly have the right to a confused eyebrow. We will, therefore, not compare the two, but will confine constructive criticism to the merits of the two individual performances. H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

Stage Door Dinner Playhouse opened with "Star Spangled Girl" first. The production is a smooth one, mostly devoid of technical flaws and paced well. The play itself is not necessarily a typical Simon play. His plays usually deal more blatantly with S-E-X. Sex is still the premise of this one, but it is not an obsession.

The action deals with two young protesting men, who publish "Fallout Magazine". Andy is generally a level-headed, nothing phases him businessman. Even though he must use all types of gimmicks and a number of different voices to keep the bill collectors away. In lieu of rent he goes out with his widowed landlady, surfing, sky-diving, to the beach for the weekend, motorcycling, etc. He is just as serious about his magazine as is his writer-partner, Norman. Norman is a brilliant but kooky writer, and all is well until he falls madly in love with the redhead who moves into the apartment next door. His "physical attraction" for her causes him to commit a large number of social blunders. She is having none of all his attentions, however.

Sophie Rauchmeyer is a former Olympic swimmer. She came in fifth, right behind a fat little Egyptian girl who "was raised in the desert." Because of her shame of this she has never returned to her home somewhere "down South". She is almost unbelievably naive and wide-eyed and is entirely wrapped up in her love of the United States of America. Her clash with the protesters brings about some weird results. In what must be classified as a contrived ending, patriot and protester settle their differences through "physical attraction". Incidentally the attraction in all cases begins with small, Simon based motifs of his one-line gags on the sense of smell throughout.

While the play has little message to put forth, it is a funny, lighthearted comedy, full of easy to understand laugh lines. The Stage Door production has a well-rounded cast. Tom Kindle underplays nicely the role of Andy. His almost passive attitude is consistent and a pleasure to watch.

Andy Erwin as the emotional Norman perhaps underplays too much. There is not enough contrast in characters. But he is believable in the role of the suitor who does strange things like chasing Sophie through the YWCA where she was teaching swimming.

But all the laurels in this one belong to Nancy Simpson, making her stage debut. Not only is she attractive and physically right for the role, but she also presents a freshness and charm that is a delight. She combines innocence with petulance and physical attraction with shock. The cluttered set is satisfactory, and Sholzy Margolis' tempered use of red, white and blue costumes is effective. The direction by Jon Dawson tends to get "cutestie" in places where it is not necessary, but generally he has put together a nicely paced production that moves well through the gags and wisecracks. This is an unusual play, and one of the best comedies to come along in a long time.

And Stage Door has turned in a highly acceptable performance. HJL.

Lake Wright Playhouse opened "Star Spangled Girl" apparently before it was really ready to open. There were a large number of technical flaws on opening night that doubtless will be corrected.

The pacing, especially in the first act, was incredibly slow, and while the second act improved, the third again fell short of the mark. The production needs a general tightening. The cues need clipping and a good ten minutes can be chopped off in the process. The result should be another pleasing production of the play.

Ken McGon plays Andy in this one, and underplays far too much. At times his lack of emotional response, his slow deliberate delivery and quiet voice lose the audience almost completely.

Nick DeCarlo is a vital Norman, although he appears more mischievous than eccentric, more lacking in intelligence than kooky. Cricket Coan does an acceptable job as Sophie, but is too delicate and feminine in looks and attitude to portray expertly the fifth place Olympic swimmer. She replaces wide-eyed innocence, called for in the role, with well-timed wisecracking. She seems too knowledgeable and contriving, and not enough deliberate and charming. The playwright says she is not too bright. Miss Coan's character is.

Director Storer Boone has added three dreamlike dance sequences, one for each character. The dances all deal with the "smell" of physical attraction. They break the action of the already slow production and add nothing. In fact they seem to detract from the rest of the production.

Dave McClung's excellent set fills the large stage well and Boone's direction moves his cast through it equally well. The problems are technical for the most part. When it can run smoothly and consistently perhaps the production will be a much better one. HJL

Social Council Meets Friday

The Virginia Beach Council of Social Services will meet on Jan. 17th, 3 p.m., at the VEPCO Building at 525 First Colonial Rd.

Speaker for the meeting is Mrs. Virginia Newburn, Registered Nurse, who will speak on the School Nursing Program. The December meeting of the Council was held on Dec. 13, Horace Ange, supervisor for the Virginia Department of Vocational Rehabilitation spoke at the meeting.

Capt. William A. Schroeder, Jr., commanding officer, Naval Air Station Oceana, presented a retirement certificate to James M. Carter, painter, Public Works Department, Carter, of Millwood Road, retired after 27 years of federal service (four years military and 23 years civilian).

Davis Heads Heart Drive

Graham P. Davis has been announced as chairman of the 1969 Virginia Beach Heart Fund Drive.

Davis, who resides in Virginia Beach with his wife and two children, is president of the Investment Corporation of Virginia in Norfolk.

The month of February is designated as "Heart Month" throughout the nation. Others working closely with the drive are: Dr. W. Andrew Dickinson Jr., president of the Tidewater Heart Association; Hugh L. Dougherty Jr., general chairman for the drive; and Mae Gray, executive director of the Tidewater Heart Association. Davis will announce his Virginia Beach committee in the near future.

Vestry Elects Officers

On Jan. 8 two new members began serving on the Vestry of All Saints' Episcopal Church at 1800 Woodside Lane. The two new members, O. Charles Drescher and Ian E. Goodwin, were elected by the congregation at their annual meeting on Nov. 24, 1968.

Mrs. J. Davis Reed, Jr. and James L. Sisson, Jr., who were filling unexpired terms of vestry members who had resigned, were elected at this congregational meeting to begin serving their own terms of office.

The following were elected as officers of the Vestry at the Jan. 8 Vestry meeting: Senior Warden, Herbert L. Smith, III; Junior Warden, Thomas C. Betterton; Treasurer, F. Henry Weller; Register, James L. Sisson, Jr.

All Saints' congregation is presently attending services held in John B. Dey School on Great Neck Road, but will soon occupy their own building, now in construction at the intersection of Adam Keeling Road and Woodside Lane.

Second Lt. Dwaine E. Mattox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard E. Mattox of Wolfens Road has been awarded U. S. Air Force silver pilot wings upon graduation at Williams AFB, Ariz. Lt. Mattox is being assigned to Robins AFB, Ga., for flying duty with the Military Airlift Command.

Program To Feature Spurrlows

Tidewater Youth For Christ will present "The Spurrlows in Sacred Splendor" at the Virginia Beach Civic Center Feb. 7 at 7:45 p.m.

The musical program will feature an a cappella chorus, brass choir, men's glee club, plus a versatile blending of vocal and instrumental quartets, trios, duos and solos and a message by Thurlo Sparrow. The sacred concerts, in addition, include expressions of personal faith in Jesus Christ by members of the group.

Tickets are available, in advance, to church groups. The special church rate for 10 or more is $1.50 per ticket. Tickets at the door will be $1.75 each.

Deadline for special group rate is Jan. 31. For tickets write Tidewater Youth for Christ, P.O. Box 1283, Norfolk, Va. 23501. Additional information may be obtained by calling 625-2588.

Census Counts TV Sets

Mrs. Audrey L. Hayden, Virginia Beach interviewer for the Bureau of Census, will participate in a television equipment survey the week of Jan. 20.

A sample of residents in this area will be asked about the television sets in their households as part of a nationwide survey at this time, according to Joseph R. Norwood, Director of the Bureau of the Census Regional Office in Charlotte.

The questions are aimed at determining the proportion of households in the U.S. with television sets, the proportion with color sets, and the proportion with sets which can receive UHF. Answers to these questions help government and business in decisions affecting the establishment of new broadcasting facilities.

The survey is taken annually. Last year's figures showed that approximately 94 percent of the households in the United States had at least one television set. Approximately 19 percent of the households had color set and 42 percent were equipped for UHF reception.

The TV questions supplement the Bureau's regular monthly employment survey which provides data to the U. S. Department of Labor for updating national employment figures.

The identity of households in the survey is confidential, and the information obtained will be used for statistical purposes only.

Bishop Rose to Open Mission

Last week, six Episcopal ministers were in Virginia Beach for a Preaching Mission which will be held at Galilee Episcopal Church Feb. 9-13. Bishop David S. Rose will open the mission.

The ministers are Rev. Robert K. Pierce, assistant rector of St. John's in Hampton; Rev. James Lincoln from Christ's Episcopal Church, Richmond; Rev. Frederick J. Warneke, rector of Emmanuel Church, Richmond; Rev. Leonard Graves, Rev. Howard Larue, rector of Crewe-Kenbridge Cure Parish; Rev. John McAlister from Gastonia, N. C., and Rev. Dabney Willford from southern Virginia will preach at the night services, beginning at 7:30 p.m., Sunday through Friday, according to Rev. John H. Jordan, Jr. and Rev. William H. Brake, Jr., rector and assistant rector of Galilee.

Each of the evening services will include a 30 minute "hymn-sing", a 30 minute question and answer period with a panel of ministers and a 30 minute sermon. Later the congregation will adjourn to various homes, where "the skies-the-limit" questions will be discussed.

Each morning, Monday through Friday, Bishop Rose will hold, with Rev. Jordan, "Healing through Faith Services" at 10:30 a.m.

According to Rev. Jordan, "The purpose of the Mission is 'conversion to Jesus Christ', in simple layman's words, to make the Lord Jesus Christ more real in the lives of our people. These ministers are literally giving five days of their lives to use them as we will in our effort to better know the teachings and healings of Jesus Christ."

Non-members and friends of Galilee are cordially invited to attend the Preaching Mission.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

The Virginia Beach Shore Patrol Detachment is losing two old hands. P.O. J. C. Knight is leaving the unit to undergo training on the west coast before taking up duties in the waters off Vietnam. C.P.O. D. J. Greig says he will be leaving the unit in the near future on reassignment to Honolulu.

Graham White, City Civil Defense Coordinator, says preparations are under way for the Virginia Beach C.D. Unit to take part in a nationwide radio test.

Indications are the program will consist of transmitting messages from the resort city to distant points around the world by means of a radio-relay system.

Kempsville Volunteer Fire Dept. Chief Elson Swartzentruber says three new men have joined the department.

Swartzentruber indicates Bob Casey, Ralph Record and Jim Chambliss will be devoting the large portion of their time during the coming months to completing necessary first aid courses and fire fighting training programs. Jack Fentress, game warden at the Back Bay Station, said yesterday was a bleak one for hunters taking to the blinds on the last day of hunting season.

NARCE Plans Jan. 23 Meet

The Rev. Clayton E. Crigger of St. Francis Episcopal church in Princess Anne Plaza was the guest speaker at the December meeting of the Virginia Beach Chapter of NARCE.

The next meeting of the Chapter will be held at 2 p.m. on Jan. 23 in the old city council chambers on 19th Street near Arctic Avenue.

son. Fentress says waters around the Bay were iced over so thick hunters didn't have much of a chance to bag their limit. Another new man has joined the staff at the Back Bay Station. Donald Hinchey, who just recently completed training, has taken up duties in assisting sportsmen in the Back Bay area as well as enforcing regulations governing hunting and fishing.

Men of the Virginia Beach police department have recently formed a basketball team and are taking on competition from the Tidewater area. The next game is scheduled for next Monday at 7 p.m. in the gym of Norfolk's Azalea Gardens Junior High School, when they will be facing a team of noted barristers of the area.

A big question still unanswered is who was the most surprised when a 17-year-old juvenile was charged with burglarizing a policeman's home. Det. J. W. Pritchard returning home from duty in the early morning hours before retiring left the front door unlocked for Mrs. Pritchard who was expected home from work shortly. When Mrs. Pritchard arrived she thought it was her husband who was asleep in the den. When she discovered Det. Pritchard asleep in an upstairs bedroom, he was awakened and promptly aroused the "uninvited guest" who was taken into custody on a burglary charge.

Bus Tours Scheduled

Carolina Coach Company has scheduled 13 escorted tours, with a total of 23 departures, for its 1969 program.

Departing from Raleigh, Richmond or Norfolk are tours to Florida-Nassau, the Deep South, California, the Golden West and the Pacific Northwest. These and many others will each have two departures. Tours with only one departure date slated are: Historic New England, Canadian Holiday, Old Mexico and the Gaspé.

The excursions will range from 3 to 29 days and all feature travel aboard a deluxe Trailways, climate controlled, restroom equipped motor coach.

A penny's worth of electricity will bring you two hours of TV. So for a penny you can see four quarters of your favorite football team in action.

And did you know that Veeco has reduced the rates residential customers pay three times in the last six years? As a matter of fact, electricity is one thing that actually costs less than it did in 1941.

If your bill is a little higher, it's because you're using a lot more electricity today.

How many football games did you see on TV in 1941?

They Sing What They Believe

By Carolyn McAllen

The teenaged audience was obviously skeptical as the Sing-Out Virginia Beach cast ran down the aisles toward the stage at the beginning of a recent concert. But by the end of the program the tide had changed, and the audience was clapping in time to the swinging rhythm of the group on stage.

Sing-Out Virginia Beach has two important attributes—enthusiasm and a complete belief in what the group stands for. They are not professional singers. They are local teens whose aim and purpose is to "unite all races and faiths in living examples of absolute moral standards—honesty, purity, unselfishness and love, and by so doing, strive to right what is wrong in the world today."

"We are a group of young people proving that all teenagers are not bad," said Robert Cox, the stage manager.

Sing-Out Virginia Beach is one of hundreds of local casts patterned after three major national casts and backed by Moral Re-Armament formed in 1965. Their songs were written with their ideals in mind. The national "Up With People" show was awarded the George Washington Medal of Honor by the Freedom Foundation.

Sing-Out groups have traveled around the world presenting their message since the first group was organized in 1965. All groups sing the same songs, so members who move or go away to school can easily transfer to another group.

The local group is under the direction of Preston Waters, Norfolk State College student. They sometimes join with the Norfolk Sing-Out for programs. During Christmas they made several trips to the Portsmouth Naval Hospital.

Part of the Sing-Out Virginia Beach group as they performed recently at Kellam High School.

Rehearsals are held at Princess Anne and First Colonial High Schools. To become a member, students must be 15 years old or a sophomore, mature, dependable and able to accept responsibilities. For further information, contact Walter Corliss at 497-8673.

The group is year-round, not just during school. Last summer the Sing-Out Virginia Beach gave several concerts including two during the Chamber of Commerce Children's Week.

Most people are familiar with the song "Up With People" which the national group originated, but one of the most impressive songs on the program is "What Color Is God's Skin?" The titles tell something of the message of these teens, for instance "Life Is Getting Better Every Day," "Speak-Out," "I Want to Be Strong," "Which Way America?"

Sing-Out Virginia Beach is accompanied by their own combo. Musical direction and choreography is all their own with the support and help of the national groups. The girls make their brightly colored jumpers.

Anyone who has not seen the group should make a point of doing so. As stated by Robert Cox, "If everyone lived by Up With People the world would be a better place for all humanity to live in peace."

Business Courses Are for All

"Some students graduate from high school without knowing how to write a check or balance a check book," Mrs. Mary Barber, business and office education coordinator at Princess Anne High School, told members of Cape Henry Women's Club Thursday.

She said that the general business course offered in the ninth and tenth grades helps everyone—the consumer, producer and worker.

Mrs. Barber pointed out that 80% of the high school graduates in the United States do not go to college, "but I understand the percentage in Virginia Beach who attend college is higher." She added that 45% of the total employment is in offices and that 25% of high school graduates go directly to office jobs. "We should urge more young men to take vocational and business education," she said. "Business and office education is the only area in high school which prepares a student to have an employable skill."

Besides classroom courses and practice, students receive "on the job" training in their senior year, Mrs. Barber said. She works between the business community and students in placing them on the job for half a day. She said there are presently 26 students employed, and several of them have received salary increases.

She added that adult business classes at night have increased.

In addition to Mrs. Barber's talk, Linda Wilkins, Princess Anne High School S.T.A. president, reported on her trip to Girl's State which was sponsored by Cape Henry Women's Club.

Making plans for the 99th Founders Day Service of Kappa Alpha Theta are Mrs. Thomas Buell, president of the Virginia Beach alumnae chapter; Mrs. E. Page Preston, vice president; and Mrs. M. G. Marlay Jr., a member of the planning committee. Checks for the luncheon ($3), which will be held Jan. 25 at Princess Anne Country Club, may be mailed to Mrs. Buell at 1345 Great Neck Rd. by Jan. 22. For further information call Mrs. Marlay at 464-3877 after 6 p.m.

YWCA Announces Schedule

If your winter schedule isn't full, the Virginia Beach YWCA is starting a new series of classes which will begin in February.

Fees for most classes are $8 plus membership in the YWCA. Some have a nursery available.

Registration for classes at Lekies United Methodist Church will be from 10 a.m. to noon on Jan. 28 with classes running from Feb. 4 to March 25. Classes are Sewing (modified Bishop), Quilting and Rug Hooking, Oil Painting, Knitting, Trimmings, Cooking, Home-makers Trickery and Bazaar Crafts.

First Presbyterian Church will have registration on Jan. 20, 10 a.m. to noon with classes beginning Feb. 5. Classes are Bridge, Drawing, Water Colors, International Cooking, Dressmaking (not for beginners), Oil Painting (beginning and advanced) and Modern Dance.

Golf will be taught at Stumpy Lake Golf Course beginning at 10 a.m. Feb. 19. Tennis class dates will be announced later. Bowling instruction will begin at 1 p.m. Feb. 19 at Brunswick Plaza Bowl.

Registration for classes in the Attic of the YWCA Branch at 303 30th St. may be made at any location or at the YWCA. Classes there will be China Painting (beginning Feb. 3), Mah Jong (Feb. 4), Chinese Brush Painting (Feb. 4), Ceramics (Feb. 5). Tailoring will be taught in the Thalia area at 4376 Lynville Cres., beginning Feb. 6.

Persons interested in any of these classes are asked to register at least three days before the first class, since some classes have limited enrollment.

Swimming classes for adults and children, beginning through Swimmers, will be offered in April and May at the Cavalier pool.

Classes for Virginia Beach pre-schoolers (4 to 6 years old) will be held at W. Willis Houston Memorial Boys' Club at 3401 Azales Garden Rd. in Norfolk. Registration will be by mail only to the Virginia Beach YWCA office. Classes will be in Feb. 4 and run through March 25 on Tuesdays.

For further information on any classes, contact the YWCA at 428-8228.

Mrs. Virginia Wilson

She May Be One of a Kind

By Yatta Jones

Mrs. Virginia Wilson is probably one of the busiest civic workers in Virginia Beach. She is part of that group found in every community that are devoted to building and improving the community.

In addition to being an energetic worker Mrs. Wilson is an interesting individual. One of her civic organization jobs, president of FOPA #8, Princess Anne Lodge of Virginia Beach, is a highly unusual one. It is quite possible that she is the only woman in the United States filling this particular position.

When the original Princess Anne FOPA group was organized about 15 years ago, Mrs. Wilson and the secretary of the present organization, Mrs. Lucille Clark, became charter members. Mrs. Wilson was first vice president of the original organization as well as president for four years. Mrs. Clark served as secretary during Mrs. Wilson's previous term as president and as far as anyone knows Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Clark were the first, possibly the only women serving as FOPA officers in the United States.

Mrs. Wilson is enthusiastic about the workings of the FOPA. "The objective of the Association is promotion of the betterment of police officers' lot," she explains. "They are not allowed to have a union, so we work in their behalf. Our particular group has been instrumental in getting raises and longevity plans here...Right now we are working on a trust fund for the children of deceased officers McClung and Monette."

The membership of FOPA groups is not an open one. New members have to be proposed and unanimously voted in by the existing members of the group. Mrs. Wilson feels very honored to be a member. "I have never had a job that paid anything," she says, "and most of the membership is composed of lawyers, doctors and business executives."

When asked what the basis of her success is in working with men in a man-oriented group, Mrs. Wilson replied, "One of the secrets of being able to get along with men is in being able to think like a man. I'm an organizer...I don't jump to conclusions. Men are more analytical than women...When you work with people you'd better know both sides before forming an opinion."

Mrs. Wilson also attributes part of her successful work with the FOPA group to Mrs. Clark. "I could have accomplished nothing without Lucille...she is a very efficient secretary."

Another organization in which Mrs. Wilson is active is La

Sertoma. She is a past international president of this group and holds the office of parliamentarian now, in working with La Sertoma Mrs. Wilson has had to travel a great deal...In fact she is going to Kansas City next week to attend a board meeting. She has friends from Canada, Mexico and Puerto Rico, as well as all over the United States as a result of her association with La Sertoma. "I came out of office with high blood pressure," she says, "but it was worth it!"

In addition to FOPA and La Sertoma Mrs. Wilson has worked 15 years with the Girl Scouts, served at one time as president of the Woman's Democratic Club and played a large part in getting recreational facilities at East Ocean View for young people.

Mrs. Wilson and her husband, Everett, who is a mechanical contractor, live in a beautiful house in Alantone. The house is situated right on the edge of Linkhorn Bay. Mrs. Wilson drew the plans for the house. Whenever they are able to, the Wilsons enjoy spending time with their two grandchildren.

Having worked with young people for years, Mrs. Wilson has formed some definite opinions about the youth of today. "Young people today are smarter, more well-rounded and just as good as the older generation ever thought of being," she says. "I blame the newspapers and TV for playing up the bad ones...people never hear about the good ones."

"Parents do indulge their children too much. When you read about teenagers who get 'hooked' on narcotics, for instance, you know they had to get the money from somewhere in the beginning...usually from their parents."

The present rate of progress throughout the country saddens Mrs. Wilson because there are so many things that have had to be done away with that were good. "The children today will never see a really big circus...even a simple thing like building a fire on the beach is prohibited now...young people can't even go for a long walk safely."

Mrs. Wilson admits to selfishness when she mourns the phenomenal growth of Virginia Beach. "I hate to see it growing as fast as it is," she says, "because I don't know everybody!"

Mrs. Wilson is a busy worker who has found time not only to raise her own child, but also to spend hours working for other people's children. If you ask her how she manages she will answer without hesitation, "I enjoy people, and if you do, you get involved in civic work."

Virginia Beach is a much better place because Mrs. Wilson got involved.

Pull a Tooth and Bury the Turtle

I'd have been better off if I had stayed at the office Friday.

When I got home the seven-year-old came in crying that she had lost her tooth in the yard next door. She was worried because she didn't have a tooth to put under her pillow for the tooth fairy. I finally convinced her that we could write a note to the fairy explaining the situation.

That was great until the next morning. The fairy forgot. Then, after some quick thinking, I told her that there were probably lots of teeth pulled Friday and the fairy just didn't have time to get to everybody. For some reason, she accepted that. The fairy, with a few gentle reminders from "daddy," arrived Saturday night.

That was when I discovered that the seven-year-old had gotten the little girl next door to pull the tooth in the first place so that she could get a dime to buy me a birthday present. We convinced her to spend it on herself. She did—ice cream.

Friday night at supper we had a long discussion of the fate of a very dead turtle that had been buried and unburied numerous times in the last three weeks.

The kids said that some of the neighbors' kids had dug it up again. I told them to bury it somewhere and not tell anybody about it.

We finished supper—all except for the four-year-old, and left the room. Then I heard the four-year-old call me. I went back and he stated flatly, "That turtle's not going to Heaven."

What can a parent answer to that?

Cavaliers to Go Dutch

Mrs. Gerrard Van de Griendt from Rotterdam, Holland will be guest of honor at the Cavalier Junior Women's Club's Fifth Annual International Affairs Dinner, 6:30 p.m., Jan. 16 at Thalia Methodist Church.

Mrs. Van de Griendt, whose husband is stationed in Norfolk with Saclant and is Commander in Chief of the Royal Dutch Navy, and is the mother of two young children, will speak to the club members and their guests about her homeland, following the dinner of authentic dishes from The Netherlands.

The recipes were compiled and prepared by members of the Public Affairs Department, Mrs. Frank L. Hughes, chairman. The menu includes a fresh fruit and relish tray, Dutch Hash (beef dish), Chicken and Noodles, Boiled Potatoes (a must with all Dutch dinners), Dutch Green Beans, Dutch Cole Slaw and Pannkoek (bread). Dessert will be Dutch Apple Cake and Pineapple Pie. The Netherlands theme will be continued with centerpieces of tulips and wooden shoes.

In previous years, guests from Italy, South America, England and France have been invited by the Cavalier Club. Many enjoyable hours are spent by Department members, planning the menu, testing recipes and making unique favors and centerpieces to correspond with each country. It has become a highlight of the club year.

Pi Phi's Plan

Pot Luck Dinner

Virginia Beach Pi Beta Phi Alumnae are planning a pot luck buffet dinner at 6:30 p.m. Feb. 17 at the home of Mrs. Mark Schweitzer of 6353 Taylor Dr.

Anyone who is eligible for membership in the group is asked to contact the president, Mrs. Jefferson Terry, Jr.

In January the Pi Phi's met at the home of Mrs. Norris Barnes III on 60th Street, Slides of Holt House where Pi Beta Phi was organized at Monmouth College were shown.

Block Mothers Meet Jan. 22

The Tidewater Council of Block Mothers will meet at 7:30 p.m., Jan. 22, at Norfolk Highland School.

Guest speaker will be Capt. Roans, whose topic will be "The Child Molester." This program is one of a series the TCBM has planned to educate the general public on all phases of child protection.

All meetings are open to the public and are held on the fourth Wednesday of each month.

HERE COMES OLGA!

Wednesday night a week ago the Virginia Beach Kiwanis club held their annual dinner meeting at the Americana.

This meeting the women were asked to attend, as it was the installation of new officers and board of directors.

When I entered the Americana, there were quite a few of the people standing in the lobby talking with one another. My first impression was that this crowd was full of themselves apparently happy and certainly not tired from Christmas and New Year's parties. Dick Cochick and Pic Garrison were so very nice at seeing that I met everyone and that I was welcomed to join the club both for cocktails and dinner.

Every man had a name tag on so it made it very easy to get names. All I had to do was look at the name tag and then ask if his wife was also attending. All of them being Virginia Beach people I felt right at home because I knew so many of them personally. It is always easier and more enjoyable if you know the crowd.

On my way to the bar I first ran into Mr. & Mrs. A. W. Craft, Jr., Col. (ret.) J. K. & Mrs. Hostetler, Mr. & Mrs. Barrie Gilley, Mr. & Mrs. J. E. (Ed) Nixon, Mr. & Mrs. Pic Garrison and Mr. & Mrs. Jack Johnston. By the time I had talked with them for a while it was time for the people to start in the dining room for dinner.

Walking into the dining room I saw quite a few packages wrapped in Christmas paper. For a while I thought maybe Santa had forgotten something, but I soon found out that every woman was given a number and these numbers would be drawn later to see which woman would receive the prizes. Each woman was, of course, hoping that each number pulled would be hers as all of them could not win. There were about 15 gifts. These gifts were bought with money that Pic Garrison had made by seeing any member of the Kiwanis Club without their Kiwanis pins during 1968. He would collect a quarter as a penalty and it was with this money that the gifts were bought for the women. Dick Cochick got different people to draw a number and Al Craft, Jr. would present the gift, but he in return would get a kiss. I would say that Al Craft had the best of this deal.

Some others attending were: Mr. & Mrs. Hurley Harrell, Millard Strickler, John Haffling, Mr. & Mrs. Tom Couch, Mr. & Mrs. Phil Phillips, Mr. & Mrs. B. F. Kay, Mr. & Mrs. William Hughes, Mr. & Mrs. Henry Jaffee, Mr. & Mrs. J. N. (Nick) Scarborough, Mr. & Mrs. Jim Moody, William Kellam, Mr. & Mrs. Warren Thode, Mrs. Marjorie Mondaca, Mr. & Mrs. H. C. Bradshaw and Mr. & Mrs. Ambler Hatchett and Mr. & Mrs. Jimmie Long.

Mrs. Jack Johnston was very attractively dressed in a Scotch outfit - black jersey top with Scotch plaid scarf thrown around the neck, a Scotch plaid skirt, black hose and shoes. Believe me with her blonde hair, pretty face and neat figure she really looked good.

Mr. & Mrs. Ed Nixon were congratulated on their 25th wedding anniversary by the president of the club, Jim Hall. Hurley Harrell was presented with a plaque by William Kellam for outstanding service to the Kiwanis club and to his city. Joe Lagiglia presented a check for $500 to Jack Tignor for the Virginia Society of crippled children.

Lt. Gov. Walter Hick of the Kiwanians installed the new members for 1969. Of course each member was pinned by Lt. Gov. Hick as he called out their names and the office they would hold for 1969.

Others seen were: Mr. & Mrs. Bob Howard, Mr. & Mrs. Joe Lagiglia, General (ret.) & Mrs. Don Clayman, Mr. & Mrs. Hart Slater, Mr. & Mrs. J. B. Dent, Mr. & Mrs. Tom Kolcum, Dr. & Mrs. William J. Harna, Mr. & Mrs. Ralph L. Merritt, Mr. & Mrs. Zeb Cummings, Mr. & Mrs. James Land, Mr. & Mrs. Tom Follary, Mr. & Mrs. Jim Hall, Mr. & Mrs. K. G. Darst, Bob Dent, Miss Kay Blue, and Mr. & Mrs. Andy Fine.

Before dinner the invocation was given, and Bill Kellam lead the crowd in song with Pic Garrison at the piano singing "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Everyone sat down to a very nice dinner, fillet of roast beef, baked potato, green peas, salad, tea or coffee and dessert.

Try not to get the Hong Kong Flu, and I will see you maybe next week.

Dam Neck NWCA

The Dam Neck Chapter of the Navy Wives Club of America has scheduled a tour of the training facilities at the Fleet Anti-Air Warfare Training Center for today, Jan. 16.

According to Mrs. Virginia Dagenkolb, president of the Dam Neck Chapter, the tour is aimed at bolstering the membership of the Dam Neck group due to periodic rotations of married enlisted men stationed here. Navy, Marine and Coast Guard wives with husbands assigned to Dam Neck are invited to attend.

A luncheon in the Enlisted General Mess and a baby-sitting service will be provided for a nominal charge.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Dye of Colonial Arms Circle, photographed aboard the Ingres Line flagship, "M. V. Victoria" just before sailing from New York for a cruise to the West Indies. They were married Jan. 2 in Upper Montclair, N. J., Mrs. Dye's former home.

Dining together at the Kiwanis dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Barrie Gilley, Millard Strickler, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Moody and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Couch.

Body Shirts Gain Popularity

It's not always easy to trace the origin of a fashion. But the new "body shirts" which have become the darling in the separates department seem directly traceable to those worn by western heroes who have beguiled their way through screen and late-late shows for years.

It took an "Instant" pace maker to put body shirts into high-fashion gear. The catalyst was Jackie Kennedy Onassis. When she recently chose several western-styled shirts for a holiday, the feminine world adopted the cow-pokes shapely shirts for its own-with variations.

Gregory & Goldberg, pace-setters in shirt fashions (last year they captivated fashion with Victorian ruffles) turns out a collection of "Bandura" Body Shirts that are downright irresistible for their charm and their easy-care.

All have the easy-fitting contour-cut of western "body" shirts-but there's no mistaking their feminine looks. Turtle-necks, Nehru necklines, Peter Pan collars, sissy ties, shirt or slender sleeves are some of

While the body shirt is usually worn inside the skirt, there's nothing of the "stuffed shirt" look about them. Their paternal ancestor, the cowboy shirt, stayed close to the body, but they would be plumb surprised if they could see this contour look on city gals! These Gregory shirts, in white or new bright colors, make costumes

Ice Cream Is Year 'Round

Betty Brownell, home economist for the National Association of Food Chains, suggests ice cream for the winter hostess. Served in a myriad of ways, ice cream is loved by all.

In a frozen pie, ice cream takes on a more elegant appearance. A no-bake coconut crust forms a base, then three flavors of ice cream fill the shell. Combinations such as chocolate, vanilla and coffee delight diners, especially when the luscious offering is topped with toasted coconut to match the crust.

A gourmet's delight might be large oranges, scooped out and filled with three flavors (make one of them orange sherbert) of ice cream. After being frozen overnight, the oranges become glazed and frosty.

A clever cook might sauce the oranges with a cooked mixture of the scooped-out orange juice (with some of the pulp), sugar, water and cinnamon sticks. Make a hole in the ice cream for the hot sauce.

Fragrance and Glamour Combine

Would you like to add new glamour to your cooking and also new fragrance to your home and garden? This is easily done with herbs. You may grow your own, or secure them at your favorite grocery or supermarket.

The search for herbs and spices has led men on many perilous voyages ever since the earliest days when cooking became an art. Even Columbus was looking for them when he discovered America. Now we can produce many useful herbs in our gardens or in pots or window boxes inside or outside the home.

Add new zest to your meals this winter with herbs and spices from the store. Plan to include herbs in your garden next summer to produce your own supply.

Anise seeds give a mild licorice flavor to cookies, candy and cake. Old records tell us they were used by the Romans to ward off the evil eye. Also, did you know that bags filled with anise have been used as a drag to train foxhounds?

Basil is another very old herb which was known to the ancient Greeks. The name means king. This one has a clove flavor and is especially good with foods involving tomatoes. Try it also with eggs, soups, stews, chopped meats or with butter sauce on fish.

If you like the zip of Mexican food do not forget paprika, chili and cayenne peppers. These may be grown in your garden for use fresh, or purchased in the dry ground form. The pungent types, and the mild forms which are used in salads, stuffing and pickles, are native to tropical America. They were used by native peoples for many years before the discovery of the New World.

Paprika is a mild member of the pepper family which is rich in vitamins A and C. The ancient Aztec Indians developed the use of chili which we now enjoy in chili con carne. If you use the fiery cayenne, do so with caution. It is the hottest of the red peppers.

Chives are especially useful to give a mild onion flavor to soup, cottage cheese, salad or egg dishes. This fine vegetable must be used fresh as it loses its flavor when dried. Plant the small bulbs next spring so you can have some to raise in the house in pots next winter.

Parsley is a dependable herb for all gardens and has several culinary uses. Its use does not need to be restricted to the fresh leaves. The dried or flaked product adds color and a distinctive mild flavor to many dishes. In particular, you should try minced parsley in cream soups.

Sage is one of our most popular herbs. It comes to us from Yugoslavia where it grows wild. The leaves are used in poultry stuffing, baked fish, sage tea, sausage and chowder.

Check your cook books for suggestions relative to the use of herbs. You may also ask the Extension agent in your county for a copy of "Spices and Herbs," which gives suggestions for adding glamour to everyday meals.

VIRGINIA BEACH Garden Club News

Cardinal Garden Club

The Cardinal Garden Club met Tuesday, Jan. 14 at the home of Mrs. Gordon Potter at Hilltop.

Milton Larson of the Norfolk Botanical Gardens spoke on "Formal and Informal Planting of Gardens and Lawns." Refreshments were served.

Lake Joyce

Lake Joyce Garden Club began the new year by honoring three members at the first regular business meeting of 1969, at the Shore Drive Inn.

Mrs. Cecil H. Reed and Mrs. Everett P. Seay were honored with lifetime membership in the National Council by a donation of $200 to the National State Garden Clubs Permanent Home, Botanical Gardens, St. Louis, Mo. The home is the permanent headquarters for all member Garden Clubs of the 50 states.

Honored also was Mrs. B. T. Bateman by a donation of $50 to the Federation of Garden Clubs of Norfolk and Vicinity, Inc. Her name will be inscribed on the new bronze plaque in the Educational Building. The club donated $5 for Seeds for Peace.

The speaker, Mr. Milton Larson, of the Botanical Gardens, lectured on Attitudes and Relations of Form and Color in landscaping and showed colored slides.

Exhibits were judged by Bayview Garden Club.

May Farm

Mrs. M. J. Schwartz spoke on antiquing and arranging flowers at the January meeting of the May Farm Garden Club.

Judges were from Great Neck Garden Club. A blue ribbon in arranging was awarded to Mrs. B. T. Thompson and a blue ribbon in horticulture to Mrs. R. W. Winbauer.

Flower Show Judges

The Tidewater District Council of Accredited Flower Show Judges met Monday, Jan. 13 at the Norfolk Botanical Gardens Administration Building.

Mrs. L. M. Caputo presented a program on "What's New in Design" and demonstrated her talk by making three original designs.

Just getting acquainted with the avocado? The versatile fruit is ripe when it yields to gentle pressure. Too hard? A day or two on the window sill will soften the avocado. Then it needs a chilling in the refrigerator before it's ready to be added to soups and salads, sandwiches and sherbets.

Sooner or later, that day comes, the day when a woman feels she's changing. It's not a good feeling either. And she could use a good old-fashioned medicine then.

Could be you feel a little edgy, or maybe cross. You might even have what we call hot flashes and feel sad and slightly off-balance.

Whatever you feel, we have something for the day you need a little comforting. Lydia E. Pinkham Tablets. They're made with gentle, natural ingredients that work to give you a better sense of well-being.

Outdoor living is an increasingly important part of lives. As this becomes a more important part of our lives, so will the landscape features of our properties become more important. Outdoor features which affect your landscape are fences and walls, steps, edgings, paving, pools and retaining walls. Today's gardens will undoubtedly need and use some of these features.

Fences and walls are the enclosures that form the sides of the garden room. They provide privacy and protection, and most important, give definition to the garden spaces just as the walls of a house define the rooms.

Paving is used for walks, drives, terraces and service areas that are subject to intense use and wear, and is one of the major design elements in the garden. Different materials may be combined in an infinite variety of patterns to satisfy the designer and intrigue the observer.

Steps have as their primary function to provide us a safe and comfortable transition from one level to another. Their final allegiance is always to the people who use them, and in detail they must never fail to relate to the scale of the human figure.

Retaining walls are often required on sloping ground to provide enough level space for a useful landscape, or to prevent erosion on steep slopes that will not support plant material, and that cannot be mowed or otherwise maintained.

An edging is used to define lawn and planting areas and to simplify grass cutting. Jagged edgings, such as bricks on end, present a hazard, an increase in maintenance, and an unpleasant "fussiness".

Pools are used for enrichment, swimming, fish, or lilies. Water is a primary source of enrichment in any landscape. No matter how small the amount, it will give a cooling effect. Still water is restful. Moving water, because of its sparkle and sound, is exciting.

Feed Family on Budget in Style

Feed the family in style -- keep the budget in line. That's a standing order for home cooking. But what happens when the chef just plain runs out of inspiration?

Then she can rely on the grocer's dairy case for easy gourmet touches at affordable prices, that's what.

Here are three examples -- meals built around time-tested favorites updated with dairy-fresh approaches.

Meat 'n potatoes can't miss when it comes to satisfying family-size appetites. Make the meat thrifty pot roast. Cook it long and slow, topped with cream of celery soup for moistness -- onion rings and the simplest of seasonings are the only other flavoring ingredients needed. Drain off the savory juices to make gravy, and serve the roast with a zesty topping of horseradish spiked sour cream.

Complete the menu with baked potatoes, peas and parsnip patties. The batter for these patties can be made in advance. At the last minute, fry them in flavorful butter so they can be eaten at their best, crisp and hot.

Or start your meat 'n potatoes combination with something different in meat loaf -- baked in a ring mold for a new look, made with buttermilk for a zippy new flavor. Heap fluffy mashed potatoes in the center of the 'meat, top them with shredded Cheddar and heat for a few minutes in the oven to melt the cheese.

Dairy foods can make the "go-withs" just as appetizing as the main course. See how a sour cream-dill dressing livens a tossed green salad. And the flavor rating of simple Casserole Carrots soars when you add a bit of butter. For dessert, what's so sure to please as open-face apple pie, baked in a butter crust and served warm with ice cream?

The idea for the third menu hails from New England where

Directors To Meet In Richmond

Mrs. J. Pemberton Penn, Jr. of Danville and a member of The Garden Club of Danville, and Mrs. C. Wesley Peoples, Jr., of Lawrenceville and a member of the Brunswick Garden Club, both Directors-at-Large of The Garden Club of Virginia, will be co-hostesses at the winter meeting of the Board of Directors of The Garden Club of Virginia to be held at the Rotunda Club in the Jefferson Hotel in Richmond on Wednesday, Jan. 22, at 10:30 a.m.

Presiding at the meeting will be Mrs. Lucius J. Kellam of Belle Haven, president of The Garden Club of Virginia, and a member of The Garden Club of the Eastern Shore.

Mrs. Penn and Mrs. Peoples will entertain at a luncheon for the Board of Directors at the Rotunda Club following the business meeting.

Attending from Virginia Beach will be: Mrs. Mayor F. Fogler, Director-at-Large of The Garden Club of Virginia and a member of The Garden Club of Norfolk.

Hearty New England Golden Fish Chowder makes a wonderful, warming supper of an icy winter's evening--and it's kind to the budget as well. Shredded Cheddar cheese is the ingredient that gives it that mellow golden touch.

economy and rib-sticking foods both are favored. The mellow fish chowder below -- wonderful eating at lunch, supper or dinner -- has both virtues. Made with milk and Cheddar cheese, it's creamy and delicately flavored as a seafood bisque, but chunks of seafood and potatoes make it substantial enough to stand as a meal in itself.

One of the secrets of good fish is using the fish stock in making the recipe itself. So, poach the fish fillets in milk instead of water, then strain and reserve this liquid. You can prepare the chowder ahead of time up to the final step. In fact, refrigerating for several hours or overnight enhances the flavor meld. After serving time, reheat the chowder 'til it's steaming, add the final milk and serve in the New England manner over water biscuits. More of the biscuits, spread with Deviled Butter and toasted, are perfect companions for this hot and hearty Down East fare.

POT ROAST WITH SOUR CREAM TOPPING
Creamed baked dish OR Ovenproof skillet
1 lb. butter
3-4 lb. beef pot roast, (round or blade bone)
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
1/2 tsp. monosodium glutamate
1 can (10 1/2 oz.) condensed cream of celery soup
1/2 c. raw onion rings

1 c. dairy sour cream at room temperature
1 tsp. prepared horseradish
1/4 c. water

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. In large skillet melt butter; brown meat slowly. Place in baking dish; sprinkle over salt, pepper and monosodium glutamate. Spread soup over top of roast; add onions. Cover; bake 2 1/2 - 3 hours or until meat is tender. Pour off 2 cups drippings; set aside for gravy. Gently blend horseradish into sour cream. Spread on top of roast; return to oven, uncovered 3-5 minutes to glaze sour cream. GRAVY: Gradually add water to flour to make smooth paste. In saucepan heat drippings to boiling. Remove from heat; gradually add flour mixture, stirring constantly. Return to heat and cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Cook 2 more minutes. Six to eight servings.

BUTTERMILK MEAT LOAF RING
4 1/2-cup Ring mold
2 lbs. butter
1/3 c. chopped onions
1 egg, slightly beaten
3/4 c. buttermilk
1/3 c. quick-cooking rolled oats, uncooked
1/2 tsp. monosodium glutamate
1 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. pepper
1 1/2 lbs. ground chuck

2 tbs. chopped parsley
1/4 c. catsup

In a small skillet melt butter; add onions and sauté until tender. Meanwhile, in a mixing bowl combine egg, buttermilk, rolled oats, monosodium glutamate, salt and pepper; mix thoroughly. Add ground chuck and parsley along with onions; blend thoroughly. Pack firmly into ring mold; bake in 350 degree oven 1 - 1 1/4 hours. Allow to stand 5 minutes; drain off excess drippings and turn out onto ovenproof platter. Drizzle catsup over top of meat loaf. Fill center with cheese topped mashed potatoes. Four to six servings.

APPLE WEDGE A LA MODE
9-inch round cake pan

1 1/2 c. flour
1/4 c. sugar
1 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 c. (1 stick) butter, melted
2 tbs. water
4 c. peeled, cored and sliced fresh cooking apples
1/4 c. sugar
1 tbs. flour
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
2 tbs. water
2 tsp. lemon juice
Vanilla ice cream

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a small bowl sift together 1 1/2 cups flour, 1/4 cup sugar, baking powder and salt. Combine butter and 2 tablespoons water; add dry ingredients and blend thoroughly. (Mixture will appear dry.) With fingers press on bottom and 3/4 of the way up sides of pan to form crust. Place apples in large bowl; mix 1/4 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon flour and 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon; sprinkle over apples and toss to coat apples. Turn apples into crust; sprinkle with 2 tablespoons water and lemon juice. Cover pan with aluminum foil and bake 45 minutes; remove foil and continue to bake 15 additional minutes or until apples are tender. Serve warm topped with vanilla ice cream. Six to eight servings.

NEW ENGLAND GOLDEN FISH CHOWDER
Skillet
3-qt. Saucepan

1 lb. haddock or cod fillets
1 1/2 c. milk
1 bay leaf
1 stalk celery
1/4 tsp. thyme
1/4 c. (1/2 stick) butter
1/2 c. finely chopped onion
3 tbs. flour
1 c. water
2 c. diced potatoes (about 2 medium)
2 c. shredded Cheddar cheese
1 c. milk
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. white pepper
1/4 tsp. smoky-flavored monosodium glutamate
2-3 c. milk, heated Deviled Crackers*

Lay fish flat in skillet, cover with milk and add bay leaf, celery, and thyme; simmer 15-20 minutes. Cool. Remove skin and bones from fish, cut into 1/2-inch pieces and set aside. Strain fish liquid and reserve. In saucepan melt butter; sauté onion until soft. Stir in flour and cook about 1 minute. Gradually stir in fish liquid, water and potatoes; cook about 25 minutes, or until potatoes are almost done. Stir in Cheddar cheese until melted. Add milk and fish and heat 3-5 minutes. Stir in salt, pepper and monosodium glutamate; then add milk (amount depending on how thick desired). Or, Chowder may be made in advance to the step of adding the final milk. Refrigerate until needed, then reheat and add the hot milk as directed above. To serve, place water biscuits or chowder crackers in soup bowls and pour over hot chowder. Eight servings. Serve accompanied with Deviled Crackers*.

DEVILED CRACKERS: Make Deviled Butter by blending together 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) softened butter with 1 teaspoon each of prepared mustard and Worcestershire sauce and a dash of cayenne pepper. Spread on water biscuits and toast in preheated 400 degree oven 3 - 4 minutes. Sprinkle with paprika.

Waring Has Many Firsts

A man of many 'firsts' is Fred Waring who brings his Pennsylvanians in his new musical show, "The Fred Waring Show" to Norfolk City Arena on Jan. 18 at 8 p.m. for one performance only. Tickets for the show, which is sponsored by Khedive Shrine, are on sale at the Shrine office at Freemason and Duke Streets in Norfolk.

One of the foremost showmen in the entertainment world, Waring has directed the activities of The Pennsylvanians for a half a century. In that time his orchestra and choral group have appeared in all phases of show business from the concert stage to radio, television, films, Broadway musical shows and recordings, the latter of which have sold in the millions.

Waring's "firsts" include his group's appearance in the first all-musical motion picture, "Syncopation." In the field of recordings he is credited with making the first popular music disc using a vocal chorus, and to have recorded the first rumba tune.

The Pennsylvanians were the first professional group to be featured on radio. Waring was the first to present sacred and secular songs, classical and jazz music in the same performance.

Waring's orchestra was the first to be televised, and The Pennsylvanians were the first musical group to be featured on a regular full-hour coast-to-coast television series, which was inaugurated on Easter Sunday, 1949.

Fred is also the man who pioneered in the development of diction techniques for vocalists, so that the words of the songs may all be clearly and distinctly heard. Among other Waring "firsts" are the invention of the famous Waring Blendor, the Waring Workshop, a fully accredited school in music techniques for teachers, students and choral director, and the first fully-equipped TV broadcasting booth on a championship golf course at Waring's Shawnee Inn and Country Club at Shawnee-on-Deleware, Pa.

Classes Are Registering

Early registration for students desiring to attend Evening College second semester classes at Old Dominion College began Jan. 8, and will continue through Jan. 23.

Hours of registration are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and again from 6-9 p.m. on the second floor of the main Administration Building. There is no registration on Fridays.

Dr. Stanley R. Pliska, Dean,

urges all returning students and new students who have been accepted for admission to the college to take advantage of early registration. He reminds all graduate students that they must first see a graduate advisor before they can begin registration.

Evening College examinations for the first semester will be held Jan. 13-18. Classes for second semester will begin the week of Feb. 3.

Vietnamese children listen to the lively music of the 25th Infantry Division band at the Christmas party sponsored by the 1st Battalion, 27th Artillery at Dau Tieng.

Local Gifts Help Vietnamese

Several Virginia Beach residents contributed clothing, food and toys for a Christmas benefit for the Vietnamese in the Dau Tieng area. The benefit was sponsored by Headquarters, 1st Battalion, 27th Artillery.

Those who contributed are: M. T. Darendon of Clyde Street; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hartley of Rt. 1; Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Edmondson of Shamrock Avenue; and the Future Business Leaders of America of Princess Anne High School.

Christmas gifts were distributed to 65 families with more than 200 children at the special holiday party at Dau Tieng. The gifts came from all over the states in response to the requests of the artillerymen. The project started more than two months ago under the direction of the Battery Commander Captain Roy Wilson.

Christmas skits, music and Santa Claus' bringing the presents highlighted the festivities. In three short plays the cannoners told the Christmas story and showed their Vietnamese friends how Americans celebrate Christmas at home and as servicemen in Vietnam.

A lively 25th Infantry Division Band from Cu Chi provided music for the occasion. The arrival of Santa Claus with a huge bundle of clothing, toys and food, all according to how many members were in each family. Some of the large families had to have the cannoners help them cart the gifts home.

In celebrating Christmas in Vietnam, the men hoped to express their appreciation to their Vietnamese friends for their fine work at Dau Tieng.

World Is Connected By Telephone Lines

Rapid growth continues to characterize the world telephone network as some 14 million phones were added to the global system in 1967. This brings the world's phones to some 222 million as of Jan. 1, 1968. These figures were released by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company after a year of gathering and compiling the required data for the World's Telephone Report.

In the past ten years, more than 100 million telephones have been added to the total. The ever-increasing number of telephones is indicative of the increased usage of the telephone for local, long distance and international calling.

During 1967, growth in international calling resulted in 12.3 million phone calls between the United States mainland and points overseas -- up 2.3 million calls over the previous year.

The rapid increase in the number of the international calls has accompanied the equally rapid developments of complex electronic equipment, including high-capacity cables and expanded satellite communications systems. Today, more than 400 satellite circuits and thousands of undersea circuits are being used to provide telephone service between the United States and points overseas.

More than 96 percent of the world's telephones can now be called from the United States. The North American continent continues to have more than half of the phones in the world. It has also passed a milestone by becoming the first continent to have one telephone for every two persons.

The United States has the most telephones with five and a half more than Japan, who is second in ranking of countries.

In telephone talk, Canada and the United States are running neck-and-neck, with Canada ahead by a narrow margin. Telephone conversations averaged 667.7 per person in Canada in 1967, compared to 667.0 per person in the United States.

Baptists Plan Bible Study

A five-week, Bible study will begin Jan. 21 at First Baptist Church of Virginia Beach.

The study will be taught in three different areas of the city each week beginning at 7:30 p.m. The study will be taken from "The Gospel in Isaiah" by Gilbert Griffin.

Teachers will be Mrs. W.S. Drevery Jr., the Northern area; Capt. K.R. King Jr., Southern Area, and Harold Whitehurst, Western. On Jan. 21 the Northern Area will meet at 129 Pinewood Rd., South at 515 23rd St., and West at 1304 Taylor Point Road.

Building Honors Beach Flier

One of the most highly decorated Naval Flight Officers will be honored posthumously at the Naval Air Station at Pensacola tomorrow when a new academic building will be dedicated.

Griffith Hall will be named for Lt. Cdr. John G. Griffith, who was killed in action in Vietnam on March 12, 1968.

The dedication ceremony will be attended by Griffith's widow and two children, Scott Alan and Maria Elizabeth of Virginia Beach and his parents Mr. and Mrs. Quinton Griffith of Kansas City, Kan.

The building, constructed at a cost of approximately one million dollars, will be used by Training Squadron 10 (VT-10) for the first stage of training all Navy student flight officers.

Lt. Cdr. Griffith, the first flight officer to be honored in this manner, was a bombardier-navigator and completed his training at Pensacola before the establishment of VT-10, but his accomplishments made him one of the most highly decorated flight officers.

"It is highly appropriate," Capt. Silas R. Johnson, Commanding Officer, NAS, said, "that the new academic training building for Training Squadron 10 bear the name of 'his distinguished naval flight officer.'" "Lt. Cdr. Griffith was the type of naval officer who future flight officers should strive to emulate in the performance of their duties in the naval establishment and in their duties as American citizens."

Griffith died March 12, 1968 in the crash of an A-1 Intruder bomber home based at NAS Oceana shortly after it was launched from the USS Enterprise for a night mission in North Vietnam.

He was awarded posthumously the Navy Cross, the nation's second highest decoration, for extraordinary heroism as leading bombardier-navigator in a night strike Feb. 24, 1968, against a heavily defended port facility in the heart of North Vietnam.

Griffith made two deployments to the war zone aboard the Enterprise and had flown 125 combat missions over North Vietnam.

Griffith

Before his duty in Vietnam, the lieutenant commander was aboard the USS Independence in the Mediterranean. He was also selected for weapons test duty at Patuxent River, Md. While there, he worked entirely with the Intruder, at that time a relatively new Navy all-weather bomber.

He was a member of the crew on a nonstop New York-to-Paris flight, which was considered a distance record for planes of the Intruder type. He also conducted cold weather, magnetic and other tests with the Intruder systems in the Far North and at the North Pole.

Training Squadron 10 is the first stage of Naval Flight Officer Training and provides basic training to all student Naval Flight Officers.

Due to the highly specialized nature of the technical fundamentals to be taught in the new Griffith Hall, specially-constructed rooms are provided for some aspects of the training. The three main instructional areas are academic, flight support and in-flight operations.

Last January Jack H. Harris, general manager and executive vice president of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN and Radio Station WVAH was aboard the USS Enterprise for a VIP cruise from San Francisco to Pearl Harbor.

He met and talked at length with Griffith. When he returned Harris wrote several articles about the trip and about Griffith in particular, whom he praised as an outstanding Naval Officer and a gentleman. Griffith had been assigned to aid Harris during the cruise. A lasting friendship between the two men ended abruptly when Griffith was killed in action less than two months later.

Tidewater Wins Awards

Tidewater Virginia received the largest number of awards Jan. 9 at the Virginia Travel Council's awards dinner in The Homestead.

The City of Norfolk was presented two top awards and one certificate of merit for entries in the competition for the Norfolk Tour series folders and coordinated campaign using two or more media, and its entry of "The Garden Spots" in the radio category. Curtis Brooks, of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce, accepted the awards in behalf of the City, and Beverly R. Lawler, president, Atlantic National Advertising Agency, of Norfolk, was presented similar awards as the City's advertising agency which produced the winning awards.

Two certificates of merit were given to the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Tunnel Commission for magazine advertising and filmstrips. These were produced by the Robert Kline & Company, Richmond agency.

The City of Hampton was the recipient of one top award and two certificates, also produced by the Atlantic National Advertising Agency which received similar awards.

tising Agency which received similar awards.

George Haycox, president, Haycox Photomagic, Inc., of Norfolk, was presented several awards for the production of several winning entries in the visual communication category—the film, "Down to the Sea Again" for The Mariners Museum, Newport News, and "Jamestown, The Start of a Nation," produced for The Jamestown Foundation and Virginia State Travel Service.

The 1968 "Travel Award of the Year" was presented to Robert C. Harnsberger, vice president, public relations and advertising, Luray Caverns. The awards were made at the 20th annual meeting of the Virginia Travel Council.

Joseph W. Carey, Jr., of Virginia Beach Blvd., has completed a special training course here and joined the sales force of the Combined Insurance Company of America.

'Blondes' Is Not Top Quality

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" with sweet music by Jule Styne and a rather tired spoofy book by Joseph Fields and Anita Loos, was one of the original farce-spoofs about the roaring 20's, rich men, girls, money, girls, Europe and its quaint male-female customs and girls.

It takes top quality acting and singing to put this kind of unsophisticated musical over today, even perhaps with a big splash of costume and cast. Unfortunately this is not the case in the present production at Cavalier Dinner Playhouse.

The production lacks pacing and warmth. And the trimmed down cast trying to make like a chorus of many and playing multiple roles comes off poorly. There are some fine individual acting and singing performances, but the overall production is a real ho-hum affair.

The action revolves around an unbelievably wide-eyed and "innocent" showgirl with a knack of inadvertently falling for men and her knowledgeable sidekick and fellow showgirl. The dumb blonde that the gentlemen prefer loves diamonds and even sings about it in a poor rendition of "Diamonds are a Girl's Best Friend." The two women embark on a cruise to Europe and a romp about Paris but both eventually end up married quite properly to millionaires as expected from the very beginning.

The play is really a lot of fun, but not necessarily the way it is done here. The fault lies mostly with Elaine Manzel, who looks and acts too sophisticated and knowing in the role of the lovable blonde. She gives no real character to the character. Not so of Johanna Lawrence, her brunette sidekick. She carries easily all over the stage and plays the sadder-but-wiser girl role nicely. Her repartees of the musical numbers are genuine and pleasing.

John Remme fills three separate roles, but does his best one as the French oily lover type. His comedy timing is perfect, and he handles himself well in all three roles. He almost makes up for some of the other shortcomings, but not quite.

John Welch, as the blonde's millionaire is all right, but nothing special in a thankless role. Janice Winkelman is too young for the role of Lory Beckman and Floyd King is even younger as Sir Francis Beckman. Miss Winkelman has a beautiful voice, however. Stuart Craig Wood is lost as another millionaire, and his nice singing voice is wasted on poor numbers. The scant chorus is filled out by Jan Leverenz and Dennis Carpenter, who just can't go it alone.

Lana Caradimas does a nice dance routine bumping and grinding in almost nothing, but can't sing and dance at the same time. The whole number, borrowed from another musical, is breathless and falls short of the mark. The choreography by Mary Faraday is light and easy but is lost in the coldness of the production.

If theatres insist on doing big musicals, they have to be big. This one is too small. HJL

"Notice to the Public" Notice is hereby given to the public that Princess Anne Utilities Corporation has filed with the State Corporation Commission revised rates, rules and regulations for sewerage service rendered in the vicinity of Princess Anne Plaza in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, which involve increases over the charges now being made. The proposed rates filed to become effective upon the order of the State Corporation Commission and after commencement of delivery of effluent to Hampton Roads Sanitation District are as follows:

A Two-Part Rate Treatment Charge: The exact charge of each individual customer as billed by Hampton Roads Sanitation District on their rate schedule which is based on metered water usage; and Service Charge: For transportation to Hampton Roads Sanitation District, maintenance, service and collection; To each residential customer-$28.50/qr. To each apartment customer-$19.00/qr.

To each commercial customer-a factor times the residential base rate of $28.50. Said factor would be the customer's 1967 water usage divided by the average 1967 water usage of a residential customer.

An investigation of the proposed charges has been entered upon by the Commission, and a hearing on such new rates has been set for 10:00 A.M. on February 12, 1969, in the Courtroom of the Commission, Blanton Building, Richmond, Virginia, at which time and place members of the public generally may appear and present such relevant data as may be desired and may be heard. ## Nevins Named President

Monday Rhae W. Adams, chairman of the Board of Directors of Beach Ford, Inc., announced J. William Nevins as new corporate president for Beach Ford. Nevins moves from vice-president and general manager of Beach Ford to president.

Nevins

Beach Ford, Tidewater's newest Ford dealer, began operations Aug. 30, 1967 at 2717 Virginia Beach Blvd.

Beach Ford sales in 1968 exceed $5 million, the facility and property is valued at $1 million, and the company employs 82 people.

Nevins will continue to hold the office of president of Ocean Leasing Company, Inc., which is a member of Ford Motor Company's Authorized Leasing System.

Nevins is Secretary of the Virginia Beach Automobile Dealers Association, a member of the Tidewater Automobile Dealers Association, and a member of the National Auto Dealers Traffic Safety Council. He is also a member of the Board of Directors of the Tidewater Heart Association.

Nevins resides in Chesapeake Colony with his wife and three children.

Cavalier Plans Feb. Opening

Charles Krummell, manager of The Cavalier, says the hotel will reopen Feb. 28, even though work on the premises will not be complete.

The Cavalier, which has not closed during the winter season for the last five years, closed recently for repairs and remodeling. The majority of the work being done at The Cavalier is concerned with the installation of automatic elevators. The elevators will not be completed until the first of April.

Other work being done includes painting and some remodeling of the lounge.

Policeman Receives Award

Thomas V. Irving has been honored as the Virginia Beach Policeman of the Year for his outstanding devotion to duty and contributions to the citizens of the city.

Irving, a member of the police department's Juvenile Division, was presented with the L. Travis Branch award during the installation of F.O.P. officers last Friday night at the Ft. Story Officer's Club. The award, which is sponsored by the Virginia Beach Jaycees, is presented annually to a policeman below the rank of sergeant on the basis of his outstanding daily performance of duties. F.O.P. Associate members select the honoree from a list of nominees submitted by his fellow police officers.

Det. Irving, 25, has been with the Virginia Beach police department since 1965. He has been a detective in the Juvenile Division since January 1968, serving previously with the Patrol and Traffic Divisions. Irving is married to the former Patricia Bowden, and the couple have one son, Thomas, Jr.

Those officers who will direct the operation of Princess Anne F.O.P. Lodge # 8 during the coming year are Sgt. D. G. McCloud, President; Lt. A. E. Smith, vice president; Sgt. W. W. Baker, secretary; H. C. Bickley, treasurer; E. L. Jackson, conductor; Sgt. N. C. Morse, guard; M. Ealy, chaplain; with

Sgt. E. Adams, Sgt. M. Beane, and E. R. White.

Former police chief James E. Moore was paid tribute during the evening's program. Moore was presented a replica of the new police departmental flag, on behalf of the men who served with him in the police department, and a specially engraved plaque thanking him for his service to the department and the city was presented on behalf of members of F.O.P. Lodge #8.

This is the house donated by a local architect for the Institute's headquarters.

Institute Proceeds with Plans

Adult classes at the recently organized Friends Institute will be held despite withdrawal of the College of William and Mary from the schedule.

The Institute is currently located in a donated house at 420 21st St. in Virginia Beach. The College of William and Mary had earlier agreed to give college credit for three of the seven courses research-oriented courses to be offered in the winter semester.

W & M withdrew credit after a misunderstanding over tuition and location. W & M officials said they were under the impression that the classes would be held at the Association for Research and Enlightenment at the college's regular charge of $54 for a three-credit hour course. However, classes are to be held at the Institute's headquarters at a charge of $240 per three-credit hour course with $186 set aside for the Institute. Tuition for other courses varies.

The purpose of the Institute, as stated in its description of courses release: "An unusual program of higher education, combining classroom study with participation in the actual design and execution of research, in a non-profit research center currently engaged in the investigation of dreams by clinical and laboratory methods."

"In its present work of dream research, the Institute carries forward a project of dream research begun in 1960 at The Institute for Research in Psychology and Religion, Northland College at Ashland, Wis., under its Director, Harmon H. Bro, then the academic vice president of the college."

Dr. Bro explained that the high tuition rates are necessary to provide high calibre instruction rather than teachers of the young who are moonlighting for extra money.

Dr. Bro, a Disciple of Christ minister, has previously taught extension classes for W & M. He received his professional ministerial degree at Harvard University and his Ph. D. in the history and psychology of religion at the Divinity School of the University of Chicago. He had taught at Harvard Divinity School, Syracuse University, Drake University, and recently lectured at Crozer Theological Seminary in a special program of the Rockefeller Foundation.

Other faculty members include June L. Bro, Dr. Bro's wife, who is director of Educational Research in the Friends Research Institute. She served on the music faculty of Shimer College and George Williams College and taught adult classes in The Institute for Adult Psychology and the Adult Studies Program, as well as in the Bro Clinic in the Chicago area.

Louise Wilson, First Citizen of Virginia Beach in 1960, has done special work in the fields of education and guidance in programs of Old Dominion College, W & M, and the University of Virginia. She teaches religious education at the Friends School, of which she was one of the founders. She is a volunteer worker in the HeadStart program.

Philip N. Libby, Jr., is a Presbyterian minister who was recently chosen for a special project at Virginia Theological Seminary because of his pioneering work in the urban ministry, including his activity with the East Ghent Cooperative Association and his post as Metropolitan Coordinator of the Norfolk Young Adult Project. He has coordinated a monthly religious program on television and has developed a study guide for adult play-reading groups in churches and lectured on contemporary drama.

Andrew H. Bro, an Episcopal priest, completed his undergraduate studies at Denison University where he was a theater major. He received his professional ministerial degree at the Divinity School of the University of Chicago, where his special focus was religion and the arts. He has taught humanities at Shimer College, where he also served as Director of Drama. Recently he served as academic dean at St. Katharine's School in Iowa.

Pamela M. Bro has studied theater arts at Drake University and Boston University, in addition to her humanities studies at Harvard. She has served on the staff of Hull House in Chicago and the YWCA in Boston and spent a summer touring art centers in Europe.

Courses will be Religious Education 201, The Journey of the Self: A Research and Training Seminar; Psychology 201, Principles of Psychology; Theater 204, Introduction to Theater Arts; Religion 209, Eastern Religions; Theater 11, Drama Workshop; Practicum, Tutorial Study of Dreams as Aids to Creativity; Practicum 202, Tutorial Study of Dreams as Aids to Religious Growth.

Advance registration was to have ended Jan. 15. Classes are to start Jan. 28. For further information, contact June L. Bro or Jane D. Waller at 425-6119 or 428-3073.

Report Notes Progress

The main features of Narrows Marina in Seashore State Park was completed in 1968 reports the Commission of Outdoor Recreation of Virginia.

The main features of this project included a four boat capacity launching ramp, dock and pier, comfort station, parking area, walks and landscaping. The total cost of this project was $45,000.

In an end of the year statement the Commission of Outdoor Recreation reported 9,046 acres were obtained in 1968 for state and local parks.

"The total expenditure for projects for 1968 was $6, 231, 415.97," reported Elbert Cox, Director of the Commission.

Additional facilities made available to the public were 487 tent and trailer sites including picnic tables and grills, shelters and restroom facilities, two nature trails, a bicycle trail, a 300 acre public fishing lake, a 30 acre picnic area and a swimming area.

Additionally, a scenic river study is underway with the University of Virginia at a cost of $22,500 and is scheduled for completion in June, 1969.

Access roads to public recreation areas approved in 1968 were the Pulaski-Catowood Reservoir road, the New Market Battlefield Memorial road and the Wolf Trap Farm road.

The Commission of Outdoor Recreation is preparing testimony on Virginia's recreational requirements in connection with the Blue Ridge power project of the Appalachian Power Company for filing with the Federal Power Commission, and is making studies of the down-river recreational and scenic development of the river.

A project status report was presented to the members of the Commission of Outdoor Recreation at their December 18 meeting in Richmond. The report indicated a year of action concerning broad geographic areas of the state. Each project was an important step in the progress of the Virginia Outdoors Plan.

Deadline

Is Jan. 31

January 31 is the due date for reporting social security and withheld-income taxes for the calendar quarter ended Dec. 31, 1968, according to James P. Boyle, District Director of Internal Revenue for Virginia.

Employers who receive a preaddressed Form 941, "Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return," should use this form to report their tax liability. If the balance due on the return is over $100, it should be deposited in an approved commercial bank or Federal Reserve bank using Federal Tax Deposit Form 501.

Employers who made deposits in a Federal Reserve or authorized commercial bank sufficient to pay their full tax liability for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1968, have until Feb. 10, 1969, to file Form 941.

Jan 31 is also the due date for reporting and paying Federal Unemployment Tax for 1968. Employers liable for this tax should file Form 940.

Wroton Wins Round

At a closed City Council session Monday City Attorney Harry Marshall advised the Council to rescind its action in abolishing the 15-member Planning Commission.

The advice was given in view of the court action being pursued by Ben W. Wroton, chairman of the abolished Commission. Wroton's legal action claims that City Council is prohibited from "disestablishing" the Commission by the city charter.

Marshall has told the City Council that its abolishment of the 15-member Planning Commission probably would not be upheld in court. In the meantime Marshall has been directed to get an opinion about the legality of the action from Harry Frazier of the city's law firm in Richmond who wrote the charter.

Under the present system there is no way to terminate a Planning Commission member's tenure until the expiration of his appointment.

Councilman John McCombs said a report that he and several other Councilmen "were not in favor of rescinding the action without a court fight" was "absolutely erroneous."

He said the newspaper article that appeared in the Norfolk VIRGINIAN-PILOT on Tuesday, Jan. 21, written by Morris Rowe stated that he and Councilmen Albert Bonney, George Ferrell and Dewey Simmons were not for rescinding the earlier action without a legal fight.

McCombs said that whoever gave that information from the closed session to Rowe either gave it out incorrectly or that either the informant or Rowe was misinformed. He added that he and others merely wanted City Attorney Harry Marshall to seek a legal opinion on the matter before rescinding or not.

McCombs said that it could be better determined whether any legal action is called for. He added, "On that matter, there wasn't a word of truth in the PILOT article."

The present nine-member Planning Commission, which was appointed Jan. 1, has not met. It was scheduled for the regular monthly public hearing on Jan. 14, but was advised not to by Marshall since any action taken by the Commission could be challenged. It is probable that there will be no January hearing at all.

Even though the status of the Commission's meeting is not known, Planning Director Patrick Standing says that the Planning Department is scheduled to meet as usual on the second Tuesday in February, going on the assumption that there will be a stable Planning Commission at that time. Applications are being properly advertised and prepared by the Planning Department even though the Planning Commission is unable to take action.

At the time the new Planning Commission was appointed Wroton, along with five other members, was dropped in a move to reduce the size of the Commission to a more efficient working body. Terms of four members of the original commission automatically expired Dec. 31. Should the City Council reinstate the original commission it is expected that there will be no new appointments, thereby reducing the size of the commission.

When asked if he had a statement to make in light of the recent developments, Wroton replied, "No, I don't even hardly know what the developments are . . . just what I read in the papers."

Permit Issuance Revised

Stronger requirements have been outlined for the issuing of permits for the carrying of concealed weapons in the city of Virginia Beach. Revision of the requirements has been carried out on the recommendation of Police Chief W. W. Davis.

The tightening of issuing such permits deals primarily with a more thorough check on the background of persons who may apply for a permit to carry a concealed pistol or revolver.

Capt. R. K. Halstead, director of the police Central Services Division where application is made for such permits, says applicants for permits now will be required to be fingerprinted and their prints be forwarded to the FBI's identification section in Washington, D.C. for thorough screening to assure the applicant does not have a criminal record.

This new procedure will guard against the issuance of a permit to a person who may not have been convicted of crimes in the city of Virginia Beach, but may have received such a conviction in another part of the country prior to moving to the resort city.

Capt. Halstead also pointed out those persons who may wish to receive a permit to carry a concealed weapon will have to meet a number of strict requirements. These will involve the general character of the applicant, their mental competency and having a valid and acceptable reason for wanting to carry a concealed weapon.

While Circuit Court Judge Robert S. Wahab, Jr., has the final decision on the issuing or denying of such permits, he is strongly guided by the recommendations of Police Chief Davis. The information gathered on the applicant from investigation through the police Central Services Division, combined with the results of the FBI screening are the main elements on which Chief Davis bases his recommendation.

A clerk-steno pay range is from $3,720 to $4,680, with half paid by the state in a Constitutional officer's office. Evans was to make the formal request of the state board yesterday, following Council action.

In other action Council agreed to have the Dept. of Public Works start the city dredge on a new 3,000 foot cut of channel in the Western Branch of the Lynnhaven River, DPW Director Charles Kiley and City Engineer M. W. Holloman told Council that by the time this is completed a complete plan for future dredging projects as requested by Council should be ready. Both also recommended deeper dredging than has been done in the past.

A number of people on the eastern branch of the river are interested in dredging there, but no disposal areas for dredged material have been acquired and land acquisition is not underway. A public hearing will be held eventually on the full plan.

Another public hearing will probably be held prior to the Feb. 26 opening of the special session of the Virginia General Assembly at the request of the city's representatives to both Houses. Scott said he thought it would be a good time for Councilmen, city officials and private citizens to discuss the proposed Virginia Constitutional revisions.

Scott told Council bids on the city's championship golf course adjacent to Camp Pendleton and around Red Wing Lake would be opened at 10 a.m. on Jan. 31 at his office. He again deferred the delay in opening of bids from Jan. 6 because of the time element involved. The course is being designed by architect George M. Cobb of Greenville, S.C.

Scott said a number of new bids are expected to be forthcoming and added that had the two Virginia bids received by the old deadline been opened and rejected it could have affected greatly the price tag.

Landscape bids on areas around the new City Hall building and municipal complex will be opened a day earlier. City employees will occupy the new City Hall on Feb. 17, according to Scott, but no formal ceremonies will be held then. He said he would like to see a City Hall Day later on with tours

Desegregation Plan Approved

Districts End Freedom of Choice

The last school segregation in Virginia Beach public schools will officially end July 1.

At Tuesday's School Board meeting, a desegregation plan, originally due in November, was submitted to and approved by the Board. Under the plan freedom of choice will end, and students will be assigned to schools according to non racial geographical districts.

The three schools which had not been desegregated before are Seaboard and Seateck elementary schools and Union Kempsville High School. Seaboard will be renamed Princess Anne Elementary; Seateck will become Birdneck Road Elementary, and Union Kempsville will become the Virginia Beach Center for Effective Learning, a diagnosis and testing center.

Teaching, administrative and supervisory staffs have already been desegregated, and future assignments will be made regardless of race, color or national origin. The plan will now be submitted to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for approval as required in the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

The only conditions under which a student transfer to another school are: (1) A student who is physically or mentally handicapped may be permitted under his written application to transfer to another school designed to fit his special needs; (2) Change of residence to a place where another school is closer; (3) The availability at another school of a course of study required by the student which is not available at the designated school.

Maps showing the boundary lines of the attendance zones established by the School Board will be available for inspection by the public at the School Administration Building. Individual zone maps will be available at each school.

School Board members met with Virginia Beach Education Association member in closed session after the School Board meeting. They reportedly requested a $500 to $1,000 annual pay raise for teachers, effective next fall.

School Supt. E. E. Brickell asked Budget Committee Chairman Spencer Lott to call a meeting of his committee in the near future to discuss the school budget. The budget reportedly will call for more than $24 million, although Brickell would not comment on this sum.

The Board approved several administrative and supervisory appointments. J. I. Owens, Jr., administrative assistant for pupil personnel, will become principal of the new Plaza Junior High School on Feb. 1. The school is radical in design and is expected to be recognized as one of the tops in the nation in the future. Owens, formerly principal of John B. Dey, said that "no educator could turn down an opportunity like this."

Joseph Wisniewski, now a teacher at Cox High School, will be assistant principal of instruction.

Three new members were added to the personnel department. They are Mrs. Florina Davis, a teacher at Seateck Elementary; Miss Shirley Jacobs, guidance counselor at First Colonial and John Daniels, principal of Thoroughgood Elementary.

Other changes included Mrs. Leah Holloman, principal of (See "Choice," pg. 2)

Annual Sessions Favored

Most of those who answered last week's SUN SURVEY question favor annual sessions of the Virginia General Assembly.

Of those who answered, 92 percent said "Yes" to the question, "Should the Virginia General Assembly hold annual sessions instead of biennial?" Four per cent said "No," and the remaining four per cent were in favor of some type of session being held each year. Suggestions included a short budget session in alternate years, a short review session in those off years of a special session each year, as needed.

Comments written on the survey forms indicated that SUN readers feel the business of the State of Virginia should be more of a full-time job.

While the public opinion survey does not profess to represent the thinking of a cross section of the people who took time to clip the survey and return it to us.

Each week a new question will appear, and the results will be published the following week. The questions will be timely, and the more answers we receive the more responsible the opinion.

rapidly approaching the 200,000 mark in population and may exceed that before the General Assembly could meet again. In addition the case load has been and continues to be extremely heavy for the present judges, especially during the summer months.

The building committee recommended that possibly a not-so-ornate as other buildings courthouse to house two courts and perhaps leave room for more could be built near the site of the old jail between the present Circuit Court and Municipal Courts.

Councilman Curtis Payne said he hated to tell the Council of the needs and that he didn't know where the money was coming from. However, City Manager Roger Scott, said he had been aware of this need for some time, as had the building committee, and that while he did not wish to be held to it, he thought the new building could be built with part of the $2 million non-referendum bonds the city would sell in 1970.

Commission Hears Good News

The Virginia Beach Erosion Commission heard a report at its meeting Tuesday that the beach along the oceanfront is in excellent condition and that the winter weather, including the storm earlier this week, has actually brought new material into the beach rather than taking away.

Because of this the commission agreed to table, at the recommendation of commission chairman E. H. Church, involvement in a proposed program of sand removal for replenishment purposes from the Ocean Park Area.

While the commission's consulting engineer Joseph McDonald did not recommend a go-ahead with the truck hauling of sand from that area, he did suggest that the commission ask the city to look into legalities and land rights concerning land removal from that area for future needs. But the commission decided against this at the present time, since there is reportedly enough sand and material for replenishment in the sand trap at Rudee Inlet to be used for some time to come. An estimate from McDonald is that material is now available for between five and ten years.

McDonald also reported that while the sand trap is still not fully dredged, the forebay area of Rudee Inlet is completed. He and Erosion Commission field superintendent Ellisworth Morse said that some areas just inside the north jetty, which had been dredged to a depth of ten feet, now is 17 feet deep. Morse said the dredging is now being done in the vicinity of the high level bridge across the inlet.

McDonald added that while the "dredge" will possibly be moved back into the Owl's Creek area within a month or so, he said the sand trap work can also continue at the same time.

Church again defended the use of the commission dredge in the Rudee Inlet project and pointed out the amount of excellent material that had been pumped onto the beach. Commissioner Herb Holt, long a critic of the commission's involvement in the project, said he was glad it was nearly over.

Church also read a letter

of apology he had received from W. Roger Provo, a reporter from the BEACON, the Virginia Beach supplement to the two Norfolk daily newspapers. At the last meeting Provo made no comment when asked about a letter he had written Church in December 1968. The letter questioned Church's business activities with Sidney S. Kellam, whose insurance agency holds the commission's insurance.

The letter indicated, according to Church, that he and Kellam were involved in a number of business dealings.

Church denied this at the last meeting and his attorney, Richard Brydges, wrote the publisher of the paper, Frank Batten, asking for an apology. Batten replied that he had turned the matter over to his editors Bill Fitzpatrick and Charles Reilly.

Then came the apology from (See "Commission," pg. 2)

Following Nixon's inaugural speech, Field said, "His speech was particularly one of simplicity. He set out in general terms just what he wanted to do."

He added that he had been most impressed with the speech and the entire ceremony.

"I was also impressed with the fact that he appeared a little more liberal in his speech than he appeared throughout his campaign," said Field. "I hope this sounds the death knell to those people who think he's going to be an arch conservative President because he is not."

Richard Brydges, prominent Virginia Beach attorney who is being mentioned as a possible GOP candidate for U.S. Governor this year, said he thought the ceremony was most impressive and that President Nixon's comments were most needed.

"I think his analysis of the mood of the people was most profound," said Brydges. "I don't think anybody wanted any vast changes in what was going on. I think if anything they wanted a slowing down and the taking of a vast inventory of things, and that is what he gave us."

Brydges added that he thinks Nixon will do a good job if left alone.

Reaction generally in Virginia Beach to the Nixon speech was one of approval. Most felt that his call for unity and peace was necessary and well-founded, although some said they wished he had been more specific in his proposed methods to achieve these ends. They said they will reserve comment until after his first legislative proposals.

Juveniles Charged

Four juveniles facing charges of trespassing and vandalism during a Tuesday appearance in Virginia Beach Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court had their cases continued until Feb. 3. Police said the juveniles, aged 14, 15, and 16, were charged with going into a new, unoccupied home in the Court-house Forest subdivision and damaging the structure in the amount of $500. Indications are the house had been vandalized on a number of different occasions.

Court appearance is pending

for two suspects arrested in connection with breaking of dwellings in the 200 block of 57th Street in Virginia Beach. Police identified the accused as Johnny Lynn Johnston, 21, of Lefter Lane and a 17-year-old juvenile. The suspects were apprehended a short distance from the break in scene by Detectives E. G. Casey and J. R. Shortall after a witness told police of two men fleeing the scene in an auto. Authorities said the juvenile is accused of burglarizing two apartments in the duplex building, while Johnston is charged with burglarizing one of the apartments and contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Investigators said some of the merchandise taken from the apartments has been recovered.

Theater Robbed

The cashier of the Bayne Theater on Atlantic Avenue was robbed of some $200 by a lone gunman last Saturday night. Mrs. Roxanne Frazier told police the man appeared at the window of her cashier's office with gun in hand and demanded she hand over the cash receipts. Police at last reports were still searching for the stick up man in the crime which occurred shortly before the theater's closing.

Teacher Bound Over

A former art teacher at First Colonial High School has been bound over to a Virginia Beach grand jury on charges of possessing narcotics. Police officials said Mrs. Jenny Ruth the arrest was the result of close cooperation between officials of First Colonial High School, the city's Public School Board, and members of the police department vice squad. Mrs. Savage had been a school teacher in Virginia Beach in previous years and in Norfolk. She resigned the night of her arrest.

Five Sought

Five men are being sought in the armed robbery of the Be-Lo market in the 400 block Kempsville Road shortly before the stores opening last Sunday morning. Store Manager R. Scott Taylor told police four men armed with pistols, shot gun and bayonet came into the store, forced him to open the store safe, then tied him with wire and locked clerks Rodney Jones and Harry Fitzpatrick in a back room. The stick up men reportedly took an estimated $8,000 from the safe. The fifth man is believed to have been waiting outside the store with a get-away car.

Robert Stenzhorn, director of federal programs, told the Board that $351,995.26 in National Defense Education Act funds have been approved for the city schools. The money will be used for a planetarium and science and math projects. The flu epidemic had little affect on school attendance in December. According to a report given by J. J. Owens, Jr., only three percent of the students were absent because of flu.

Bids for rebuilding Kings Grant Elementary School will be taken around Feb. 19. Brickell praised parents of Kings Grant and Windsor Oaks Elementary School, which Kings Grant students are attending, for their cooperation since Kings Grant burned last month.

Coach Heads Cancer Crusade

Jerry D. Claiborne, head football coach at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, will serve as State Crusade Chairman for the American Cancer Society's annual educational and fund-raising Crusade in Virginia.

His first appearance as State Crusade Chairman will be in Richmond, Jan. 24, as luncheon speaker at the Crusade Leaders' Conference for Crusade volunteers from throughout the state. Theme for the meeting will be "The Winners."

As Crusade Chairman, Coach Claiborne will lead 65,000 volunteers from throughout the state in their efforts to raise $1,040,000 during the April Cancer Crusade. In 1968, the Society's Virginia Division went over the million dollar mark for the first time with Crusade receipts totaling $1,018,470 and became one of the Society's top 15 Divisions in the country.

The Virginia Beach Unit of the Society held its planning meeting for the 1969 Crusade yesterday.

These are a few of Virginia Beach City department directors who are attending the city-wide safety training program which began this week.

Safety Is Goal for School

Directors of the various Virginia Beach city departments, divisions and bureaus attended a special safety school this week in efforts to improve the overall safe operation of all departments of the city government.

City Traffic Safety Chief, Reeves Johnson outlined the purpose of the program as "selling our city's top management on what it means to utilize a practical safety program to prevent accidents to reduce the loss of man hours and production, resulting in saving money in the city's operation". Johnson pointed out the city received a $47,000 refund last year in accident insurance premiums as a result of its low accident rate.

Collectors Should Mail Early

Manned Spacecraft Recovery Forces of the U.S. Navy will provide collectors with "Recovery-Day" cachet and cancellation services for the upcoming Apollo 9 manned space flight.

Philatelic coordinators designated for Atlantic and Pacific Fleet Recovery Forces (Task Forces 140 and 130) will receive all such envelopes and make the distribution to assigned ships.

To permit adequate time for required handling of covers, collectors should mail pre-stamped, self-addressed envelopes to reach the appropriate coordinator prior to Feb. 13. Covers received after this deadline will be cancelled at Norfolk or San Francisco.

Due to popularity of this service and postal facility limitations on recovery ships, the coordinator for Task Force 140 will accept only six envelopes while Task Force 130 will accept eight covers from each individual collector.

Courts

(Continued from p. 1) The need for a new municipal court courtroom was also pointed out by Scott, who said this is being taken into consideration in discussion of the proposed capital improvements budget, soon to be completed and made public.

The building committee has been talking with all Constitutional officers and department heads concerning space needs and has found the Treasurer and the Commissioner of Revenue short of space.

Scott suggested that they could probably expand into part of the offices being vacated when the new City Hall is opened next month and that part of the Clerk of Circuit Court's needs could be taken care of with space in a new courts building.

Payne said it was the opinion of his committee that the new building should already been started to be ready in 1970 and stressed the urgency. Scott, however, and the rest of Council seemed to take the matter in stride, and Council indicated a decision will be made shortly.

Scott also told Council that he had been discussing the probability of full-time judges for Municipal Courts, at a cost for two of about $20,000. Under his plan, one judge would serve police and civil courts, while the other would be a traffic court judge. The increased case load in these courts is the major reason Scott has made the proposal.

Baynor Heads Dealership

W. W. Vail, president of Car-Matic Motor & Transmission Exchange System, announces the appointment of Walton Edward "Eddie" Baynor of Virginia Beach as a Car-Matic Franchisee.

On Jan. 20 Baynor took over the Car-Matic franchise at Virginia Beach Blvd. & Davis Corner, formerly a Car-Matic owned operation. The Davis Corner Car-Matic Service Center is one of two Car-Matic outlets in Tidewater located in Texaco Service Stations.

Baynor, owner of Chic's Beach Restaurant attended Car-Matic Management Training School in Norfolk prior to taking over his new franchise. He and his wife, Cynthia, have resided in Virginia Beach for 30 years.

Prospects Considered

L. Dean Curtis, project director for the Virginia Capes Marina, has said that the city has three prospects for the project. It is possible that bids will be sought in 30 to 60 days for the marina, which will be built at Rudee Inlet.

At this time plans for the Virginia Capes Marina indicate that it will cost approximately $500,000. The facility should contain over 150-slips, covering 3.5 acres, Curtis has said that it will take nine months to build the marina.

In view of the present situation the Rudee Inlet Authority rejected plans for a private sports club to build a $16,000 mooring facility at Rudee Inlet. The Cape Henry Billfish Club had asked approval in October 1968 to build a 16-slip facility.

Symposium Is First

Several Virginia Beach doctors will be attending a day-long clinical symposium on infectious diseases sponsored by the Portsmouth Academy of Medicine on Jan. 24 at Suburban Country Club in Portsmouth.

The meeting is the first of its kind ever held by the academy and has been made possible by a grant from and with the cooperation of Lederle Laboratories, a pharmaceutical firm headquartered in Pearl River, N.Y.

Four nationally-known medical authorities will be speakers at the symposium. They are: Dr. Perry S. MacNeal, associate professor of clinical medicine, University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, Philadelphia; Dr. Douglas W. Voth, assistant professor of medicine, Section of Infectious Diseases, Kansas University School of Medicine, Kansas City, Kan.; Dr. Calvin M. Kunin, professor and chairman, Department of Preventive Medicine, University of Virginia School of Medicine, Charlottesville; Heinz F. Eichenwald, professor and chairman, Department of Pediatrics, University of Texas Southwestern Medical School, Dallas.

Long range plans call for another wing to be built on the present municipal court building, but there is no indication as to when this will be done in light of present needs.

While a number of additional needs have been discussed in the next city budget, Scott is keeping a tight lid on actual budgetary proposals until the entire budget is ready.

While Scott has said repeatedly that he would not like to see another tax hike this year, it is likely there will be some sort of increase, but perhaps not as large as the 66 per cent overall hike of last year. There is speculation that real estate taxes will have to rise as much as another 40 per cent, making the jump in the last three years as high as 110 per cent.

Scott, however, will not comment on the speculation.

Scott said he would like to see both built to bring more tourists to Virginia Beach but that he was against any delay in building either or both. Council agreed to appoint members to a special committee to work with neighboring cities on the matter if it was necessary.

Council gave Scott permission to spend $750 to join the National League of Cities and also instructed him to make all efforts to acquire the old Coast Guard station at 24th Street and the Oceanfront for a purpose, such as a museum, lifesaving station or recreation center, to be decided later. Scott said he is looking into the legal situation of the property at present, and that he hoped the city could acquire it. Property in the area is now selling at $1,000 a front foot. The old station has 50 on the oceanfront.

Council said it couldn't go along with that high cost, but it was speculated that the General Services Administration would dispose of the property at a far less expensive price.

Scott quoted former City Manager W. Russell Hatchett in expressing the importance of attempting to acquire the property. He said Hatchett had once said, "The good Lord ain't going to make any more oceanfront."

Scott's pay hike from $20,000 to $22,500 a year, forgotten at the last regular meeting will be approved at next Monday's meeting.

Violation of Information Law Charged by Norfolk Reporter

The Freedom of Information Law passed by the Virginia General Assembly last year was up for discussion at the informal session of Virginia Beach City Council Monday.

In December Morris Rowe, a reporter for the Virginia Beach bureau of the Norfolk VIRGINIAN-PILOT, wrote Mayor Frank Dusch asking that the Council agenda given to the press, on the Friday before a regular Monday meeting include all supporting letters, documents, ordinances and the like. Rowe said this would make it easier on the city officials who would have to be contacted later anyway for these documents and that it would save time. Councilmen now receive these documents with their agenda and docket.

In the same letter Rowe said in effect that the Council may have violated the Freedom of Information law by discussing the code of ethics and other matters in closed session and by not making the information available to the press. The contents of the code, however, were given to some members of the press by some Councilmen anyway and the contents were published permanently.

In the law Council is allowed to discuss any matter which may be prejudicial to the city in closed session. Several times, however, matters of finances and appointments have been given by individual Councilmen to the press anyway and have been published. There is speculation this has caused some problem in the past.

Rowe said in the letter that the press was partly at fault by not pointing out its rights under the new law.

Mayor Dusch wrote Rowe that he thought the matter concerned the entire Council and suggested he write the City Manager. Rowe did so, and also wrote all Council members.

In the informal session Monday the letter was read by City Manager Roger Scott, and Rowe was asked to explain. He said that the city of Chesapeake releases its docket and supporting material on Friday before a meeting; that Portsmouth releases a full press package the day of the meeting, including all supporting documents; and that Norfolk releases the docket the day before a meeting and supporting material on the day of the meeting.

"It would merely help us and save time of officials not to be bothered by us," said Rowe.

He added that the full story could then be published before the meeting. This was later questioned by at least one Councilman, who wanted to know why it would be necessary to hold a meeting if the papers had said it all beforehand.

The possibility of the docket being released on Friday and the supporting material being released on Monday was discussed as was the release of all material with a Monday embargo on supporting documents.

While Council seemed generally in favor of releasing the documents in some way it agreed to study the matter for a week.

Scott then took offense to Rowe's original letter indicating violation of the Freedom of Information Law. He pointed out that he and City Council had agreed to continue letting the press remain in the informal staff briefings even after an interpretation from the Virginia Attorney General's office said it was not necessary.

He added that the staff briefings held now in closed session are legal in his opinion and allow the individuals present more freedom of expression. He added that anything discussed there cannot be acted upon officially and will eventually be acted on in regular session.

Rowe added that some Councilmen will "tell anyway," but said they might not hear all, making it necessary to call a number of people. Scott said the matters discussed in closed session dealt with subjects that could be tough.

Scott added, "I am willing to cooperate as long as it won't penalize my office, but I don't know how far we can go with spoon feeding."

Phone System Changes

A new program of handling telephone calls to the Virginia Beach police department was begun to provide better service to residents of the resort city and to increase the efficiency of the department.

Anyone who may require the service of a police officer should make their request by telephoning the main police number 427-4231, rather than contacting the police precinct which serves their area. By contacting headquarters residents will assist police in immediate evaluation of the nature of the complaint, deciding what action may be necessary on the part of police and speed the dispatching of police units or officers.

Such a procedure, according to Lt. Warren Grant, executive aide to Police Chief W. W. Davis, will also provide police with an immediate record of the call in the police radio room.

Lt. Grant pointed out that in the event residents of the city want to discuss a matter which concerns a specific problem or involves legal matters within their particular neighborhood or business district, those residents should then contact the Police Precinct which serves their area.

NARCE to Hear Author Today

The National Association of Retired Civil Service Employees meet today with Mary Ellen Carter as guest speaker.

Miss Carter—artist, news and feature writer—is author of the current popular book, "Edgar Cayce on Prophecy." A question period and refreshments will follow the address. NARCE meets at 2 p. m. in the old Civil Court Building at 19th Street off Arctic Avenue.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

Men of the Little Creek Fire Department, who also serve with a number of volunteer fire departments throughout Virginia Beach, are waging their own "battle of the badge." Reliable sources tell us about ten men of the department are engaged in an organized jogging program in hopes of slimming down.

Col. Donald T. Fantone, director of the Virginia Beach Auxiliary Police says the men of the unit will soon be issued badges of a new design. The new badges have been designed around the official emblem of the city of Virginia Beach.

Indications are plans for a citywide fire training school and nearly complete, and the school could possibly begin in the early part of March. The program which would feature concentrated fire fighting training for men of all fire departments of the city has already attracted 90 men who have signed up for the program.

Chief Robert E. Lee of the Princess Anne Courthouse Volunteer Fire Department says one of the former hands of the unit is expected to return to duty today. He is Chief Lee's son Keith who has been on leave of absence while attending special schooling in another city.

Although the scores are not going in their favor thus far, men of the Virginia Beach police basketball team are still "giving it the old college try." The teams next game is scheduled for next Wednesday. They will meet a team of FBI Agents at 8 p.m. in the gym of Norfolk's Azelea Gardens Junior High School. Incidentally, the team reportedly has its own "Wrong Way Corrigan." We understand one of the players becomes so enthused when he gets the ball that he invariably heads down the court towards the wrong basket. Apparently his aim is quite good too, he's already scored at least two points for the opposing team.

Crowd Attend C. of C. Dinner

The 32nd annual dinner meeting of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce was held Tuesday night at the Virginia Beach Civic Center. Officers for 1969 were installed and most of the rest of the evening was taken up with top flight entertainment.

More than 300 persons braved the high winds and heavy rains to attend the meeting. The installation of officers was conducted by the Hon. George W. Vagos, Virginia Beach Circuit Court judge, who installed the same officers a year ago.

All of the 1968 officers of the Chamber of Commerce were re-elected, Frank W. Kellam is president; James P. Sadler, vice president; George H. Davis, 2nd vice president; Larry A. Sancio, secretary; and James G. Kontopoulos is treasurer.

Kellam and Albin R. Malhes, executive vice president of the Virginia Beach Chamber, introduced the military and civilian guests who attended.

The entertainment was arranged and handled by Edward Brogan, Mrs. Barbara Leitman and Sam Scott, director of the civic center.

The Workshop Players, a group of teenagers and preteens under the direction of Bruce and Pat Montgomery of Hermitage School, sang a number of selections and performed several numbers from "Fiddler on the Roof."

In addition the "Mod Marmes," made up of three Virginia Beach school teachers, sang and performed a number of selections, including several parodies spotlighting Chamber activities and poking fun at officers and committee chairman.

The three teachers are Mrs. Diane Sanderlin of Kempsville Meadows School, Miss Belle Landrum of Thoroughgood School and Miss June Turner of King's Grant School.

10 Elected To Board

Ten Virginia Beach business leaders have been elected to the board of directors of the Retail Merchants Bureau of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, it has been announced by Adam Orgera, chairman.

The new directors were elected recently to two-year terms on the governing body of the retail group. They join the over directors in formulating the policy of the Bureau, which was formed on Jan. 1, 1968.

New directors include Rhoe W. Adams, L. O. Clark, III, J. R. Cohick, W. Clark Fleming, Charles H. Forbes, Jr., Mrs. Janet Parker, Michael C. Savides, Clenton W. Shanks, Dawson Taylor and B. J. Willis, Jr.

Officers of the group, in addition to Orgera, include Richard H. Kline, vice-chairman; and Albin R. Malhes, secretary-treasurer.

Heart Dinner Is Jan. 30

Dr. W. A. Dickinson, president of the Tidewater Heart Association, Inc., has announced a January Board of Directors meeting on Jan. 30.

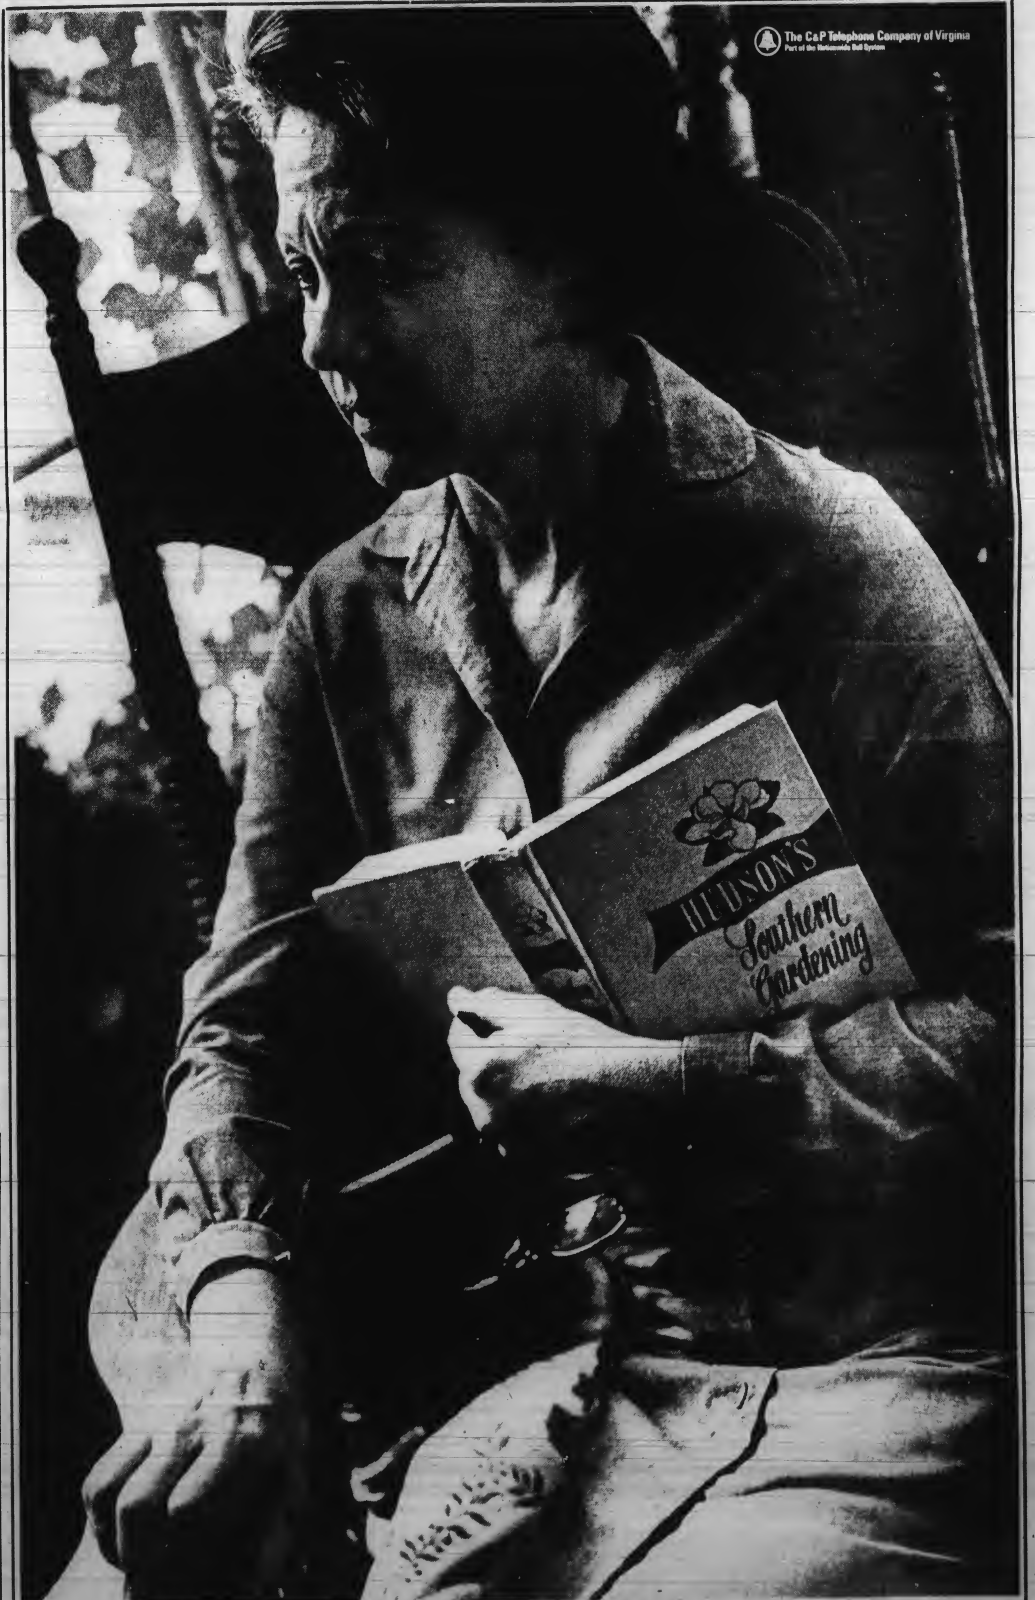

The meeting is for the board of directors, committee chairmen and members of the association. It will be in Parlor A and B of the Admiralty Motel on N. Military Highway in Norfolk.

Cocktails will be at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7:15 p.m. The dinner will be $3.75 per person.

This will be the annual Heart Fund Meeting, serving as the kick-off for the February campaign.

Andy Erwin, left, and Tom Kindle, right, who have roles in Neil Simon's "The Star-Spangled Girl," currently playing at the Stage Door Dinner Playhouse. Phone reservations may be obtained for the production by calling 583-2323; the box office is open daily from 9 a.m. until 10 p.m.

Unit Rule Would Help Brydges

Republicans of Virginia Beach will meet at 10 a.m. this Saturday morning at Princess Anne Courthouse for the purpose of electing delegates, and alternate delegates, to the state G.O.P. convention to be held Feb. 28 in Roanoke.

Strong debate is expected over a proposal to pledge delegates to a procedure of unit rule. Such a move would give Virginia Beach Republicans full voting credit in Roanoke if only a minimum of 9 of the 22 elected delegates attend the convention.

Lawyer Richard G. Brydges, who has not announced his candidacy for lieutenant governor of Virginia even though he has confirmed he has been approached to be a candidate with lawyer Linwood Holton of Roanoke, would benefit from the unit rule which would give Virginia Beach delegates stronger support for Brydges.

College Offers Courses

The College of William and Mary will again offer numerous classes in their Extension program for the city of Virginia Beach.

The following list is the courses, centers where they will be offered and beginning dates: FAAWTC-Dam Neck College Algebra (Feb. 3), Advanced Programming Languages and Composition and Literature (Feb. 4), Basic Computer Concepts (Feb. 5), Programming Core Storage Machines - Binary (Feb. 6), Fort Story - Public Speaking (Feb. 3), Africa (Feb. 4), Sociology 202 (Feb. 5), Oceana Naval Air Station - Composition and Literature and Industrial Psychology (Feb. 3), Fundamental Concepts of Mathematics and Marriage and the Family (Feb. 4), Composition and Literature and The Political Theory of National Security (Feb. 5), American History and Trigonometry (Feb. 6), Princess Anne High School - Elementary School Curriculum, Curriculum and Instructional Procedures for Kindergarten and Measurement in Education (Feb. 3), Basic Computer Concepts (Business teachers only), Mathematics for Elementary Teachers, Problems of School Librarians - Non-book Materials and Research Methods in Education (Feb. 4), Guidance and Personnel Work in Schools, Developmental Reading and Philosophy and History of Education (Feb. 6).

Another New Building

The special City Council committee seemed to think it was dropping a bombshell on the full Council Monday when it announced a new courts building would be necessary following the 1970 session of the Virginia General Assembly.

The legislature is expected to approve one and possibly two new Circuit Court Judges for the city based on case load and population. Where to put the judges is the problem. But the committee implied it had been aware of this need for some time.

Why Council was just informed remains a big question, but apparently City Manager Roger Scott was not panicked by the pronouncement. While he asked not be held to it, he said he thought a new building as recommended by the building committee could be built with non-referendum bond funds.

This was in sharp contrast to the chairman of the building committee who said he "hated to say it" but that a new building was needed and that he "didn't know where the money was coming from." Scott, fortunately, didn't hate to hear it and had planned ahead, since it was rather obvious for some time the new building would be needed.

The population growth has been phenomenal, and will continue to be much the same way. New judges will be needed in the future and new courtrooms. Hopefully this time the building committee, still in its infancy, will plan ahead. Scott can't come up with a windfall every time.

We wish to see Virginia Beach continue to grow rapidly and this is the price we must pay, no matter what it costs us.

Conflict Emergency

The Governor has also indicated the session will be limited to this matter, except that emergency bills may be introduced at his request.

While a statewide emergency does not exist, we submit that an emergency does exist in Virginia Beach in the conflict of interest matter. A shadow of doubt and guilt hangs over those accused by Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans. The longer this goes on the worse it is.

Hopefully the Governor will see fit to introduce the new conflict of interest law in this special session for final action. This matter needs to be ended here once and for all.

It now appears that the special blue ribbon commission set up by Virginia Gov. Mills E. Godwin to study the present conflict of interest law of the state is ready with a new law.

The contents of that new law, based on study and public hearings, are not known. The chairman will only say the proposed law would relax some provisions and strengthen others.

The forthcoming special session of the Virginia General Assembly next month is being called to enact constitutional revisions. There are indications it will last a month or more, rare for a special session, because of displeasure over some recommended changes and come changes not recommended.

The Problem of Delay

At first it appeared that the fight between Norfolk and the federal government over the relocation of a tunnel to the Peninsula was none of our affair in Virginia Beach. But that is no longer so.

It certainly seems natural and logical that a twin span should be built to The Hampton Roads Tunnel from Willoughby to Hampton as part of Interstate 64 instead of moving the entire project to the Craney Island to Newport News route which has now been approved, but we will not seek to argue the merits of politics and politicians who some how or other got it changed. All we can do is wonder how it happened after some years of waiting for the approved twin span to be built.

The real problem as far as we are concerned is the delay that can be caused by fighting the whole mess out, by additional planning and engineering and by building so many new connecting roads that are bound to be necessary.

That delay can cause the tourist industry at Virginia Beach to suffer. A goodly number of people come down that Peninsula from Richmond and northward, pass through Norfolk and spend vacations in Virginia Beach. Any delay in improving that road for our tourists we are dead against.

While we may be in sympathy with the efforts of the city of Norfolk to maintain the earlier status quo and may find ourselves displeased at this latest bureaucratic action, we must also look to our own problem. That problem is delay, and we don't want any.

Has Suggestion

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:
Looking at the newspaper this morning and seeing the picture of the Coast Guard Station brings back many memories, since I have been a resident of Virginia Beach since 1904. Could the station be saved and used as a U.S.O.? I know the answer I would get to this: Too valuable a lot for a U.S.O. What could be too valuable for our boys, who are giving their lives for us?

Mrs. George M. Meredith

SPCA Support

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:
During the past three difficult and sometimes discouraging years the Virginia Beach SPCA has deeply appreciated your support and encouragement. May I take this opportunity to express to you and your staff our gratitude for the many fine articles written in behalf of the SPCA.

Our shelter is now open to receive unwanted pets and to find homes for them. We invite all interested people in the community to visit us at the corner of General Booth and Oceana Boulevards. And please, people of Virginia Beach, if you must leave a pet behind when you move, bring it to us. It will cost you nothing more than the effort.

Once more our thanks to the SUN for its continued interest and support.

Mrs. J. W. Sills
President

Thanks

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:
On behalf of the Virginia Beach Ballet Society, I wish to express our appreciation for the generous newspaper coverage you gave our company's first performance in December. Having only recently been organized, it is most encouraging to have the support of the press in presenting our company to the Virginia Beach public.

We intend to continue working hard and improving so that our performances may add to the cultural life of our community. Your cooperation has helped us to make a successful beginning.

Sincerely,
Virginia Biggs
Executive Director

Special Report

Here Come 'da Judgeship

Now that President Johnson has left office without appointing that federal judge for Virginia, the Republicans are all in a dither.

They are afraid that President Nixon will appoint his long-time supporter and ally from pre-convention days last year, one A. Linwood Holton, to that empty judge's chair. And what's more, they are afraid that Holton, looked to as the hope of the GOP in Virginia in the gubernatorial race this year, just might accept. The results could be disastrous for the GOP.

Although there was a deadlock concerning two potential choices for the judgeship that was thought to have been settled and Mr. Johnson was expected to appoint the new judge before last Monday. For some unexplained reason the unpredictable former President didn't make any appointment and did not let that concern him as he headed for Texas and retirement from public life.

The possibility that Holton could be the man was raised earlier, but he said the speculation was premature. Now it is not and he's not really saying much on the subject.

The $40,000 a year prestige federal judgeship is certainly a plum to dangle before any attorney, especially one as well-known as Mr. Holton. It could be hard to turn down, regardless of the dashed hopes it could bring his party in November.

Just why Mr. Holton is so important to the Republicans of Virginia is enigmatic in the first place. Four years ago he was a relative unknown Roanoke attorney when he received the GOP convention nod to oppose then Lt. Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr. for the state's top job.

Godwin won rather easily on a ticket as full of harmony and bliss as any Democratic candidate had ever been fortunate enough to receive. All factions of the party joined together behind Godwin, and his victory was never really in doubt.

But the tide of history was indeed changing. Holton made a good showing for a Republican.

And the impact of his heavy vote was felt statewide. Mr. Holton was no longer an unknown, but a strong contender to be contended with again.

The "again" is 1969 in the November general election, if the judgeship doesn't materialize as many expect it will. This time there is a Republican president, Congress has more GOP members, in areas where it was once not good business to be a Republican, the two-party system is making inroads. Even in Virginia Beach it is not as unpopular as it once was to be a Republican.

With three candidates fighting it out on the Democratic side for the nomination in July, and with the obvious name-calling and campaigning that goes into any election, the GOP has been sort of smiling and waiting to see who the winner will be, while all the time being aware of their relatively good standing with the Democratic unrest and division. The GOP in Virginia thus seemed set for one of the most important fights of this century. A Democrat is still expected to win by the political buffs, but the two-party system was expected to be something real at last.

Then here came the judgeship. The biggest problem is that the Republicans do not have any star that shines so brightly as that of Mr. Holton. Essentially their hopes could be ruined if Holton should be offered and should accept the judgeship.

The GOP of Virginia waits with bated breath. And no one is really talking about it in terms above a whisper. Even the Democrats are watching and waiting in an interested manner.

To turn down a federal judgeship offered by the President seems unthinkable. What Holton will do and what effect it has on the party in Virginia remains to be seen.

But it surely could muddle the already muddled situation a little more. And should the Democrats finally get somewhat together, as they are prone to do in a crisis, this could be one very interesting year.

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"That's not at all fair," he said, "to call my new old car a name like that just because it has a few small problems." "A few small problems?" she asked in disbelief. "That's all that car is, a collection of problems, not small ones either." "Just what do you consider so serious?" he asked indignantly.

"Where is the car now, and why?" she wanted to know.

"It's parked two blocks away because the muffler and tail pipe came loose from the manifold and fell on the ground," he said. "But they're going to fix it."

"And how come you didn't get home until nearly midnight last night?" she asked. "Did you by any chance have car trouble?"

"Now, you know I had a little trouble," he said. "But it was one of those things that can happen to anyone. The battery ran down, and I had to walk two blocks in the pouring rain and wind to get someone to start it. Then I just had to have the battery charged."

"I have to admit, it's a nice old convertible," she said. "How do you like being so close to the outside during the rain?"

"Not too well," he said. "That plastic window in the back is torn away from the top for about a foot. The back seat has gotten a little wet. Otherwise the top doesn't leak. And I won't even have to worry in the summertime about getting caught in the rain with the top down. It'll only go halfway."

"Well, at least the front doesn't get wet," she added sympathetically.

"Well, not too wet," he said. "Just where the rain pours in above my window that rattles so badly because the rubber molding is shot and where the vent window is hanging loose at the bottom where it's broken. Otherwise it's okay."

"The seat covers do help, don't they?" she asked with a sadistic smile.

"Sure they help to keep the foam rubber padding from coming out all over the car where the seats are so badly split, but I can fix that with a few hundred yards of strong tape."

"One of the neighbors wanted to know what that noise was yesterday morning when you left for work," she said.

"Did you tell her that roar is not in the motor? It's in the special manifold the previous owner put on it?" he said.

"Besides it only does that when I start it in 'Drive' or 'Reverse' because the push button marked 'Neutral' is stuck and won't work. And I have to gun it to back over the blocks of wood under the wheels that keep it in place because the emergency brake doesn't work. It had a brand new inspection sticker on it when I got it. Somehow or other I don't understand."

"I tried to move it to get into the garage the other day and I couldn't start it," she said. "The ignition switch just continued to grind on its own."

"So you're the one who ran the battery down," he said. "You don't start it with that switch. There's another one the previous owner put in on the left of the dashboard because the old switch sticks. Can't you say anything nice about that car?"

"Let's see," she said. "It doesn't look too good with all those dents, rust marks and faded paint, so I can't say that. I know! It has nice floor mats, which it needs to cover the torn carpet."

"Thank you a lot," he said sarcastically. "But I still don't see why you call it a bomb."

"Didn't I tell you?" she asked sweetly. "I just think it would be better off if it exploded."

The Declaration of Independence had described all men as being "free and equal." This, in practice, was not the case. Humans were owned by other humans and were bought and sold as chattel. A debt was coming due for payment. The price was 620,000 American lives - 360,000 Northerners and 260,000 Southerners out of some three million participants.

Until World War I, the Civil War was the greatest and most bloody struggle which humanity had known. The intensity and bitterness generated by the slavery question was without parallel in the history of our country.

At 9:30 p.m. on April 15, 1865, President and Mrs. Lincoln went to the Ford Theatre. He sat in his box, happy and content, the long vigil ended by the side of his broken Union now reunited, though with wounds he intended to heal. All eyes were on the stage. A shot rang out, and a half-crazed assassin shouted "Sic Semper Tyrannis", waving a knife he leaped from the box to the stage and fled through a stage door to a waiting horse.

The war was won; slavery as an institution was abolished; the President was dead; the Union was preserved; but peace and love and honesty and brotherly kindness had fled with Lincoln's soul.

After the war, the North was industrial, the West was agricultural and the South was prostrate. The largest enterprise was fundamentally that of railway building. To the 35,000 miles of railway track in operation in 1865 added 122,000 additional miles were added by 1887. The great transcontinental lines and innumerable shorter ones were constructed during this period.

The population of 38,000,000 people in 1870 became 50,000,000 in 1880 and 63,000,000 by 1890. This vast population, occupying an area of over 3,000,000 square miles of continuous territory, without tariff barriers, all living under one government, easily afforded the greatest opportunities in the world for exploiting a domestic market of unprecedented size and for the growth of vast aggregations of capital in the form of corporate enterprise.

The scale and openness of stealing was beyond belief. Bribery and corruption became widespread. In New York the notorious "Tweed Gang" came into power in 1868 and by 1871 had carted off loot from the city treasury in amounts variously estimated from $45,000,000 to $200,000,000. A courthouse which was planned to cost $250,000 cost the City of New York over $8,000,000. The businessmen were pursuing their lucrative callings and left the business of running their governments up to the politicians and their hired men, all of whom were getting their share.

In the South, the carpetbagger piled his lucrative trade. The Negro was held in check forcibly by the Klu-Klux Klan with their terrorist methods. America as a nation was in the full swing of industrialism and capitalism. In 1890 the Census Bureau declared that the frontier as a dynamic factor in American life had ended.

The enterprises of the country began marshalling their assets in vast corporate combinations by the dawn of the 20th century. On March 2, 1901, J. P. Morgan and Company announced the formation of the United States Steel Corporation with an initial capitalization of $1,100,000,000.

Cooperation Is Keynote In Local Sale of Drinks

There is every indication that liquor-by-the-drink has moved into Virginia Beach in an orderly manner and is presenting no problems regarding regulations under which such sales are permitted.

Today marks the end of the second week of cocktails in the resort city under recently approved local option. W.C. Lipscomb of the state Alcoholic Control Board, said, "All of the applicants have been cooperating in striving to meet licensing requirements. They're all trying to live up to the letter of the law because they don't want to go to anything to prohibit their getting a license or endanger what they have waited so long for."

Lipscomb is assisted in Virginia Beach by two other State ABC Board field inspectors, E.A. Anderson and Joe Batten, in screening applicants for a mixed beverage license, and assuring against violations of the liquor by the drink regulations.

One of the main items which will concern establishments licensed to sell mixed beverages. This, according to Lipscomb, involves keeping complete, accurate and separate records of all purchases.

Another major requirement for the issuing of mixed beverage licenses provides that no minors may be employed in areas where mixed drinks are sold or served, during the hours in which they are dispensed or consumed. Lipscomb pointed out that another concern of the State ABC Board will be to not only to assure this age requirement is met but also to make certain that no one under the age of 21 is permitted to purchase mixed drinks.

The liquor stock will also be of concern to ABC inspectors. This involves periodic inspection of the stock to assure that liquor supplies have been properly and legally obtained through State ABC Stores.

ABC inspectors will also be concerned themselves with customers who drop into their favorite place for a mixed drink.

Lipscomb points out the law does not require a person to purchase food in order to purchase a drink. However, if they are having more than one they must consume each drink before being served the next one.

The liquor itself will also come under scrutiny of the ABC inspectors. If a customer orders a specific brand the drink must contain that specific brand, unless the customer agrees to a substitution.

One major difference governing mixed beverage sales in Virginia Beach and other metropolitan cities, such as New York, Chicago, or Washington, regards the proverbial round of drinks on the house. Regulations strictly prohibit the serving of any free drinks in Virginia Beach.

While applications for mixed beverage licenses are at a relatively low number at the present, the coming of spring is expected to see an increase in applications in preparation for the coming tourist season according to Lipscomb. The influx of tourists into the resort city is also expected to result in the minor problem of having to educate the out of state visitor about local regulations.

Lipscomb added, "We've got to go through a period of education with the licensees and continue working with them. We welcome their questions and will try to assist them. Everybody has got to work together to get this off the ground."

Lipscomb said he has already had high regard for the cooperation of businessmen in the past and looks forward to the same in the future. In the field of enforcement, Lipscomb said he has always experienced excellent cooperation with the local police department and welcomes their future cooperation in enforcing the laws.

Liquor-by-the-drink is still so new that even Lipscomb can't get used to it.

He said, "You know, I still haven't gotten used to going into these places and seeing liquor bottles stacked up in back of a service bar, sitting right there in plain sight."

The "billion dollar" trust had arrived. The Morgan and Rockefeller groups held 341 directorships in 112 banks, railroads, insurance and other corporations having aggregate resources under their control of $22,245,000,000. Andrew Carnegie, who fought his workmen's reasonable demands for better living conditions, earned from his steel interests alone, as his personal share of its profits, $25,000,000 annually. Rockefeller's income was apparently much greater than that.

Thus it was that the common man found it necessary to organize his forces through labor unions.

Board to Inform Public

By Debbie Bowman

Kempville High School

The Kempville High School Student Council has undertaken a recent project aimed at informing the public of events to come. In the future a large information board will be installed on Kempville Road in front of the elementary school. It will be used to inform the public of games, dances, plays and other events.

The faculty at KHS was recently engaged in a basketball game against the "WNOR High-hoopers." It was a humorous game between the teachers and disc-jockeys, with a halftime show of a trampoline exhibit.

The first scholastic teams at Kempville High was honored. It consists of two juniors, two sophomores and two freshmen.

Bayside was defeated by the KHS gymnastic team in its first varsity meet. The all-boys meet consisted of events on horse, trampoline, parallel bars, suspended rings and free exercise.

Cheerleaders at Kempville are honoring the varsity and junior varsity players by giving a dance in their honor. The dance will be after the dead plague ... exams ... on Jan. 25.

Cast to Do Another Play

The special New York cast, brought to Lake Wright Playhouse to perform Broadway's hottest new release, "The Star Spangled Girl," have agreed to also do the timely space comedy, "Visit to a Small Planet."

Crickett Coan, who holds four international academic degrees, Ken McGlon, who recently finished a feature film in New York, and Nick DeCarlo continue Simon's sixth in a series of smash-hits that has provided theatre-goers entertainment.

Jaycees Seek Nominees

Donald G. Wizeman Jr., director of the Virginia Beach Jaycees, has announced the Jaycees' annual quest for a recipient of the Distinguished Service Award.

The award is given each year to a young man of Virginia Beach in recognition of his outstanding service for the community. Nominations for the DSA are requested from individuals, groups and businesses in the area. The nominations are due before Jan. 22.

Requirements for the nominee are that he be between the ages of 21 and 35 before Jan. 1, 1968 and a native born or naturalized U.S. citizen.

Selection committee for the award is composed of distinguished citizens of the community who are over the age of 35. Their decision is based on contribution to the general community welfare during the year, evidence of leadership abilities and evidence of personal or business progress of the nominee.

Airman Howard K. Macer III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Macer of Butts Lane has received his first U. S. Air Force duty assignment after completing basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex. The Airman has been assigned to McConnell AFB, Kan., for training and duty in the administrative field.

Broadway Is for Young, Single

By Yatta Jones

Living and acting in New York is a dream common to many young girls. Usually it remains a dream and they never get there. Terri Jones, however, is lucky enough to have realized that dream.

Terri is the wife of Tim Jones, director of the Lake Wright Playhouse. The Joneses, who have no children, live in an apartment at Birdneck Point.

Terri and Tim are familiar to theatre-goers in the area. Tim was director of the Cavalier Dinner Playhouse before his present position with Lake Wright Playhouse. Terri has acted in productions at both theatres. They met, in fact, when Tim was auditioning in New York for the Cavalier.

"Hard work, study and discipline" is the way Terri describes the life of an actress. Terri was born in Richmond, but her family moved to Hawaii when she was four. They lived in Hawaii for ten years and then moved from there to San Diego, where Terri graduated from high school.

While living in San Diego Terri started acting and studied modeling. She went to college in Berkeley, majoring in drama and English. The winter of 1965 Terri graduated from college and went straight to New York to continue her studies in acting.

Life in New York covered a wide variation of work experience in addition to the hours of study that were necessary. Terri worked in off-Broadway shows and summer stock. She modeled, did promotional work for the World's Fair and typed when she had nothing else to do. During this time she lived in a fifth floor walk up.

"This kind of life is fun when you are single and young," she says, "but not so young that you don't have your feet on the ground." Even though it is fun, it isn't easy. "If you're easily discouraged, don't go... if you aren't willing to work, don't go," she advises. "You have to have a big belief in your talent and you have to give up a lot."

Terri stresses the amount of work involved in acting. She spent many hours of study both inside and outside of class. She feels that it is important to discipline yourself to apply what you learn in class to everyday situations. You have to be completely involved with people... to study them, learn about them. "Forget about glamour, too," she advises, "it is practically non-existent. Basically it's just a lot of hard work."

One phase of the life that most people don't consider is the loneliness. According to Terri you have to be able to pack up, move frequently, meet new friends and do without the conveniences of home. "It's a nomadic, gypsy existence," she says.

Terri enjoyed her life before, but she is happy to be where she is now, in addition to acting in some of the Lake Wright productions, Terri teaches at John Robert Powers Fashion and Finishing School.

She feels very lucky to be able to do both jobs. She teaches four of the eight courses offered at John Robert Powers.

Teaching is a gratifying experience to Terri. An attractive, poised woman herself, Terri has many good beauty tips. She says that the most important phase of beauty is skin-care. "Keeping your face immaculately clean is the first step," she advises, "and next is moisturizing. Women should start using a moisturizing lotion from their late teens. Many of the preparations used by teenagers to prevent skin oiliness also takes moisture out of the skin. The most common problem among women is dry skin."

When asked how she manages to hold down two jobs plus cope with her husband's rather unorthodox hours, Terry answered with a short sentence. "I learned to be flexible."

She says that you know your husband will never leave for the office everyday at 8:30 a.m. and return by 5:30 p.m., so you adjust. "We eat dinner at 11:30 p.m. and that may be McDonald's hamburgers." She says that when she does cook it is usually a quick, unbalanced meal. Because of this they supplement their diet with vitamin pills.

Their heavy schedules do not leave them much time to go to parties or entertain, but they have made many good friends here. For this reason Terri loves Virginia Beach.

Terri admits that the type of life they lead is exacting. "But," she says, "it's also very exciting." She is a happy, satisfied person who enjoys what she is doing. When asked about future plans Terri smiled and replied, "There is only one thing I would like to do that I'm not doing now...that is to have children...I haven't had a chance to prove it, but I think that basically I'm quite domesticated."

Seeing the Harpers off on their cruise were, seated, Mr. and Mrs. Etheridge and Mrs. Middleton. Behind them are the host and hostess.

Party Begins Early Aboard Ship

Would you believe champagne at 8:30 a.m.? That's when the George Harpers had a bon voyage party aboard the S. S. Nieuw Amsterdam before the start of the annual Virginia Cruise last Thursday.

Mrs. Harper said her husband planned the whole party—even to sending out the invitations. "We've been married 29 years, and that's the first time he's ever done anything like this."

Besides having their party, the Harpers were busy Thursday morning being photographed for a fashion layout. Mr. Harper stole the limelight in a green double-breasted jacket with green plaid pants. The Harpers just recently returned from another cruise. This one will be for two weeks in the West Indies.

Among the well-wishers seeing them off were Mr. and Mrs. V. A. (Jack) Etheridge, Mr. and Mrs. Bev Middleton, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Mott, Mrs. Malcolm H. Todd, Jr., Paul deWitt, Mrs. Mary English, Arthur Litchfield, the Harper's daughter, Mrs. Melinda Harper Sidwell, and son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Harper.

Dutch Husbands Want Wives at Home

By Carolyn McAllen

Dutch housewives stay home—even to have their babies.

Mrs. Gerrard Van de Griendt, wife of a Royal Dutch Navy commander, spoke to members of the Cavalier Junior Woman's Club about life in the Netherlands at their annual International Affairs dinner last Thursday at Thalia Methodist Church.

Mrs. Van de Griendt, a tall, attractive brunette, said that the Dutch are having smaller families now. In the past families averaged eight or more children, but now they have two or three. The few mothers who do go to hospitals stay eight or nine days.

"The Dutch housewife does not have a job," she said. "The husbands want them home." She added that the husbands expected their homes to be "organized and cozy" when they arrived home at night.

"The husbands feel that as long as there is no need for extra money the Dutch Housewife belongs at home. They love to clean. Blankets are hung outside every week. They sweep the streets in front of their houses. They wash the windows weekly -- I don't do it," she admitted with a laugh. "Friday the whole family takes a bath." She explained this one lack of cleanliness on tradition and a scarcity of modern plumbing in older homes.

Housewives go shopping every day for fresh meat and vegetables. The baker and milkman come to the door. They have few frozen foods. "Refrigerators are smaller and there are no separate freezers," said Mrs. Van de Griendt, a native of Rotterdam. "We do not use ice in tea or drinks. It isn't that we don't have it. We just prefer them without ice."

Dutch meals, she said, are rather heavy, consisting of potatoes (always), fresh vegetables and meat. "We have different cuts of meat than in the United States. There is no fat or bones."

Pancakes are a dessert, and there is no juice or bacon for breakfast. "Eggs are boiled. We eat cheese and sweet things on bread (including chocolate), and lunch meat for breakfast."

Dutch children go to school from six to their 16th birthday. All schools are financed by the government whether they are public or private. The government also supervises high school entrance and graduate exams. Schools have a two hour lunch break so children can go home to eat.

Everybody is registered for the Dutch social security program which includes sickness insurance for everyone below a certain income level. "We have no really poor people," she commented, adding that the government even provides an allowance for children under 16.

"Doctors still visit the homes," she said. "You don't have to wrap a sick child in a blanket and carry him half way across the city for treatment." She is the mother of two small children, so she should know.

There are two television channels in Holland. "There are few commercials and never in the middle of a program. They come in a 15 or 20 minute break between programs." There are few programs in the morning, and all programs go off at 11 p.m.

The main problem in The Netherlands is housing. It's the most densely populated land in the world, said Mrs. Van de Griendt. Applications for housing must be made far in advance. Couples planning on marrying must either wait until space is available or move in with their parents.

Generation Gap Is Widening

Either I led a very sheltered life as a child or I was just blissfully ignorant.

My children make me feel stupid. Not only do they know what's going on in the world, I think they know more about it than I do.

For instance Monday night at supper--the four, six and seven year olds gave detailed reports of the presidential inauguration, comparing notes on what they had seen on television that morning at their schools. At their age I didn't even know who was president or what he did.

I remember the Weekly Reader arriving each Friday and each student being forced to read it because we might have a quiz on it. My kids look forward to their newspapers each week. The four-year-old is the only one who doesn't get one yet.

Over the weekend the seven-year-old was bemoaning the fact that she wouldn't be able to watch since all the television sets at her school were burned in a fire before Christmas. She had already asked if she could watch the news on TV Monday night. But her room mother came to the rescue just in time and brought hers to the class.

It was just as bad when the astronauts circled the moon. They watched every minute on television and knew all the details.

I did get ahead of the seven-year-old on the launching of the Queen Elizabeth II. I learned before she did that the ship had been returned to port for repairs.

For years I've read articles advising wives to keep up with current events so they can converse intelligently with their husband--it's my kids I'm worried about.

Schools are already holding night classes for parents so they can be equipped mentally to help their offspring solve the "new math" and "new English." Maybe they should have night classes in what happened during the day. No wonder there's a "generation gap."

The crowning blow came when the six-year-old told me to hurry up reading the newspaper--she wanted to see it before she went to bed. My only hope is that someday their kids will make them feel just as inadequate.

Easy-Wear Combines with Easy-Care

When winter winds begin to blow, travel folders join the best-seller books for family reading. But whether you decide on ski weekends up north, snorkel sessions down south, or just stay-at-home entertaining, there's important fashion news in the latest winter apparel. The key is easy-wear and easy-care.

Some of the newest togs on the ski slopes this winter are the striking knicker suits of heavy wool knit in bright colors and patterns that echo the Scandinavian scene. The snug knickers, topped with matching sweater-jackets, are designed not only for added comfort and warmth, but for easy and inexpensive cleaning. How? Believe it or not, they're machine-washable in cold water.

Ski parkas are so popular, so varied, and so fashionable that they're seen on as many suburbanites as ski buffs. But there are some pointers to keep in mind in purchasing this type of sportswear. Remember that warmth is created not by the weight of the parka but its bulk, which traps dead air for insulation. A lightweight, puffy layer of polyester is the best insulation for most parkas. Other linings include pile -- which gives a parka a more slimming look but not as much warmth -- and foam-laminated fabrics, which are warm and light but tend to be more inhibiting to body movement.

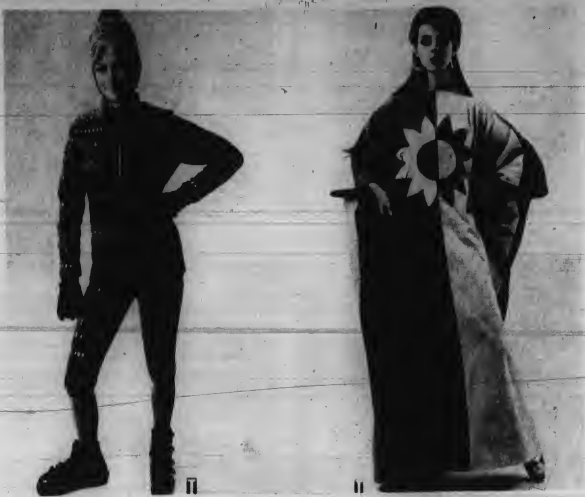

Be sure to check the manufacturer's tag for proof of a parka's water-repellency. Nylon is a good fabric for the outer shell of a parka because it is lightweight, long wearing and doesn't absorb moisture. Two other outershell fabrics frequently used for parkas are Antron, a more expensive, silky form of nylon, and polyester poplin, an excellent heavy-duty fabric.

Many of the new eye-dazzling ski sweaters -- and this year the fashion is solid colors with contrasting color trims at the neckline and cuffs -- are being made of the new machine-washable wools. So there'll be no more crying over spilt hot chocolate. Again, the secret is cold water laundering.

This cold water machine-washability can mean not only newer-looking sweaters but also a considerable saving in dry cleaning bills. After any washable sweater comes out of the machine, don't put it into a hot dryer. It's best to dry all wools naturally, away from any direct heat.

Leather is news everywhere this season, and another breakthrough in winter fashions is the development of washable leather and leather-like fabrics. Modern designers have just come up with jackets, skirts, frontier pants, shirts and slacks that, believe it or not, can go right into the machine with the all-purpose cold water detergent. One innovation for the ladies is a butter-soft, white, Spanish leather jacket that reaches to the hip. Another delightful design for little girls is a short-sleeved Indian shift of simulated doekskin, with an Indian fringe at the hem and sleeves. And Mother will relax knowing that this leather look is completely machine-washable.

One fashion "must" for the out-of-doors -- be it in snowy or sunny clime -- is the latest look in "stretchables." The new stretch fabrics not only run the gamut from ski pants to swimsuits but also are being used in shirts, trousers, sweaters, jackets and shorts. These easy-wear designs are flattering to the figure while providing the utmost in mobility. The easy-care tip for them is also the cold water treatment. Good stretch clothes must "bounce" back to their original shape. Hot water can cause stretching and wrinkle-setting, but cold water laundering -- right in the machine, since most are synthetics -- preserves this "bounce."

All wool and washable. This P. & M Skiwear design (left) of wool knit knickers and matching sweater-jacket comes in bright Scandinavian hues. (Right) -- If you're headed for one of the sun resorts you can make your own beach robe by simply stitching four colorful bath sheets together. If you're staying home, use it for at-home entertaining.

Another advantage to stretch clothes is their travelability.

They take up little space in a suitcase, and they unpack looking brand new. A quick steaming in the shower will smooth out any folds that might come from packing in a rush.

The news for the strictly sunny side of the winter scene is terry. Some of the most elegant fashions you'll be seeing at the beaches and the resorts are made from the same terry toweling that's in your bath. Some of the towel manufacturers today have created towel designs of such high fashion patterns and colors that fashion-wise women are buying towels and turning them into one-of-a-kind bikinis, beach ponchos, capans, capes, wide-legged pants and even elegant outfits for at-home entertaining. And for easy care, what washes better than terry towel -- as long as the water is not hot enough to effect the bright colors.

A special tip for vacationers who head for the blue-green waters of the Caribbean, the Bahamas or the Pacific resorts: when you come back home, give your swimsuits a good cold water laundering in the machine. This can bring their colors to their original brightness before you store them away to wait for summer.

Council Discusses National Meet

The council of the Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs met last Wednesday morning in the Agriculture Building at the Courthouse for its yearly board meeting with Mrs. Ben Reed, new president, presiding.

Mrs. Reed announced plans for the National Meeting of the Federation to be held on campus at Virginia Polytechnic Institute at Blacksburg from Aug. 11 to 15. Between 4,000 and 5,000 members of the National Extension Homemakers Council will gather from 50 states, the Philippines and Puerto Rico.

Workshops will be conducted on such topics as citizenship, family life, health, international relations, public information and safety.

Dutch

For entertainment they play soccer and tennis, attend bike races, or bowl. "Bowling is nothing like it is here. There they drink beer and talk -- once in a while they throw a ball. They also have to retrieve their own balls." There are night clubs and dancing. In the winter there is ice skating. "They freeze water on the tennis courts. There's music and lights -- it's really something."

Mrs. Van de Griendt shattered an old American belief. "Hans Brinker never existed, but the Dutch put up a statue for him anyway for the tourists. The story was written by an American woman who never even saw a dike."

The menu for the evening was also Dutch and mostly unpronounceable. Members of the Public Affairs Department of the club who planned and put on the dinner were Mrs. Asa Camp, Mrs. Leslie Cox, Mrs. Thomas Coyne, Mrs. Frank Hughes, Mrs. Henry McCoy, Mrs. Scott Mitchell, Mrs. William Murphy, Mrs. Leon Ware, Mrs. Joseph Watson and Mrs. James Butler.

It was announced that the club has "adopted" a 15-year-old girl in India through the Christian Childrens Home.

The club picked Mrs. William B. Jones as their candidate for Outstanding Junior for the Tidewater District of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs. The winner from all clubs will be announced at the spring district meeting. Mrs. Jones is a past president of the club and is now second vice president and publicity chairman.

HERE COMES OLGA!

The Virginia Beach Board of Realtors held their installation of officers for 1969 at the Commodore Club Friday night. Cocktails, dinner and dancing were also part of this installation.

Well, this is the second installation of officers I have to attend this month. I don't really mind these installations but there is so much business that has to take place before the fun begins. You find yourself waiting around doing nothing but waiting for the talks and business of the meeting to get over and sometimes this gets to be a pretty long wait.

The crowd was quite large in attendance and the women were beautifully dressed in their long formal. Mrs. Arlene Conway and Mrs. Eunice Lutz were wearing the new cocktail pants. These outfits were really attractive. Mrs. Conway wore a silver pant suit with jewel neckline and the long tunic. Mrs. Lutz wore the gold suit with the tailored top long tunic. Although this is the latest in fashions, women are still a little timid about wearing them. It seems that these two women are apparently close friends, and they had dared each other to wear their pants suits.

Come on women, don't be timid if you have the figure for a pant suit then wear them; certainly you know whether you are slim enough and curve in the right place so you can wear them. I am sure as the season progresses I will be seeing more and more of these cocktail pant suits.

kowicz and Mr. & Mrs. Bob Johnson.

Mrs. Rose Bissett, chairman of the affair, was dressed in a very attractive long formal of green sequins. Mrs. Oscar Baxter was wearing a long white formal with a sequin top; her earrings encircled the ear, and her blond hair was set very beautifully to the top of the head. Having known Mr. & Mrs. Baxter for many a year, this was the first time I have seen them in about 20 years -- both of them are still a very good looking couple.

Cocktails, dinner and business meeting over, the dancing started. Frank Sorrell and his band as usual were terrific. If some of you remember, Frank played at the Cape Colony Club for a long time when they first opened and everyone liked them so very much. I think a lot of the people in Virginia Beach would like to see Frank and his band return to Virginia Beach a little more often.

While they were clearing the tables from the dance floor, I was able to see a few others I knew who were there: Mr. & Mrs. Kenny Jard, Mr. & Mrs. Peter deWitt, Mr. & Mrs. Talbot Dickson, Mr. & Mrs. Dave Miller, Mr. & Mrs. Jim Stohl, Mr. & Mrs. Scott Taylor, Mr. & Mrs. Bob Wainwright and Mr. & Mrs. Baily Parker.

The party was in full swing when my camera began to give me trouble, so it was time for me to make my exit.

See you next week as always.

Insurance Women Plan School

The January meeting of the Virginia Beach Insurance Women's Association was held at the Bay Harbor Club. The program this month was presented by Charles F. Connelly, Sr. and Robert V. May of John Hancock Life Insurance Company.

Plans were announced for the club's school which is to be held in February and March. The course will last six weeks. One class each will be on Automobile and Homeowners Policies. The remaining four classes will be on the Special Multi-Peril policies.

Persons in the insurance field who are interested may contact

Mrs. Frances Chisholm at the Virginia Beach office of John Hancock Life Insurance Company.

If there's little or no time to be spent in the kitchen, the lady of the house plans to spend a few cents more on convenience foods...quickly and easily prepared. When she has hours to spend on her dinner, she can buy more economically, selecting less tender, long cooking cuts of meat. Her dinners are successful whatever her time schedule.

Windows Can Be Headaches

Window problems? Join the club. When it comes to home fashion headaches, window-decorating holds the championship—officially certified by a psychiatric study, defining drapery-buying as the all-time shopping trauma.

What makes it all worse is the fact that windows aren't likely to surrender their dubious honors. As the realists among us realize, they're going to be a problem just as long as home-builders treat every window like a brand new invention, instead of measuring them in the kind of basic modules used, say, for beds, baths and oil burners.

Until that millennium arrives, though—and it seems as remote as the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow-harassed home-makers will simply have to deal with window woes as best they can. Not that help isn't at hand. Retailers, for instance, are pitching in with a raft of suggested solutions—from costly custom services, unfortunately way out of reach of the average budget, to a promotional push for the undressed window, a starkly spare fashion approach that leaves a good deal to be desired in both the privacy and beauty departments.

The best answer -- and the newest -- seems to lie halfway between the extremes. In the new "customized" services that offer made-to-measure advantages without traditional custom costs. Most drapery departments offer customized programs -- at costs that are normally only fractionally more than readymade styles. What you get for the added investment is freedom of choice -- a happy change for the better from the limitations of readymades, available only in some manufacturer's idea of what women want by way of styles and sizes.

Best of all -- and most surprising to women who haven't gone drapery shopping for the past five years -- is the big change in performance factors. These days, draperies can do a job, in addition to looking attractive, thanks to the new sophistication in fabrics and features.

With insulation established, producers are starting to turn their attention to a whole array of other wants. At the Rockland Mills laboratories, where Rock-Long insulated linings were developed and where most of "what's new" in the drapery field is born, it's an everyday occurrence to find an insulated fabric that also sheds moisture, stops dampness damage, controls light, retards ultra-violet decay and shields against sunlight fading. Just a few of the special virtues of today's hard-working drapery fabrics. Happily, too, more news is on the way.

Bone Up on Meat Cuts

Betty Brownell, home economist for National Association of Food Chains, admits that women often are confused about the cost, tenderness and cooking methods of many meat cuts. A simple test of bone shape tells all!

Three bone shapes are easily recognized in most cuts. The T-bone, shaped like a T, stands for tenderness. It usually stands for higher cost as it is the tender, fast cooking cuts which cost more. T-bone steaks are an excellent example. They may, of course, be broiled to perfection in a very short time, the time dependent on the thickness and the degree of doneness desired.

An O-shaped, or round bone, indicates that the cut is somewhat less expensive and also less tender, requiring a longer, slower cooking method. Round steak has a round bone. Braising turns this less tender cut into a tasty morsel. Some recipes require that round steak be baked, again giving it the longer, slower cooking needs.

A third bone shape to remember is the blade bone, a long slender bone, easily seen in the beef pot roast and other cuts. Again, slow cooking is a must for blade bone meat cuts. These cuts are less tender and less expensive.

While you're boning up, remember that less tender means before cooking, not after. Using the correct cooking method, you'll find that these cuts might turn into family favorite meats that they'll request again and again.

Your time is the deciding factor. If a meal can't take longer to prepare than 30 minutes to fit into your time schedule, steaks and chops it must be. But if you'll be home to give a less tender cut the time and loving care it must have, select a less expensive round or blade bone cut.

As prices rise, your knowledge of meat cuts must increase, enabling you to feed your family on a budget, according to your time schedule and with foods they'll like.

Course V Is Offered

The Flower Show School Course V of the National Council of State Garden Clubs, Inc., sponsored by Virginia Polytechnic Institute and the Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs, will be held Jan. 28 to 30 at the Jefferson Hotel in Richmond.

All garden club members who pay dues to the National Council may attend. The schools are for all garden club members, not just those interested in flower arranging -- those of you who are interested in better gardening, winning top awards in flower shows, design planting, horticulture, presenting standard flower shows and improving your garden club.

Instructors include Mrs. Walter B. Jones of Richmond, N.C., who will teach Horticulture; Mrs. Harry A. Gwinner of Atlanta, Ga., Flower Design; and Professor Albert S. Beecher of Blacksburg, Plant Design.

The price for the entire course and examination is $12. Tickets for single lectures are $3.25.

VPI Co-op Ext. Service

Many of you have grapevines that have been neglected and probably bear very few, if any, grapes each year.

In the case of old vines that have not been pruned regularly, the canes extend farther out each year leaving the fruiting wood too far away from the trunk. Many short, weak shoots form dense shade, which causes the inside parts of the vine to die. These old vines may be rejuvenated by proper pruning and fertilizing to bear good crops within two years.

The first step in pruning is to cut out all dead and extremely weak wood. Then shorten the long trunk and branches so as to leave 8 to 10 of the strongest new canes on the vine. Shorten about 1/2 of these new canes so as to leave 6 to 8 buds on each; cut the others back to 1 or 2 buds each. This heavy pruning stimulates the development of strong new shoots nearer the main trunk, and at the same time provides some fruit the next summer. Prune the second winter so as to thin the new canes and provide renewal spurs.

If the old cane is badly decayed, cut it off near the ground. New shoots will arise from the crown, and one of these new shoots may be trained to form a new trunk. Fertilizing of weak vines encourages growth of new shoots and increases yields.

Snip cooked California prunes into small pieces and fold into butterscotch pudding. Sprinkle each serving with chopped pecans or toasted coconut.

Cut Calories, But Enjoy Eating

Guess who's coming to dinner? The dieters! Some 20 million strong, a cross-section of shape, size and sex, with just this much in common: they're all watching before they're eating.

Calorie-counting may be their way of life -- but it doesn't have to mean abandoning all the joys of the table. As a matter of fact, the old-fashioned idea that weight-watching means goodbye to good cooking has been knocked into a cocked hat by a unique new booklet called "The Sweetest Diet Ever Told."

Food-lovers who follow its commonsense counsel eat with the rest of us -- cutting down rather than cutting out. From soup to sweet (yes, dieters can satisfy a sweet tooth), they eat the good food we all enjoy -- and whittle their waistlines at the same time. The big difference? The dieters eat sensibly, instead of overstuffing -- a plan approved by everyone, from nutritionists to the dieters themselves, who can still enjoy the variety that's the spice of mealtime life.

Key to commonsense eating is the meal-minded approach. Calorie-rich snacks and extras are out; that handful of oil-rich nuts or a secret pastry splurge can wreak any calorie count. The dieter's substitute is a meal that leaves you satisfied -- instead of hungrily thinking of the next meal at table. A well-rounded meal turns down the appetite -- the neural center that seems to control appetite -- leaving dieters less likely to raid the refrigerator or succumb to high-calorie temptation.

What well-rounded means is a meal that includes all the daily essentials plus the grace notes that satisfy the eye as well as the appetite. Typically, several light courses -- a clear soup followed by a light entrée, then a final course of a light dessert -- is much more appetite appealing than the same number of calories crammed into one or two dishes.

It's a matter of psychology -- spreading the calories around for the emotional satisfaction that's just as important as actual food consumption. Dessert, for instance, ends even a low-calorie meal with a pleasurable exclamation point -- sending you away from the table as satisfied as if calories didn't count. A sweet dessert may even help you stay on a diet. While the sweet taste itself stifles the temptation to indulge in fattening snacks, the sugar offers a bonus in energy.

Like everything else in a

Oranges and blueberries in spicy red wine -- a serving of satisfaction, tasty exclamation point to a meal... on a diet, or off. On side dish: Tuilles, meringue-light sweet treat cookies from France, easy to make and lower in calories than most sugarless "diet" cookies. Tastier, too!

wise eating plan, the desserts that belong on a diet "think light" -- stressing natural flavors, in small servings. (The idea isn't to fill up -- just feel full.) The classic cuisine includes many such recipes -- far more satisfying than concoctions that almost shriek "for dieters only." Several classics, from "The Sweetest Diet Ever Told," are Coeur a la Creme, the creamy French confection, fruit in spiced wine and the crispy cookies called Tuilles. All are just the kind

P.A. Gardeners

Thalia Garden Club has organized and is sponsoring a junior garden club which will be called the Princess Anne Gardeners.

Mrs. C. M. Smith and Mrs. Sara Lane, a teacher at Princess Anne High School, will be co-sponsor and counselor. Meetings will be held on the second Friday of each month in the eight grade room. The club is inviting new members between the ages of 13 and 16.

Officers are: President, Judy Duff; Vice-President, Lou Tate; Secretary, Cindy Smith; and Treasurer, Sheila Leedom.

Mrs. W. L. Robinson presented the club's first program, which was on propagation. Using posters and visual aids, she gave points on ways to pot plants from cuttings.

Cape Henry Shores Mrs. August H. Culpepper gave a program on Oral Judging at the January meeting of the Cape Henry Shores Garden Club held at the home of Mrs. Marvin Moore.

She judged and discussed fresh flower arrangements made by Mrs. L. Hill, Mrs. George Anderson and Mrs. Walter Determan. Horticulture specimens brought by Mrs. Gordon Tyler, Mrs. William Dyas and Mrs. Fred Grube were also discussed.

Thalia Garden Club

Mrs. Rolf Williams spoke on "Flemish Arrangements from Nothing, Something," at the Jan. 15 meeting of the Thalia Garden Club.

Prizes in the Christmas Doorway Contest were presented. Mrs. J. R. Cromwell won the silver award for the high blue ribbon in the advanced class. The Mavy Award (rotating) for the Novice Class II was awarded to Mrs. W. L. Robinson. Mrs. A. V. Kuun, Mrs. O. W. Self and Mrs. J. H. Smith won blue ribbons in the Advanced Class.

Arrangements were judged by Pembroke Garden Club. Gold ribbons were won by Mrs. H. W. Freeman and Mrs. Kuun.

of dining delight that haunted dieters' dreams in the days when a sweet tooth was strictly verboten.

Party-pretty presentation is part of their secret; dieters are starved as much for the fun of eating as for food for its own sake. And they don't enjoy being singled out as second-rate citizens in the dining department -- a special joy of desserts as good off diets as on. The complete recipe booklet, including basic steps to diet planning, is available free on request from Sugar Information, Dept. D, Box 2664, Grand Central Station, New York 10017.

COEUR A LA CREME

1/2 pt. cottage cheese
3 oz. package cream cheese
1/4 tsp. salt
2 Tbsps. sugar
2 cups whole fresh strawberries, hulled
1 Tbsp. confectioners sugar

Mash cheeses and mix with salt and sugar. Cream until smooth. Pack into a heart-shaped mold, lined with either waxed paper or cheesecloth. Refrigerate eight hours or overnight. Unmold onto serving plate. Surround with strawberries sprinkled with confectioners sugar and serve. Serves six. (Shallow mold in any fancy shape may be substituted for traditional, heart-shaped French basket mold. If French basket mold is used, place on platter while refrigerating, to catch excess moisture that may drip through while dessert is setting.) Calories per portion: 125.

ORANGES AND BLUEBERRIES IN SPICY RED WINE

4 large navel oranges
2 Tbsps. sugar
1/3 c. dry red wine
3 cloves
1 cinnamon stick OR
1/4 tsp. cinnamon
Dash nutmeg
1 c. fresh blueberries

Peel and slice oranges into thin rounds. Place in glass serving dish. Sprinkle with sugar. Add wine and spices. Refrigerate covered eight hours or longer. Mix in blueberries just before serving. Serves six. Calories per portion: 102.

TUILLES (CRISP FRENCH COOKIES)

3 egg whites
1/4 c. confectioners sugar
1/3 c. sifted flour
1/4 tsp. salt
3 Tbsps. butter, melted
1/2 tsp. almond extract
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1/2 c. vanilla wafer crumbs

Beat egg whites until they form soft peaks. Beat in sugar gradually until well-blended and meringue is stiff. Fold in flour, salt and melted butter. Add flavorings and vanilla wafer crumbs. Blend lightly. Drop by teaspoons onto lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees nine-ten minutes, or until edges are lightly browned. Remove cookies from pan with spatula. Cool in single layer and serve. (Optional: For traditional French service, these cookies may be rolled. While still warm, remove from pan and fold for a half minute around rolling pin. Cool on cake rack and serve.) Calorie count of these cookies is less than most so-called sugarless diet cookies. Makes about 28 cookies. Calories per cookie: 30.

Two Unbeaten Teams Remain at Beach

Two of the basketball teams still unbeaten in Eastern District conference play are in Virginia Beach, but with this schedule that's ahead that is subject to change.

Cox and Princess Anne went into the examination break with four conference wins and no defeats. Only Maury of Norfolk joins those teams in the unbeaten ranks in conference play. Princess Anne, on the other hand, has two defeats overall so far. One came at the hands of Maury last week and the other by Cox earlier in the season. Both Cox and Maury are still unbeaten in all games. Cox has won ten straight and Maury nine straight this season.

And until Maury and Cox finally meet on Feb. 7, that's the way it could easily remain. Maury is moving at ease past all comers. Cox may be having a tougher time with its opponents, but the end result is the same. Squeakers or not, the record books tell the story.

As the schedule moves back into full swing this weekend surprises are expected. Lake Taylor, hot and cold all season, plays host to Cox in a big one. Cox puts its record on the line against Lake Taylor's 4-6 record, 2-1 in conference play. Princess Anne goes against the determined Kempville Chiefs, who now have an impressive 5-5 record overall, in spite of size and no senior class players. First Colonial takes on a surging Booker T. Washington of Norfolk five. The Bookers have a 5-3 record overall, but have lost only to Maury in conference play. And in the battle for the basement, Kellam, with its 2-8 record goes against Bayside for the second trip this season. In their last clash, Kellam barely eked out a 65-63 victory over the Marlins whose present record is unspelled at 0-10.

Saturday night Lake Taylor travels to First Colonial. While their records are nearly alike, First Colonial has lost some close ones except the Maury rout, and could explode in this one. The Patriots are not nearly as bad as their overall 3-6 record would indicate. Princess Anne will meet Wilson in the hostile territory of Portsmouth. After last weekend the Presidents boasted a 7-0 record in the Southeastern District, and was the only undefeated team in that conference.

Next Tuesday Norview, which is having a great deal of trouble on the backboards this season and now has a 4-5 record, meets the Cox Falcons in an important game. First Colonial is at Kellam, Kempville goes up against the Maury Commodore and Lake Taylor invades Princess Anne in what could be a real thriller. Union Kempville is idle all week until Jan. 31, when the Tigers meet Northampton at Union Kempville. They played a double header on the Eastern Shore yesterday. The game, against Mary N. Smith in Accomac was played in the afternoon and the game against Northampton at Machipongo was played last night.

In action last weekend, Cox won No. 10 by downing the Kempville Chiefs 65-52. Keith Sudduth was high scorer with

New Boxers Join Team

Three new members have joined the Ft. Story boxing team within the last two weeks, Sports Director Arlen Hensley has announced.

Pfc. Arthur Poulin, 20, of the 573rd Trans. Co. who hails from Plattsburgh, N. Y.; SP4 Michael Newman, 21, of the 438th Trans. Co., home-town Crystal Lake, Ill.; and SP4 Robert S. Dundas, 25, of the 331st Trans. Co., home-town Cordova, Alaska, have begun a rigorous training program. All are new to the boxing field, but coach and trainer, Al Smith of Special Services, is optimistic of their being in fighting condition by Jan. 29th. On this date, Ft. Story will again go up against the Marine Corps in matches

21 points. Princess Anne narrowly passed Granby 69-67 in the final seconds, and the victory came at the foul line. High scoring Rickey Michaelson was held to 10 points.

Booker T. embarrassed Bayside with a 110-48 victory over winless Bayside, Maury rolled up an easy victory over First Colonial 88-53; and G.W. Carver of Chesapeake edged by Union Kempville 66-61 to interrupt the Tigers' winning streak at four.

Saturday night Crestwood also downed Union Kempville 92-75, despite Warnell Fletcher's to be held at McCormick Center, D & S Piers, Norfolk. The three new team members join Pfc. James Bolden of the 637th Trans. Det. who was the sole member of the team with three wins and a draw to his credit. He has fought twice at Ft. Eustis, once at Oceana, and once at Camp Lejeune. A previous team member was Sgt. David Ramirez of the 438th Trans. Co. Before leaving the team, he won a unanimous decision in a Navy bout at Oceana.

Team weight is as follows: Bolden at 156 lb., a light-middle; Poulin at 139 lb., and Newman at 132 lb., are light-welter; and Dundas at 220 lb., heavy-weight.

33 point effort for the Tigers. Tuesday night Crestwood again downed the Tigers, 94 to 67. No other games were scheduled because of exams.

Cox's Sudduth remained in the ranks of the area's top scorers with a ten-game total of 223, or a 22.3 average. The only other Virginia Beach cager among the top scorers is PA's Michaelson.

While Cox does not figure in the top offense category and may lack some of the razzle dazzle of Maury and other offensive leaders, the Falcons lead the area in defense while Maury ranks third. Cox has given up an average of 50.2 points per game to Maury's 52.

The impressive records being built by not only Cox but also Princess Anne in conference play could continue, but the big games are yet to come and so are the tournaments at the end of February and the first part of March. While Maury looks like the obvious choice now the season is only a little more than half over.

Stamey Wins Florida Trip

Wayne Stamey of Garrison Place, was recently awarded a four-day all-expense-paid trip for two to Miami and the Orange Bowl game by Ford Motor Company's Autolite-Ford Parts Division.

Stamey, who is parts manager of Beach Ford, Inc. Virginia Beach, received the award in recognition of his achievements in parts management and sales.

Big Catches May Raise Standards

Fishermen striving for citations award annually by the Virginia Salt Water Sport Fishing Association for outstanding catches could be facing higher requirements this year.

S. Claude Rogers, Jr. of Virginia Beach, Association Director, tells the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN proposals have been made to raise the citation minimum requirements in several categories, including bluefish, tuna, and blue marlin.

Rogers said minimum weight requirements for bluefish citations will likely be raised from the present 12 pounds to 15 pounds. The proposal is based on the increasing number of citations being awarded for bluefish, and the increased weight of the majority of catches.

Consideration is also being given to changing requirements for awarding tuna citations. According to Rogers, all tuna fish will be grouped into the general category of "large tuna" with minimum citation weight requirements set at 50 pounds. Rogers indicated this step is proposed to do away with the problem of identifying tuna specifically. Rogers points out, however, that anglers seeking citations should not confuse their catches with false albacore or other species similar to tuna.

Changes are also being recommended in citation requirements in the blue marlin class.

Rogers said it has been recommended that citations be awarded for blue marlin weighing 250 pounds which are landed, and that citations would also be awarded for blue marlin which are released.

A meeting of the Association officials is scheduled for next Thursday, when all of the proposed citation changes will be reviewed. Final word on citation requirements may be released prior to the opening of the 1969 sport fishing tournament.

Linda Cooper Rolls High Set

Able Planner Heads New Dept.

The Virginia Beach Planning Department has organized a new department branch to direct the city's long-range planning program. The new Advance Planning Section is headed by Timothy Eugene Barrow, who began work Jan. 16.

Duties of the new section will be directed toward relating the long-range programs such as future land use to the present day-to-day working schedule. The Advance Planning Section will handle much of the work formerly handled by the Comprehensive Section of the Planning Department.

The new section will be relieved of the more routine matters such as zoning policy administration. At present, advanced planning is working with consultants to update zoning regulations and the building code in order to pull the regulatory tools into a package.

In speaking of future plans of his section Barrow says that he hopes to have more communication with the various city agencies, such as the school board and welfare department, in city planning. It is his belief that physical and social improvements go hand-in-hand.

He also wants to work closely with Norfolk, Portsmouth, and Chesapeake in mutual development of the four-cities area. He feels this is a necessity in overcoming area-wide problems.

At the present it is not known how large a staff will work in the Advance Planning Section. A more definite organizational pattern will be set up after the Planning Department moves into its new quarters Feb. 15.

Barrow, 24, holds a master's degree in city planning from the University of Pennsylvania and a bachelor's degree in city planning from the University of Virginia. While in college he worked for the Virginia Beach

Timothy E. Barrow, head of the staff of the Virginia Beach Planning Department's new Advance Planning Section.

Planning Commission during the summers of 1964, 1965, 1966 and 1967.

In 1966 Barrow received the Virginia Citizen's Planning Council Award as the outstanding student of planning in the state while attending the University of Virginia. During the same year he received the Charlottesville Downtown Merchant's Award for downtown design.

The Philadelphia City Planning Commission employed Barrow for eight months while he was working on his master's degree.

Barrow graduated from Princess Anne High School. He lives with his wife, the former Paige Valentine, in the Regency Apartments.

Realtors Present Awards

The Virginia Beach Board of Realtors announced Alford W. Wells as Realtor of the Year and Peter deWitt as Salesman of the Year during the Board's annual Realtor's Ball Jan. 17.

Wells, who is vice president of Commonwealth Realty Corp., retired here with his family in 1959 after having served 20 years in the Navy. He has served on the Virginia Beach Board of Realtors as an officer since 1967. In addition he served as director and also as Chairman of the State Membership Committee of the Virginia Association of Realtors in 1968.

DeWitt, a salesman for Walworth Realty Co., is a member of one of the first families to settle Virginia Beach. DeWitt, a graduate of the Realtors' Institute of the University of Virginia, is immediate past vice president of the student body of that school. His sales for Nov. 1, 1967 through Oct. 31, 1968 totaled $419,678.50.

In addition to the Salesman and Realtor of the Year awards, the Virginia Beach Board of Realtors also installed new officers. The new officers are: Alford W. Wells, president; Hubert J. Bissett, vice president; J. W. Wood, secretary and Herbert Cooper, treasurer. Installed as directors were Scott Brooks, Robert Maxey, Scott Taylor, M. Frank Abel and Bailey T. Parker.

Ball to Mark Anniversary

When Princess Anne Post 113 of the American Legion decided to hold their first Anniversary Ball, they decided to go all the way.

For a location they picked Pembroke Mall. For a band they picked the 14-piece Doc Severinsen and his Tonight Show orchestra who just this week played for the inaugural Ball in Washington, D.C.

The ball will celebrate the 50th Anniversary of the founding of the American Legion. As might be expected, red, white and blue will be featured throughout. Jim Pilley, ball chairman, will even have a bright blue tuxedo with a red cummerbund. His wife will wear a red gown.

The ball will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. on Feb. 15 in the center of the Mall. Tickets, at $25 a couple, are on sale.

Pilley

at the Mall ticket office at the entrance on Thursday, Friday and Saturday and at all times at Kellam and Eaton Insurance on Pacific Avenue and at Nixon Electric, at 613 Virginia Beach Blvd. For further information or reservations, call Pilley at 340-5999.

Hot hors d'oeuvres and set ups will be furnished.

"Notice to the Public"
Notice is hereby given to the public that Princess Anne Utilities Corporation has filed with the State Corporation Commission revised rates, rules and regulations for sewerage service rendered in the vicinity of Princess Anne Plaza in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, which involve increases over the charges now being made. The proposed rates filed to become effective upon the order of the State Corporation Commission and after commencement of delivery of effluent to Hampton Roads Sanitation District are as follows:

A Two-Part Rate Treatment Charge:
The exact charge of each individual customer as billed by Hampton Roads Sanitation District on their rate schedule which is based on metered water usage; and

Service Charge:
For transportation to Hampton Roads Sanitation District, maintenance, service and collection.

To each residential customer—$28.50/qr.
To each apartment customer—$19.00/qr.

To each commercial customer—a factor times the residential base rate of $28.50. Said factor would be the customer's 1967 water usage divided by the average 1967 water usage of a residential customer.

An investigation of the proposed charges has been entered upon by the Commission, and a hearing on such new rates has been set for 10:00 A.M. on February 12, 1969, in the Courtroom of the Commission, Planning Building, Richmond, Virginia, at which time and place members of the public generally may appear and present such relevant data as may be desirable and may be heard.

District Unsatisfactory to City

Edward T. Caton III and proposed changes.

Del. B. R. Middleton makes a point at the Constitutional Revision hearing as State Sen. Edward T. Caton III and Kenneth Whitehurst, Jr. study one of the proposed changes.

Fund to Help Children

A trust fund has been established for the children of police officers Roger L. McClung and Robert R. Monette who lost their lives last month during a police diving team training exercise in Lake Wesley.

Floyd E. Waterfield, Asst. Vice Pres. of First & Merchants National Bank, who is acting as trustee of the fund says cash contributions totaling $4,714.75 have already been received, along with a number of shares of reputable stock which will be used as investments for the fund.

The money collected in the fund was through the joint effort of members of the Fraternal Order of Police Associate Lodge of Virginia Beach and officers and men of the city's police department. The organized drive within the police department, for which Capt. R.C. Davis acted as coordinator, has been completed with $3,675.45 being collected from members of the department and interested persons who made contributions through the department. Gus Riganto, who has played a major role in the F.O.P.A. fund raising drive, says the F.O.P.A. will continue their portion of the drive until Feb. 15.

Waterfield says the trust fund, which has been named "The McClung-Monette Childrens' Fund", has been established for the future protection of the deceased police officers' children through their education and welfare. Waterfield indicates certain technicalities, including operational mechanics, are still in the planning stage.

Anyone who may still wish to contribute to the trust fund may do so by mailing their contributions to "The McClung-Monette Childrens' Fund, P.O. Box 537, attn: Floyd Waterfield, Virginia Beach, Va., 23451". All monetary contributions to the fund should be made in the form of a check, with all checks being made payable to the fund.

City Keeps Eye on Oil

"Everything is under control down there, and there will not be any hazard to the public". These were the words which Fred Quist, assistant chief of Virginia Beach's Bureau of Fire Protection, used to describe

Center Schedule Released

Samuel W. Scott Jr., director of the Virginia Beach Civic Center has released the February schedule for the Center. Roller Skating continues during the month of February from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. on Feb. 1, 2 and 9. It is also tentatively scheduled for Feb. 16.

Other scheduled events and their dates are: Tidewater Youth for Christ Singing Event with The Sparrows, Feb. 7, 11 p.m. (admission $1.75 per person); Boy Scouts of America, Tidewater Council, Scout-A-Rama, Feb. 9 all day; Virginia Beach Art Association annual Members' Art Show, Feb. 13, 14 and 15, all day; Daytona "500" Closed Circuit Television, Feb. 23, 12:30 p.m. (doors open at 10:30 p.m., admission $8 per person); and the Defense Supply Agency Public Auction, Feb. 27, 9 a.m.-3 p.m. Rain Date for the Daytona "500" is Feb. 24.

Army Nurse Week Set

The week of Feb. 2-8 has been proclaimed as Army Nurse Corps Week by Mayor Frank A. Dusch.

Mayor Dusch calls upon Virginia Beach residents to join in this observance, which is in honor of the 68th anniversary of the Army Nurse Corps. In his proclamation Mayor Dusch states that "the Army Nurse Corps is a vital organization of the United States Army, an essential component in the defense of the United States of America...has served its country in the highest traditions of professional excellence in time of peace and in time of national emergency..."

discovery of oil reportedly leading into drainage ditches along North Landing Road.

Earlier published reports told of oil draining into a lagoon which is owned by Harry A. Sawyer of Route 2 resulting in the killing of fish. Quist said members of the State Water Control Board reported their on the spot investigation of the situation failed to result in finding any dead fish in the North Landing River, and that State officials are satisfied with the manner in which the city is handling the situation.

The oil leakage was probably the result of a "pin hole" break in an underground pipeline owned by the Standard Transmission Company and used to send jet fuel from the company's inland Waterway station to the Oceana Naval Air Station. Quist said he has talked with the company's owner Col. Dan Forth who is cooperating fully with the city in doing what he can to correct the situation. Col. Forth reportedly is willing to shut down the pumping station if necessary to prevent any real damage or any type of hazard.

Quist said the city has been working on the problem for the past two weeks. "The city has cleaned out the ditches", Quist said, "and if anything else arises, we will shut the plant down if necessary".

Teachers

In Virginia Beach where the subject of money often makes City officials cringe in the face of another major tax hike, no one is ready to comment. The budget committee of the school board reportedly met in closed session this week to discuss the proposals and during the first two weeks of February the school board is scheduled to hold another closed meeting to discuss the recommendations.

After that it is up to School Supt. E. E. Brickell, school board chairman J. W. Buffington and City Manager Roger Scott to work out a suitable school budget as part of the next city operating budget. Schools generally account for slightly better than half the city budget, and this year may take an even greater share if many of the proposals are accepted. It has been discussed that the school budget may reach as high as $24.5 million next year, a major hike over last year's $18.2 million.

Both Buffington and Brickell have refused comment on the overall budgetary needs and proposals but both have said privately that they feel some of the requests are too high.

With a sharp rise in the school operating budget plus the prospect of another bond issue for school construction looming in 1969, another tax increase, as high as 40 per cent, seems to move nearer. Scott, however, will not comment at this time on the probability of such an increase.

DeMolay Plans Meet On Feb. 9

All teenage boys and their parents are invited to attend a meeting on the 'Order of DeMolay' to be held on Feb. 9 from 3 P.M. till 5 P.M. at the Lynnhaven Masonic Temple 2959 N. Lynnhaven Rd., behind the Pine Tree Inn.

The meeting will be conducted by 'Dad' Lou Mirman, district executive officer for Eastern District of Virginia. A movie, 'Summer of Decision' will be shown and George Norton, PHC, will present the flower talk.

Building better citizens out of teenage boys is the goal of the Order of DeMolay, an international organization founded March 18, 1919 in Kansas City, Mo., by Frank S. Land and nine teenage youths. Today there are over 3 million members with chapters located in 11 foreign countries.

DeMolay membership is open to any boy of good character who is between 14 and 21. Also DeMolay chapters are sponsored only by Masonic bodies or individual Masons it is not necessary that a boy be a relative of a Mason to belong to DeMolay.

DeMolay does not attempt to take the place of the home or the Church but rather to supplement them. The organization's purpose is to offer the teenage boy of today: (1) a wholesome occupation for his spare time; (2) worthwhile associates; (3) the best of environment; and (4) an interesting and complete program of all-around youth development.

Delegate

Richard G. Brydges as a candidate for lieutenant governor was not present at Brydges' request.

John A. Field III, the Virginia Beach Republican chairman, had stated earlier that he felt the non-unit rule would be adopted. Harold W. Adams of Fairfax spoke briefly at the meeting. Adams is seeking nominations as the Republican candidate for attorney general at the state convention. Adams gave public support to the Republican ticket regardless of whether or not he gets the nomination.

Opposition Expected

One item expected to bring opposition at the Planning Commission hearing on Feb. 11 is an application of Virginia Beach Aviation Sales, Ltd. for a change of zoning and a use permit for an airport and landing field and general aviation facilities on property located on the south side of Holland Road, east of Larkspur in the Larkspur area.

The change of zoning asked is from Residence Suburban District 4 to Multiple Family Residence District 2 and from Limited Commercial District 2 to General Commercial District 3. The aviation facilities will include aircraft sales and service with a fuel supply and flight school.

There are 39 items listed for the hearing, which will be at 2 p.m. at the Civic Center. Thirteen of the items were scheduled for the Jan. 14 hearing which was cancelled.

Among those items which were rescheduled is an application of Green Run Corporation for a use permit to construct 247 townhouses on the west side of Holland Road and the south side of South Lynnhaven Road Extended. This is part of the planned unit project being developed by Green Run Corporation.

Out of the 26 additional items which are on the Feb. 11 agenda, there are two other change of zoning and use permits which may be opposed by residents in the areas involved. The applications are being made by F. Wayne McLeskey Jr.

The first application is for a change of zoning from Residence Suburban District 3 to Multiple Family Residence District 2 and a use permit to construct six townhouses on property located on the Northwest corner of Virginia Beach Blvd. and Chesapeake Trail in the Chesapeake Colony area.

McLeskey's other application, which is also in the Chesapeake Colony area, is for a change of zoning from Residence Suburban District 3 to Multiple Family Residence District 2 and a use permit to construct 46 townhouses on the Northeast corner of Virginia Beach Blvd. and Chesapeake Trail.

In addition to these 52 townhouses, applications will be heard for 432 other apartments and townhouses.

Hearing

agreed, and said her group, while it is in favor of annual sessions instead of the biennial sessions recommended, has the rest of the changes under advisement.

City Attorney Harry Marshall reported to the legislators and earlier to City Council that he had attended a meeting of the Virginia Municipal League in Richmond last week to discuss the changes and that a number of recommendations would be forthcoming from the league later. Caton said he would meet with Marshall to discuss them. Marshall said he thought a number of areas needed clarification.

Middleton said he might favor annual sessions for just the budgetary considerations on alternate years. Caton suggested that the City Council give serious consideration to the recommended proposals involving regional government, which would give the state more authority over such operations as the school board.

A more detailed public hearing is expected just prior to the special session.

Associated Properties, Inc. will apply for a change of zoning from Residence Suburban District 3 to Multiple Family Residence District 2 and a use permit to construct 176 apartment units on property east of Birdneck Road and north of Old Virginia Beach Road. This property is in the Woodland area.

Murray Waitzer and Richard M. Waitzer will apply for a change of zoning from Residence Suburban District 2 to Multiple Family Residence District 2 and a use permit for 256 apartments and townhouses on property west of First Colonial Road, north of Will-O-Wisp Drive. This proposed construction is near General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

An application will be made by James Proferes for a use permit to construct 10 additional model units, totalling 26 units on property located on the east side of Atlantic Avenue, north of 11th Street. Quality Motel is the existing structure at this location.

Banks Enterprises Incorporated will apply for a change of zoning from Multiple Family Residence District 1 to Limited Commercial District 1 on property located on the east side of Baker Road, north of Newtown Road. This change of zoning is in the Lake Edward area.

both cities is in the process of being drawn.

In other action Monday Council adopted a resolution favoring the immediate building of the twin span of the Hampton Roads tunnel instead of a new tunnel from Bowers Hill to Newport News. The resolution was based on opinion that "deferment would seriously impair the economic well-being of this city and the convenience of persons traveling to and from this city."

Another resolution authorized the supt. of public welfare, Mrs. Frances Elrod, to enter in contracts for the city's participation in the federal food stamp program.

Council also approved transfers of accounts amounting to $22,588 within the police budget for purchase of additional equipment needed immediately, including a new large police boat to replace the one that struck a piling and sank last summer. Chief W. W. Davis said the boat is necessary now with the new increased traffic on the waterways and the opening of Rudee Inlet. Additional transfers were also allowed for the completion of the Kempsville Library.

And, after it was forgotten at the last meeting City Manager Roger Scott's salary was raised from $20,000 to $22,500, retroactive to Jan. 1.

There was no objection at a public hearing Monday, and Council brought new areas under mosquito control. The inclusion of areas of Princess Anne borough generally bounded by Oceana Blvd., S. Birdneck Road, Dam Neck and Prosperity Road to include several subdivisions, was brought under the jurisdiction of a new mosquito control district.

The tax rate will rise slightly in the approximately 200 ft. area from all roads covered. Two new commissioners will be appointed shortly, but no capital outlay is necessary at present, according to Council. The director of the project, Roland Dorer, is looking into the mechanics of setting up the new district and the need for new equipment.

Governor Addresses Builders

Virginia Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr., was presented a plaque of appreciation from the Tidewater Association of Homebuilders Tuesday Night at a dinner meeting at Lake Wright Motor Hotel.

About 350 persons attended the meeting and heard Godwin tell of his optimistic view of the homebuilding industry in Tidewater.

He warned the homebuilders however, that they must be ready to do their share when called upon by municipal officials as far as costs are concerned.

In Virginia Beach city officials and homebuilders have lately begun looking horns over new developments and the schools needed for them. A cooperative committee is in the process of being set up along the lines mentioned by the Governor.

Godwin said, "For the truth is, we have not caught up with Virginia's growth and change in terms of public services. We have made great strides, but so has every other state. We will have to keep moving just to keep up."

But he predicted another "golden age" for Virginia if the demands are met and predicted Virginia could lead the resurgence of the South.

Godwin added that it has been more than 30 years since the National Guard has had to be called out in Virginia in a civil disturbance while every other state on the eastern seaboard has been forced to call out the Guard in the last 12 months. He added that this spoke well of representatives of all races in Virginia.

A number of state elected officials were present at the meeting and a few candidates and near-candidates for state offices this year.

In his opening remarks Godwin said he noticed Del. Bernard Levin in the audience who is a candidate for Attorney General, but, without mentioning his name, took a poke at State Sen. Henry Howell, candidate for Governor. He said one of the candidates just writes

Fire Chief Heads Week

Chief B. "Bubba" Bayne, chief of the Virginia Beach Borough Fire Department, has been named general chairman for the observance of "Brotherhood Week" in the City of Virginia Beach, Feb. 16-23, it has been announced by the Virginia Beach committee for the observance. Bayne has been an active participant in the American Red Cross blood donor program and was awarded a certificate for donating 100 pints of blood to this worthy program. He is president of the Tidewater Chapter, Muscular Dystrophy Association and was president of the Virginia Beach Rescue Squad in 1955 and 1956. He was the second recipient of the City's First Citizen Award in 1951.

Chief Bayne is a native of Alabama and joined the local fire department in 1937. He was appointed assistant chief in 1941 and was elevated to the position of chief in 1947. He is active in many organizations related to fire control and fire prevention.

The Virginia Beach Jaycees also participate in the week long observance sponsoring a Brotherhood breakfast during the week. Members of the local committee are Dr. Howard D. Kahn, Harold B. Kellam, Albin R. Mailhes and C. B. Owens.

letters to him but was not present.

"I'll probably get a letter tomorrow after that," laughed the Governor.

Virginia Beach Mayor Frank Dusch and City Councilmen G.

Dewey Simmons, George Ferreri, Murray Malbon, Lawrence Marshall and Curtis Payce were also present at the meeting, as was City Manager Roger M. Scott, who is next month's TAHB meeting speaker.

Clayton Shoemaker, TAHB program chairman, presents Gov. Godwin with a plaque of appreciation.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh
Men of the Creeds Volunteer Fire & Rescue Dept. traveled to Williamsburg last Sunday to compete in a rescue squad proficiency contest sponsored by the Virginia Association of Rescue Squads. The unit was represented by Floyd Waterfield, Elwood Styron, George Lindsey, Oscar Dozier and Rodney Cason, who competed in a category established for squads who are not members of the Association. Even though it was the first time the Creeds Squad took place in the competition, they brought the First Place Trophy back to Virginia Beach.

CPO Charles F. O'Malley, attached to the Virginia Beach Shore Patrol Detachment, is receiving high words of praise from everyone in the performance of his duties at Princess Anne Courthouse. O'Malley is the Navy's Shore Patrol representative to assist Navy men making appearances in the city's Municipal Court, and serves as liaison officer between civilian legal authorities and Navy officials.

The Virginia Beach Rescue Squad has just added four new men to their official membership. G. A. Anderson, G. A. Causer, I. W. Whitehurst and Theodore Hayunga qualified for the Squad by successfully completing required training in Red Cross standard and advanced first aid courses.

Last Sunday's opening of the new Virginia Beach S.P.C.A. shelter was highlighted by a demonstration of the capabilities of the police departments' K-9 Corps. Officers George E. Ball, David R. Embury and Wade H. Smith, Jr. put their dogs through a series of commands to illustrate their usefulness. We understand Sgt. Kenneth J. LaGrotta has been designated as training officer of the Corps under its recent expansion.

The wives of a number of naval officers stationed at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base are pursuing a first aid training course being conducted at the Princess Anne Plaza Volunteer Fire & Rescue Dept. Bob Bottoms and Ken Craft, members of the rescue squad, are acting as course instructors. The ladies will complete training in the standard first aid course next Tuesday, and will begin the advanced training course the following week.

Beautification Commission Helps Crape Myrtle Trail

The Crape Myrtle Trail will reach 98 trees closer to Princess Anne Courthouse, thanks to a gift from the Virginia Beach Beautification Commission.

The Commission, in their meeting last Thursday, voted to contribute $45 to buy 15 crape myrtle in honor of Sims Read, former officer of the Commission and long-time advocate of beautifying city streets. Read has moved to Florida.

In addition the Commission appropriated another $250 toward the Trail. The Crape Myrtle Trail is a project of the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs Inc. and will eventually extend to Princess Anne Courthouse by way of Route 615, Oceana Blvd. The crape myrtle is the official flower of the city.

Burk Withers, Arbor Day chairman, reported that a crape myrtle tree has been planted at each of the city's 42 public schools, although Arbor Day is not until Feb. 22. This is done annually.

Clinton Shanks is the new secretary of the organization, and Conrad Little was named to the board of directors.

A committee, composed of Col. Joseph W. Viner, Col. F. G. Epling and Richard Humphries, was appointed to investigate the feasibility of planting camellia seeds at various city parks and at the planned golf course at Camp Pendleton.

In a further beautification effort, the Commission appropriated $200 to add to the cash prize money given to winners of the HANDS community improvement contest sponsored annually by the Council of Garden Clubs. This will be for the 1970 contest. Winners must reinvest their prize money in beautification projects. The Sears Roebuck Foundation contributes $500 annually. However, in other cities local banks and businesses also contribute to the prize money.

E. S. Ruffin, Jr., Commission president, reported that approximately $3750 had been spent by the Commission on planting in the city in the last four years.

The annual meeting will be held at The Cavalier in May.

Forum Features Dr. Harmon Bro

The Sunday Forum of the Association for Research and Enlightenment will feature Dr. Harmon H. Bro at its Feb. 2 meeting.

Bro will speak on "Edgar Cayce's Own Dreams: A Profile of the Man and His Work." The forum starts at 4 p.m. and will be held at ARE Headquarters on 67th and Atlantic.

Big Dope Haul Found in Raid

The arrest of two men and a woman on charges of illegal possession of narcotics has resulted in the confiscation of the biggest haul of marijuana ever found in the city of Virginia Beach.

According to police, an investigation which began earlier this month resulted in a raid early Tuesday morning on the apartment of Callie Louise Alderman, 22, in the 400 block 23 1/2 Street in Virginia Beach, where a quantity of "nickel bags", which dope users purchase for $5 to $10 apiece, were discovered in the apartment. Two men, whom police identified as Dennis Edward Kropetz, 20, of Mukwonago, Wis., and John Robert Edlich, Jr., 20, of Brooklyn, N. Y., in the apartment at the time of the raid were also charged along with the woman with illegal possession of narcotics.

Further investigation lead police to another section of the resort city where a two pound "brick" of high grade, pure, uncut marijuana was discovered with several pipes, used for smoking marijuana and a quantity of paper bags. Authorities said the grade of the marijuana was in the category described as Black Dungeon.

While investigation of the case is continuing and police said that further arrests are pending, indications are the "mother load" of marijuana was brought into Virginia Beach from New York City. Although the marijuana initially had a value of $250, investigators said that should it be sold in the marijuana market it would represent sales valued at some $4,000.

The two men arrested at the Alderman woman's apartment, were also described by police as deserters from the Navy and reportedly had been missing from their duty stations for about two months.

An appearance is scheduled next Friday in Virginia Beach Municipal Court for the three suspects arrested during the raid.

Planning Problems

Statewide planning districts, composed of supposedly like political subdivisions that happen to adjoin each other, are looked to as a Utopia in the solving of regional problems. On paper the purposes look outstanding, but in practice we have doubts and can only hope such a Utopian concept can succeed.

Already disputes are in the making. The officialdom of Virginia Beach is unhappy with the boundaries of the district which includes this city, mostly because of the combination of rural counties and cities with the metropolitan south Tidewater area.

Obviously the problems of the two are not the same and, while they lie physically adjacent to each other they actually have little in common. Perhaps this can be changed before final delimitation, if the public hearing scheduled in April really listens.

This is merely the first step in a long process. The planning districts hopefully will become service districts and eventually a regional level of government, if the original intent is carried out. We are pleased that the state has taken the problems of the cities and counties into consideration at last, but already there is criticism of too much state control.

In addition the localities have the option of joining the program at all. This could make for a crazy pattern of joiners and non-joiners.

Certainly politics and politicians will get into the picture also. Too often such political maneuverings have caused duplication of effort and the impeding of progress. It could happen in this matter if it is not caught now and controlled.

Regional efforts are necessary to progress. While other cities in south Tidewater are no longer growing, Virginia Beach is. There must be real cooperation if either Virginia Beach or other cities are to succeed in the best manner in the future.

Growing Pains

It's that time of year again when the city budget is being prepared. The largest single item in it, more than half, is the school operating budget. And indications are it's going to be higher this year than ever before.

Some of the salary and fringe benefit proposals of the local education association may be slightly out of line, but generally speaking the requests are in accord with requests of other political subdivisions. It is estimated that all the requests will amount to about a $24.5 million budget. No doubt that will be pared down somewhat, but it will still be higher than the $18.2 million school budget of last year.

The starting salary recommended is $6,500, or $500 higher than last year. That may seem like quite a jump, but it is the same as is being recommended all over Tidewater. And Virginia Beach must compete.

The teaching profession was remarkably underpaid for too many years. It is about time that professionals who must train many long years then continue with advanced training are paid for it.

Of course the problem lies in where to get the money. The only way is taxes. None of us want to see another major tax increase this year after the 66 per cent hike last year. Hopefully the money can be found to make the raises possible without hurting us all too badly. That is up to the City Manager.

Just in case there is some doubt as to the improvement in teacher salaries, it must be reported that in 1954-55 the starting salary was $2,500, $4,000 less than has been recommended for 1969-70. That's quite a jump in 15 years, and best the teachers not forget it either.

Going to the Well

Virginia Beach is moving ahead with plans to take over the water lines owned by Norfolk. That orderly takeover will come about by July 1 through purchase if all goes well.

City Manager Roger Scott has wisely recommended the hiring of consultants to look into all facets of the water service and, to help set water rates. Now the negotiations can get down to some serious stages, and hopefully the city will be in the water business without a hitch come July 1.

This after all is the best way. No matter where the water comes from the city should own its own lines and should gain full economic advantage from the sale of the water.

But water needs for this city are far from met. And estimates are that nationwide those needs will increase five-fold in the next 50 years. The largest projected increases will be for domestic and municipal use, industrial use and cooling of powerplants.

New methods must be found of inexpensively desalinating sea water and conservation must be practiced. Unless this is done the cost of water supply will increase greatly in the next few years.

Now that the city is apparently going to be in the water business on its own, it must continue to look ahead to solve the future needs instead of facing a water shortage later.

Divorce Complaint

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: The divorce laws in Virginia are quite strict, many times necessitating a resident to seek a divorce in another state, or, in the very least one or both parties are forced to lie in order to obtain a divorce.

Whether good or bad divorce is a definite part of our society and should be handled in the best manner possible. It is my feeling that we are not doing this.

Most people do not think about divorce at all until they are involved in a suit. This is probably why there is not enough political pressure put in the right places to change the laws.

Can anything be done, is there any movement underway to correct the situation? Name Withheld

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Just because you bought a brand new station wagon, I will not drive that bomb to work this morning," she said with conviction. "You'll have to drive it," he said. "I have to take the new car in to get a couple of things fixed. And besides I told you last week, don't call it a bomb."

"All right, I won't call it a bomb," she said. "I'll call it your '61 DO'."

"Why, pray tell, would you call it that?" he wanted to know, but almost afraid to ask.

"That's what it says on the back of your car. 'DO,'" she said.

"That's only because the last three letters of the nameplate have been knocked off, dummy," he said.

"Funny," she said. "I thought it might have been an invitation to hit it and put it out of its misery."

What Did

I 'DO' to ## Deserve

This?

"No, that's not at all funny," he said. "And you're still going to drive it to work today."

"Well, all right," she said. "Just put some pieces of wood in the back seat so I can put them under the front and back tires when I get out."

"The emergency brake is fixed now," he said. "Besides you only needed a block of wood under one wheel, either the front or back."

"I was just never sure which way it would roll," she said. "You know I have a real problem," he said. "I have to drive to Williamsburg tomorrow. The manual says I shouldn't drive the new car at any sustained speed until I get more miles on it."

She smiled. "So take your other car," she said. "It's not only broken in, but also broken up."

"You're a barrel of laughs this morning, aren't you?" he said. "What do you do for an encore?"

"I go out and jump in the 'DO' and it falls apart when I slam the door," she said.

He turned slightly red in the face. "That's it, I'm taking the station wagon and I'm going to work," he left.

A few minutes later he was back. "I thought you gathered up your pride and left," she said.

"A pride is a bunch of lions living together," he pointed out. "I did leave, but I can't get the key to turn in the ignition of the new car. The lock's broken."

She stifled a laugh. "Is that right?" she asked quietly.

"Yes, that's right," he said. "Now hurry up and get ready to leave so I can take you to work and visit my friendly new car dealer to see about towing that expensive monster in."

"How terrible!" she said. "I don't get to do the 'DO' bit this morning after all."

"Your sense of humor leaves something to be desired," he pointed out.

"All right, I'm ready. Do take me to work in the 'DO'; do not pass 'GO'; and do not collect $200," she said as she swept out the door.

"It's not a 'DO', damn it," he yelled. "It's a bomb."

In 1892, Carnegie Steel Works at Homestead, Penn., had a great strike; the men demanding a revised wage scale and recognition of their union. With the aid of 8,000 state troops and at the expense of ten deaths and 60 injured, the strike was won for the company. At the same time, President Harrison was ordering Federal troops to suppress a miners strike in Ohio. There were numerous strikes in 1894 involving about three quarters of a million workmen. Little by little, the common man was successfully claiming for himself the position designated for him in the Declaration of Independence. The balance between the few and the many was working. Both seemed to have enough power to protect one from the other. The pent-up forces of democracy were seeking an outlet in organized political action. This largely took the form of labor organizations under such men as Eugene Debs.

In 1900 our population was 76,000,000 people. Of this number less than 5,000,000 were classed as farmers; 2,550,000 were wage-earning farm hands; 2,550,000 were wage earners in domestic and personal service; 3,000,000 worked in trade and transportation; and 19,000,000 worked in manufacturing and mechanical pursuits. Over 6,000,000 persons over ten years of age were wholly illiterate.

The fact was, though we did not recognize it then, and do not want to today, that the forces let loose by the Industrial Revolution and the age of applied science were causing new patterns to be made in the nations, patterns in which cooperation and socialization on a hitherto undreamed-of scale would replace to a great extent the rugged individualism of the American frontier. The first step in this direction was the Corporation tax of 1908; followed shortly thereafter by the personal income tax enacted March 1, 1913.

In the summer of 1914, a pistol shot rang out at Sarajevo and an Austrian, Archduke was murdered. Austria declared war on Serbia. Other nations quickly followed - Germany, Russia, France, Belgium and Great Britain. The lights of the world went out. On April 2, 1917, before a special session of Congress, President Wilson asked Congress to declare war on Germany.

America revisited the old world to make the world safe for democracy. In the process we left 126,000 of our men buried beneath white crosses on European soil. The survivors came back restless and to a imperfect peace. A certain recklessness swept the land. The campaigns of self government bonds during the war had resulted in 65,000,000 persons becoming owners of American securities.

Speculation became rampant as always in war and post-war periods. Multitudes became familiar with the machinery of stock markets and quotations for the first time and freely participated in the exciting market from 1922 to 1929. The size of personal fortunes took another stride forward and the country could now name billionaires instead of multi-millionaires.

Before the decade was over, Henry Ford refused a $1,000,000 check for his interest in Ford Motor Company. Henry Ford stated the credo of the times when he said "we now know that anything which is economically right is also morally right. There can be no conflict between good economics and good morals."

The wild speculation of the stock market rose to more and more fantastic heights. In 1929 the whole economic structure, like the walls of Jericho, came tumbling down. The great depression had arrived, as had the era of social legislation.

Special Report

What Will Howell Do?

The gubernatorial race of 1969 is beginning to pick up a little speed again after almost a month of too much quiet.

The major announcement expected this weekend will be from Norfolk State Sen. Henry Howell, the first announced candidate in the July Democratic primary. Howell will meet with supporters in Charlottesville Saturday to make a decision whether to run in the primary or to run only as an independent in the November General Election.

If Howell does indeed bolt the party it will come as a shock to many of his supporters because Howell has for so long been extremely vocal about those who bolt the party and run or act as independents. He has quite often deplored this practice and has always called himself a "straight ticket" Democrat. Privately there are a number of supporters of William Battle and Lt. Gov. Fred Pollard who hope Howell does bolt, giving them an excellent campaign issue.

Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr. has called for party unity to keep a Republican from being elected. Howell has read into this that he is being asked to drop out. If Howell stays in the three way race, he could force a runoff primary if no one gets a clear majority, but it's unlikely he would be the eventual winner in a two way race.

Should he run as an independent in the fall it is believed by many observers a GOP contender could win. And now that Linwood Holton still looks like the GOP standard bearer and that the judgeship talk of a week ago was merely a smokescreen to get his name advanced a bit further within and without the Republican party, more credence is given to the beliefs of those observers.

Godwin is the first Virginia Governor in recent history to be elected without a clear majority, and there are fears that all the factions now in the primary race could add impetus to GOP hopes.

Meanwhile Pollard is campaigning hard on the continuation of the broadened education and mental health programs of the Godwin administration. He says he wants to keep the "good things happening," and it's hard to fight success.

Battle this week announced some more key appointments in his campaign retinue, but has not completely hit the campaign trail again himself, or at least not so he has received a great deal of publicity for it.

At least all three Democrats have agreed in substance on one thing. They have decided, if all three file in the primary, whoever the winner is, all the others will support him actively in the November election. That must be some kind of political shenanigans too, since Howell still isn't sure of making the primary at all.

Now that the House of Delegates races in Virginia Beach are beginning to shape up, support for gubernatorial candidates should soon be evident here also. Reportedly both B. R. Middleton and Rhae Adams are supporting Battle, but there are still expected to be other candidates. Just whom they will support is not known.

And then there is still the imponderable, T. Marshall Hahn, president of VPI, who says he has another month before he'll let it be known whether he intends to enter the gubernatorial sweepstakes for the primary. If he does, look for more reshuffling and a political free-for-all.

He Says He Has a Job to Do...

by Joseph Lowenthal
Lt. Harold Palmer, Jr., of Virginia Beach, will shortly be on his way to Vietnam again. He is a professional soldier, and while he does not relish his present assignment he says he has his job to do.

Palmer first came to the attention of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN nearly three years ago. His father brought a letter to this newspaper in February 1966 that he had received from his son, who was then a sergeant

Commission Discusses Big Things

Plans for a 54-acre park and for a recreation center, including swimming pool, were discussed at Tuesday's Parks and Recreation Commission meeting.

The park, to be labeled Lynnhaven Regional Park, is in the municipal sanitation area across from the General Hospital of Virginia Beach and stretches from 1,500 feet back from First Colonial Road through to Great Neck Road. The land will be turned over to the city when the Hampton Roads Sanitation District takes over sewage disposal in the city this spring.

Included in the preliminary plans for the park are a football field, two baseball diamonds, 12 tennis courts, a pavilion, maintenance area, a nature trail and a future lake. Plans will be given to City Manager Roger Scott for approval.

C. B. Arnette, representing a group of civic organizations in the Princess Anne Plaza, Birchwood, Thalia and Kings Grant areas, asked the city's help in constructing a community recreational center somewhere in the general Plaza area.

Commission Chairman Maury Risan and Parks and Recreation Director Harold Whitehurst said that they favored such a center but emphasized that it would have to be operated as a public facility before the parks and recreation department could support it. Arnette said it would be.

Arnette added that he has an appointment to talk with George Rice of the Tidewater Health and Welfare Planning Council. He will report on this meeting next month. The proposed center would include a swimming pool.

"We have a definite need of a community center," Whitehurst said. "We own land and we need to put it to the best usage." He added that a five-year recreation master plan will be introduced at the next recreation commission meeting.

The next meeting will be March 4. Meeting days have been changed from the last to the first Tuesday in each month. There will be no meeting in February.

In reporting on progress of Kemps Landing Park it was noted that the city dredge will be used in the Lynnhaven Basin for some time to come. The Commission voted to recommend to Roger Scott that if the city dredge is not available that other equipment be contracted if that is economically feasible. A new bridge across the river at Kempsville is expected to be completed within two years, and the Commission wants the park finished at the same time.

Whitehurst reported that he had talked with YWCA officials about co-ordinating their programs so they would not overlap. Although a full surfing report is expected next month, Whitehurst commented that he felt "surfing in the present area is adequate."

Green Run Park is expected to open about the first of July. Additional parking will be added in Red Wing Park.

After checking the cost of constructing hand ball courts, the Commission said it could not recommend them at this time. Estimated cost of two courts was $60,000.

In Special Forces serving in remote and dangerous areas of Vietnam as an advisor.

The letter was rather pathetic. It told of Palmer's seeing a buddy killed by a trick used by the Viet Cong. They wrote "pidgen" English pamphlets and left them along trails or dropped them from planes. The South Vietnamese could not read the English. When they passed them to an American advisor a nearby sniper would shoot to kill his selective target.

Less than two months later Palmer and his men were trapped in the delta area in a cross-fire and he called for air strikes on his own position. Miraculously he and most of his men were saved by this action. For his bravery and heroism he was awarded the Army's second highest medal, the Distinguished Service Cross, and a short time later was commissioned a 2nd lieutenant in a Regular Army direct commission.

When he came home he told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN of the horror and atrocities in Vietnam. The picture he painted was not a pleasant one. He said then only military might could end the war completely. This young married man who had three children at the time. He began a two-year tour at Ft. Bragg, N.C., first as a special services instructor, then as aide to several generals. "It all happened so fast," he said, "I couldn't realize it was really happening. First the DSC, then the commission then aide to the generals..."

Thus began a whirlwind of activity for Palmer, who is now a 1st lieutenant, and will soon be promoted to Captain. Besides working about 60 hours a week for the generals and setting up and attending social functions, he was responsible for all the activities of the general officers he served. In addition his family also increased with the birth of a son.

This assignment ended, he chose to put his green beret back on and attended the Unconventional Warfare school at Fort Bragg for three months to learn the new methods being used in Vietnam.

Now he is ready to leave again for Vietnam for another year of danger in the remote areas of the country. He will be doing much the same work he did before as a Sergeant.

He said the school taught him that the VC is more sophisticated in fighting methods now. He added that in the years to come they will be even more efficient in guerilla tactics.

"Their motivation is stronger now," he said, "and they have better Chinese weapons." He said the method used is to mobilize their minds. Palmer feels that the North Vietnamese, with this motivation, are better fighters than the South Vietnamese. He said this is generally accepted to be true now, while it was merely his opinion three years ago.

The only honorable end Palmer can see is a military victory, but he sees these "wars of liberation" eating away at freedom all over the world no matter how this one ends. He feels that China will be ready for an all out war in 20 years and that Chinese might must be crippled now.

"The way we're doing it now, we can't win in South Vietnam," said Palmer. "We can only get to the 50-yard line. We must hit hard to win."

Palmer says he has no doubts about the justification of the United States being in Vietnam, and he deplores the protesters all over the world who are using the war for propagandistic purposes. He also feels the Paris talks will go on as long as the enemy wishes.

In another frightening note, Palmer says wars of liberation may have to be fought in Africa, South American or even Cuba in the next 20 years, no matter what happens now.

It is still not a bright picture that Lt. Palmer paints. It may even sound like an exercise in futility. But the future of our country will always be secure as long as people like Harold Palmer take their chosen job seriously.

Lt. Palmer is on his way back to the unknown...to Vietnam and the dangers it holds. Yet he goes philosophically. "I don't want to go," he said, "But it's my job and I'll do it to the best of my ability."

We wish him well.

Mrs. Harris Dies in Calif.

Mrs. Mabel J. Harris, 77, a resident of Princess Anne County and Virginia Beach for more than 50 years, died Tuesday night in Pomona General Hospital, Pomona, Calif., after a brief illness.

The Binghamton, N. Y. native was the widow of George H. Harris. She is survived by three sons, Jack H. Harris of Virginia Beach; Burnell H. Harris of Waverly, Va.; and Ormond B. Harris of Spring Grove, Va.; one daughter, Mrs. H. A. Cole of Claremont, Calif.; and a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were pending. Burial will be in Waverly, Va.

SPCA officers expressed surprise Sunday at the crowd which arrived for the building's official dedication and opening. Several hundred persons visited and brought food and newspapers for the animals. Numerous animal adoptions were made.

Dividends Given For Insurance

The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the U. S. will distribute approximately $3.8 million in individual life and health insurance and annuity dividends to residents of the state of Virginia in 1969, it was announced today by John Pasco, agency manager.

Real Estate Courses Set

The Distributive Education Service of the city schools will offer two real estate courses beginning in February.

The first course, one in preparatory real estate training begins Feb. 3. This course is designed to introduce the theories and principles of real estate as it is practiced in Virginia and to prepare individuals for the Virginia Real Estate License Examination.

The other course, Real Estate Appraisal, will begin Feb. 4 at Princess Anne High School. This is a ten hour class which will be held from 7 to 9:30 p. m. in Room 509 on Tuesdays and Thursdays through Feb. 13.

Instructor for the course is James W. Stone III, a Norfolk resident. Stone has held a Real Estate license since 1955 and holds membership in the Norfolk Board of Realtors and is a member of the Society of Real Estate Appraisers.

Further information about the courses may be obtained by calling Clifford Lewis at 499-1261. After 5 p.m. he may be reached at 497-1401.

The Results Are Rewarding to Her

By Yatta Jones

An insignificant TV Advertisement and the memory of a project undertaken by an entire high school in South Dakota is all it took to make Mrs. Allen D. Cole "adopt" a child through the Foster Parents Plan, Inc.

She now has her second child through the agency and is just as enthusiastic as ever about the plan.

Over two years ago, when she was still single, Mrs. Cole was watching television one evening. She saw a small advertisement for Foster Parents Plan, Inc. and remembered how the high school she had attended "adopted" a child. The school would raise enough money each fall to participate in the program for a year.

The amount of money required to support a child for a year seemed like a very small sum to Mrs. Cole, so she decided to "adopt" a child on her own.

She wrote Foster Parents and asked to "adopt" a girl. The Foster Parent's responsibility is financial, not legal. Mrs. Cole left it up to the agency to pick the age and country, although a Foster Parent can specify these things. Before long Mrs. Cole was a Foster Parent to an eight-year-old girl from Ecuador.

Ngan Yuk

For two and a half years they corresponded once a month. The first few letters were written by the little girl's mother, but after the third or fourth letter the girl wrote all of the letters herself. The letters told of the holidays celebrated in Ecuador and day-to-day family life.

There were illnesses in the family—one of the children had a cleft palate—but on the whole the family was fortunate because they were able to receive medical aid through Foster Parents Plan. The agency stresses help to the entire family as well as to the child. In most countries where Plan maintains offices there is a Foster Parents medical-clinic with doctors, nurses and drugs. The doctors treat the child's immediate family as part of the service.

Mrs. Cole was married a short while after she had been subscribing to the Foster Parents program. Her husband, who is in the Navy, felt that the enterprise was an important one so they continued to help their "adopted" child. Finally their little girl was discontinued from the program.

This step is a happy one, for it means that Foster Parents has been successful. The family in Ecuador had raised their standard of living to such an extent that they were no longer eligible for aid. Foster Parents Plan's purpose is to help the child and family to become self-supporting through improved health, nutrition and educational opportunities.

The Coles were assigned a new child in October 1968. This time they requested a girl from Hong Kong. Mr. Cole had been to Hong Kong and felt that someday he might possibly get back and meet the child.

The girl they were given, Ngan Yuk, is 13 years old. There are five other girls and one boy in Ngan Yuk's family. Her father, a construction coo-lie, never had more than a few months of school. Building trades have gone into recession in Hong Kong, and he can only work ten days a month with total earnings for a month of $26.32. Ngan Yuk's mother tries to help support the family by doing piecework at home, but this only brings in about $5.30 a month.

The entire family live in a resettlement cubicle that costs $5.53 a month for rent. It measures 14' by 12' and contains an iron bunk, desk, table, suitcases and stools. They cook on a narrow outside verandah.

All of the children who are old enough have been in school, because their parents want them to have opportunities that are denied by lack of education. In addition to the tuition, which is about $3.84 for all of the children, the family must buy books, supplies and proper clothing.

Ngan Yuk has written three letters to the Coles. Her letters like those of the little girl from Ecuador, are full of news of holidays and family life. The letters the Coles receive are translated by Foster Parents Plan. They are sent the original as well as the translation.

The amount of money required to support a Foster child is a comparatively small one—$192 a year (or $16 a month). Mrs. Cole feels that this money is probably more efficiently spent than most dollars donated to charity. And she is right—could you support a child for $16 a month?

A variety of Foster Parents are doing so—both individuals and groups. They range from retired school teachers to the army sergeant leaving for Vietnam, from Sen. John G. Tower and Julie Andrews to a mother with a brood of her own who wishes to share her modest means with a child in even less fortunate circumstances.

School classes, fraternal organizations, labor unions, bridge clubs and even prisoners pool their resources to help some child achieve a decent life.

The Foster Parents Plan program has been working since 1937 and had "graduated" more than 110,000 Foster Children, thanks to more than 600,000 United States and Canadian Foster Parents, including groups. Some of the "graduates" are professionals, others are industrial or agricultural workers. All are grateful.

Information can be obtained by writing to Foster Parents Plan, Inc., 352 Park Avenue, South, New York, N. Y. 10010. The results can be extremely rewarding. Just ask the Coles.

Steven C. Shaver of John Aiden Road is listed on the fall term scholastic honor roll announced by Oregon State University. He is a sophomore in the School of Engineering.

5 Parties To Mark Birthday

Mark Feb. 27 well on your calendar because that is a BIG day for the Amphibious Force—Little Creek will be celebrating the Amphibious Force 27th Anniversary Ball with five parties.

Those parties are scheduled as follows: Officers', Rockwell Hall, 9 p. m.-2 a. m.; CPO's CPO Club, 6 p. m.-1 a. m.; 1st and 2nd Class PO's, New 56 Club, 6 p. m.-1 a. m.; 3rd Class PO and below, Old 56 Club and Club El Cocodrilo, 6 p. m.-1 a. m.

All parties excepting the Officers' Ball will serve an extensive and varied buffet from 6 p. m. until 8:30 p. m. Afterward dancing and entertainment will follow.

Entertainment at the CPO Club and New 56 Club will consist of Johnny Hall, Comedian; Nancy Spiers and Phaedra, dancers; and Florence Penn, vocalist.

Entertainment and dancing at the Old 56 Club and Club El Cocodrilo will be provided by The Personalities and Kendall Standing, Mike Boran and the Starlighters.

Uniform for the enlisted parties is Service Dress Blue, Marine Dress A, or appropriate civilian attire. Couples only will be admitted to the Old 56 Club party.

The Officers' Ball will not serve an extensive buffet. Light snacks will be available at all tables. In addition to the service of three bars in Rockwell Hall, Entertainment and dancing during the evening will be provided by the PHIBLANT Band and the School of Music Show Band (which presents a terrific floor show). The uniform for the ball is dinner dress blue jacket. Officers not required to have this uniform may wear dinner dress blue.

There will be a cake-cutting ceremony, attended by a PHIBLANT Flag Officer, at each of the five parties. Cake will be served to all attendees after the ceremony.

Tickets for all five parties are available at no cost through individual commands. Each person attending a party must have a ticket for admission. The only cost item at each party will be drinks. Everything from champagne to beer and soft drinks will be available.

Seating at the Officers' Ball will be arranged by command; a seating plan will be posted at the entrance to Rockwell Hall on the night of the ball.

Hairdressers to Introduce Styles

When Mayor Frank Dusch signed a proclamation for National Beauty Salon Week, he also signed in the advent of the new spring hairstyles.

The hairdressers, not to be outdone by the clothing industry which has already displayed their spring clothing, are ready with their new co-ordinating spring hair fashions.

For you ladies who have wondered how hairstyles and clothing always seem to go together—each year a group known as the Official Hair Fashion Comm-tee meet with the couturiers of the country and decide the look for hair which will co-ordinate with the clothing fashion. The hairstyles are then taught to members of the National Hairdressers Association by their affiliate Hair Fashion Committee all across the country.

So if you like the total look of fashion do not neglect to view the spring hairstyles coming out the week of Feb. 9. Or better yet, view the styles while enjoying an evening of dining and dancing at the Annual Hairdressers Ball on Feb. 15 at the Lake Wright Motel beginning at 7:30 p.m. Proceeds from the evening will go to Camp Civitan, a project to which the Hairdressers have contributed for several years.

Cocktails will be followed by dinner and hair fashions and contests. Music for dancing will be by the Blue Notes. Nellie Bryan and Kurt Webster will be mistress and master of ceremonies.

Reservations at $9.50 per person may be made with Wencie Jan Tipton at 583-1817.

Veronica Tyler to Return

Internationally acclaimed soprano, Veronica Tyler, will appear in concert here, Thursday, Feb. 6 at 8 p.m. at First Colonial High School, under the auspices of the Virginia Beach Friends of Music.

Miss Tyler, one of the most sought-after young artists in the musical scene, was one of the guest artists during the 1968 Friends of Music Arts Festival last summer. She made her first appearance on national television in the fall of 1961 as soloist with Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic. In the summer of 1966 Miss Tyler was named winner of the First International Competition in Moscow.

Tickets are available at $5.20 for reserved seats, $3.12 general admission and $1.53 for students and military. For reservations contact Mrs. E. Bradford Tazewell, Jr. at 428-5493.

The Friends of Music are planning another Music Arts Festival on July 20-27 this summer.

Mrs. Hugh S. Meredith, winter concert chairman, and Mrs. Ervin W. Gentry, a member of the hospitality committee.

It Was Blackmail

I got run out of my own kitchen last night. Not quite--they let me stay over by the stove and pop popcorn for them. I was blackmailed; that's what it was.

The monsters decided they wanted popcorn. Really, they had decided it three days before and had been pestering me ever since. Anyhow I told them I had to wash dishes and was too busy. So they volunteered to take over the dishes. What choice did I have?

You had to see them to believe it. The seven-year-old was giving out orders to the two younger ones like a drill sergeant. In her vast experience, she had washed dishes exactly one time before last night.

"No, Susie (the six-year-old), you have to scrape the plate before you put it in the water."

"Not like that, Bill (the four-year-old), slosh the water around inside."

The three of them lined up across the sink. The oldest washed, her sister rinsed and put the dishes in the drain rack, and Bill played in the suds, much to the disgust of the other two.

"No, Susie, the plates go at the back and the cups at the front." Too bad she's not such a perfectionist about everything else.

I should add that we don't have unbreakable dishes and somehow they all survived--as well as my nerves.

There was really only one mistake--too much salt on the popcorn.

Too bad it won't last. I've heard too many parents say they can't wait for their kids to grow up. I like them like they are. They at least cooperate one time out of ten.

The first fashion show-luncheon held at the Princess Anne Country Club in some years turned out to be an overwhelming success last week. Although more than 200 women attended on the rainy day, 60 reservations were turned away. Shown here are, left to right, Mrs. Robert Goodykoontz, Mrs. Gareth Lee, Mrs. Milton Culpepper and Mrs. F.E. Dickerson. Fashions were from Captain Jim's Imports.

Sauce Has Romantic History

An especially delightful section of Louisiana is that known as Cajun country, near New Iberia, where descendants of settlers from the Evangeline country of Nova Scotia have carried on their language and cooking traditions.

These people of French background were originally called Acadians, but time and the Southern dialect have softened it to "Cajun." Deep in this storied land is Avery Island, home of Tabasco pepper sauce. Here among jungle gardens, bird sanctuaries, a salt mine dating from far before Civil War days, and productive oil fields in the surrounding marshlands, lives the McIlhenny family which manufactures this unique liquid pepper seasoning.

The word Tabasco has been the exclusive trademark for the sauce made and bottled by the McIlhenny Company since 1868, and was the second trademark registered in the U. S. Patent Office. The name is an Indian word meaning "land where the soil is humid." The peppers have flourished on the family-owned island since before the Civil War, and it has been a century now since the sauce was first commercially sold.

In 1848, after the Mexican War, an American soldier of fortune known only as Gleason, remained in Mexico. After five years he sailed back to New Orleans, where he met Edmund McIlhenny, a former New Orleans banker. Giving him some seeds he had brought from southern Mexico, he said they would produce a pepper pod of especially fine flavor and color. McIlhenny, a lover of well-seasoned food, planted the seeds in the garden of his father-in-law's plantation at Avery Island.

At the time of the Civil War, the Avery and McIlhenny families were forced to leave their plantation home and move to Texas. Then they returned to the island, they found a number of pepper plants had survived the destruction of the plantation by Union forces. Using these peppers, Mr. McIlhenny continued his experiments, creating the original recipe for Tabasco brand sauce in the late 1860's. He then vigorously promoted and marketed his spicy product, living to see it become one of the world's great condiments. The century before the 100th anniversary of Tabasco saw a modest one-man hobby turn into an enterprise, then develop into a world-wide business with sales in more than a hundred countries.

Tabasco is prepared now as it always has been, the only exception being mechanization of the bottling operation. The peppers are washed and stored in wooden casks sealed with salt for a three-year fermentation process. After that, the mash is mixed with vinegar, stirring by hand for three weeks, then filtered and bottled. Tabasco is unique because of its flavor, and for the fact that it is not cooked like other pepper sauces; its processing consists of aging like fine wine. It artfully seasons appetizers, soups, stews, gravies, sauces, salad dressings, and egg, vegetable, meat and seafood dishes. The pungent, aromatic seasoning suits robust appetites and gourmet palates to a T—for Tabasco, of course!

During World War II, when many basic foods were rationed, the government encouraged all U. S. citizens to plant their own "Victory Gardens." Vegetable fresh from the "backyards" and little meat available really challenged the imagination!

One popular recipe was Eggplant with Ground Beef, a new idea for war-time tables. It is one of 10 dishes in a new booklet issued to celebrate the 100th anniversary of Tabasco pepper sauce this year. Each dish represents a decade in the century-old culinary history of the world-famed liquid red pepper seasoning. This one represents the period 1938-1948.

EGGPLANT WITH GROUND BEEF

- 2 small to medium eggplants, cut in half
- 2 tbs. salad oil
- 1 lb. ground beef
- 1 clove garlic, chopped or crushed
- 1 can (1 pound) seasoned stewed tomatoes
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. Tabasco
- 1 c. cooked rice
- 1/2 c. grated Cheddar cheese

Cut eggplants in half lengthwise and simmer in small amount of salted boiling water until almost tender, 10 to 15 minutes. Remove and cool. Cut and scoop out inner pulp leaving 1/4 to 1/2 inch of pulp around edge and bottom without damaging outer shell. Dice pulp. Heat salad oil in skillet. Add meat and garlic and brown.

Chops Stay Tops

Chops are perennial favorites. Pork, lamb or veal chops can be cooked "as is" or dressed up with a sauce, a glaze or a stuffing.

Luckily, there's a chop to fit everyone's budget and any time schedule. Of the three categories, loin chops are the most expensive.

Possibilities for dressing the chops in elegant style are endless. Broiled chops, for example, may be brushed with a butter, tarragon and white wine mixture before serving for added flair.

Loin lamb chops may be marinated in a mixture of curry and soy sauce before broiling. Chops may be deviled by pressing them into buttered crumbs before grilling.

Perhaps the most delectable gourmet touch is a glaze for the chops. Pork chops take kindly to a trio of honey, orange juice and cognac, brushed on several times during the cooking period.

For lamb shoulder chops, try pizza style by browning the chops slowly in a skillet. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and garlic breaking up with a fork. Add tomatoes, salt and Tabasco. Remove from heat. Blend in rice and eggplant pulp. Spoon meat-eggplant mixture into prepared eggplant shells. Place in shallow baking pan. Any remaining mixture may be baked in individual casserole. Sprinkle cheese over stuffed eggplants. Bake in 375 degree oven about 25 minutes until hot. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

* 2 cups fresh cooked tomatoes may be substituted for canned.

Note: Stuffed Green Peppers may be prepared using the same beef-rice mixture as above. Remove tops of 4 medium green peppers; slice white membrane from inside of each pepper. Drop peppers into boiling water let simmer for 15 minutes. Stuff peppers with mixture and place, standing up, in greased baking dish. Sprinkle with 1/2 cup grated Cheddar cheese, if desired. Bake in 375 degree oven 1 1/2 hour or until peppers are tender. Yield: 4 servings.

Have a New Home Without Moving

Like to give your home a brand-new look? To combine modernization with individuality, try one of these interesting new projects suggested by the people at Pfizer, producers of basic materials for home builders.

Like to have more space for guests? Or a den, music or sewing room? One solution is to make an existing room fill more than one function. All it takes is careful planning of space and furnishings. A spare bedroom, for instance, can serve any or all of these roles. To remove the bedroom-y look, use a convertible sofa, daybed or roll-away. In a small room, consider a chair or ottoman that converts to a single bed.

Achieve spaciousness by keeping furnishings functional. A chest of drawers can double as a lamp table and sewing supply center. A console sewing machine can become an end table or writing desk when not in use. To house books, records and stereo equipment, consider a space-saving wall unit.

If the room has a closet, make the most of it. Shelf and floor space can be compartmentalized to hold files, papers and sewing needs. A folding ironing board can be attached to the inside of the door.

Complete the transformation with a unified color scheme, early-care draperies and flooring and a few well chosen accessories, and you'll have one of the most useful and attractive rooms in your home.

Extra space for outdoor enjoyment may be right under your nose! Perhaps you have a breezeway that can be converted to a dining terrace, a corner of the yard you can turn into a patio, a shade tree, pond or pool that can be paved around its perimeter.

One of the most attractive materials for any of these jobs is unglazed ceramic tile, which not only is weatherproof, water-proof and stain resistant, but also washes clean with a hose. One of the oldest building materials known to man, tile's durability also is a "plus." Today's ceramic tiles are a scientific blend of clay, talc and wollastonite, most of which comes from natural mineral deposits in the West, the South, and other areas of the United States.

Another major advantage of tile is that the initial installation cost is usually the only cost, since maintenance is minimal. As for costs, they vary, according to location and type of installation. In general, ceramic floor tiles installed with Portland cement mortar cost approximately $1.00 to $2.00 per square foot. Dry-set mortar or adhesive installations run from about 80¢ to $1.70 per square foot. A tiling contractor can advise you on the best type of tile and installation for your needs. And he'll also tell you that modernizing outdoors with tile will increase the value of your home.

Twenty years ago, bathroom decor was definitely dull. Today, the bath is blossoming with color and convenience. If you'd like to update yours, consider installation of new fixtures and fittings. For instance, innovations such as wall-hung cabinets, twin-basin counter tops, square and sunken tubs can give even the dreariest bathroom a new lease on life, providing maximum comfort and convenience.

Color, too, has become increasingly important. The days of the all-white bath are over. Not only fixtures, but floor and wall tile are also available in a spectrum of shades, patterns and types. Some tile manufacturers even have color schemes keyed to popular bathroom fixtures for a completely coordinated look.

You also can achieve dramatic effects by combining decorative tiles with solid tiles. Decorative insert tiles come in a variety of designs ranging from Early American to contemporary motifs. There are even whimsical animal designs to add charm to a child's bath.

Other new ideas include crystalline tiles for a textured look, scored tiles for a hand-set effect, ceramic mosaic tile, and both shiny and matte finish tiles. And, of course, tile has the special advantages of being splash-proof, spot-proof, steam-proof and easy to clean.

Most women have complaints about their kitchens. Among the most common are lack of storage space, cluttered countertops and hard-to-clean surfaces and flooring.

Happily, many of these problems can be solved ingeniously without major renovation.

For instance, most kitchens have waste space between wall cabinets and ceiling. This can be put to good use by placing ready-made cabinets on top of

VPI Co-op Ext. Service

All Tidewater Virginia nurserymen, landscapers, and maintenance personnel will be interested to know that the second Tidewater Nurserymen's Short Course will be presented Jan. 30 and 31 at Coleman Garden Center, 4934 High St., West in Portsmouth.

Presentation will include "Regulations Pertaining to the Nursery Industry", "Using Deciduous Shrubs in the Landscape", "Transplanting", "Development of Disease Resistant Plant Materials", as well as "Changes in the Ornamental Section of the VPI Pesticide Handbook", and "Trees for Tidewater Virginia".

The featured speaker will be Dr. Frank S. Santamour, Jr., research geneticist with the U. S. Department of Agriculture. On hand, also, will be numerous specialists from the departments of horticulture and plant pathology and physiology at Virginia Tech.

For persons engaged in the nursery industry, or in landscaping, spraying, or other maintenance industries related to ornamental horticulture, this will be of interest and will prove very helpful.

A small registration fee is charged. Further information is available from my office at Virginia Beach City Hall.

HERE COMES OLGA!

Saturday night at the Officer's club at Oceana I attended a Navy "wetting down" party, which was given in honor of Cmdr. Rolf F. Noll, and Cmdr. Burney Burnett.

For civilians as well as myself a "Wetting Down" party is given when an officer adds a half or full stripe, this party was to honor them in their promotion to full commanders.

Some of the women were dressed in cocktail dresses, others were informally dressed.

In the center of the room was a long buffet table filled from one end to the other with all sorts of wonderful food such as: shishkabob, all sorts of hors d'oeuvre, deviled eggs, a large bowl of shrimp with cocktail sauce, hot rolls, Smithfield ham, celery, olives, carrot sticks and cocktail sausages which you heated on a habachi. Each corner of the room contained a bar, and believe me, the bartenders stayed pretty busy.

Mrs. Noll and Mrs. Burnett, who were hostesses for this party, were attractively dressed. Mrs. Noll wore a pastel blue long cocktail skirt with a pretty ruffled dress blouse and a wide belt matching the skirt. Her shoes were gold; her white sequin drop ear rings against her red hair was most attractive. Mrs. Burnett wore a silver sequin dress with a jewel neckline and silver shoes.

I have found since attending these Navy parties recently that the Navy people all are so very friendly. I find them so easy to talk with. At Navy parties everyone always seems to have fun and really participate in the activities.

Others attending were: Mrs. Peter Easton, Lt. Peter Libby, Cmdr. and Mrs. Don Primeau, Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Jack Burrows, Lt. and Mrs. Wilton Bradshaw, Lt. and Mrs. Samuel Jackson, Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Harry Houghton, Mrs. Nancy DeArmand, Lt. George Miller, Lt. and Mrs. Gerdi Kelsy, Lt. J.G. and Mrs. Stanley Foltz, Lt. J.G. and Mrs. George Peter Jr., Lt. John E. Clark, Lt. J.G. John Totushek, Lt. J.G. George Purcell, Miss Nancy Lynne Goodwin, Miss Nancy Nicolson, Mrs. David Davidson, Cmdr. Tom Rogers, Lt. and Mrs. Bill Roberts, Lt. and Mrs. Robert W. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Barnes, Mrs. Fred Kochey, Mrs. Robert Weimorts, Lt. and Mrs. Thomas Smith, Mrs. June White, Cmdr. and Mrs. Tim Woodbridge, Mr. and Mrs. James Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dornire, Jr., Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Harold McAvue, Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Ed Cowart, Lt. and Mrs. Richard Bouely, Lt. George Miller, Lt. and Mrs. William Bedegle and Lt. and Mrs. Phil Slaton.

Cluttered countertops are inefficient at best. Instead, use available wall space to hang cooking utensils that are in constant use. Store electric appliances not used daily. Put up pegboard to hold small tools, gadgets, measuring spoons or cups. Or, try hanging incidentals on cup hooks placed underneath wall cabinets.

If flooring, work surfaces and wall areas are easily marred and hard-to-clean, consider replacing them with tile. Most top restaurants and hotels, by the way, use tile in their kitchens because of its durability, cleanliness and easy maintenance. Last, but not least, a multitude of colors and design possibilities make tile one of the most versatile and valuable decorating materials you can use.

Stir in finely chopped California prunes into orange marmalade. Spoon over baked coffee cake made with packaged orange muffin mix. Slip into broiler to glaze and bubble for only a few seconds.

Congratulations to our new commanders and may you earn more stripes.

Geraniums Add Color to Homes

(Editor's note: Here is another in the series on home horticulture by Wesley P. Judkins, Extension horticulturist Virginia Tech.)

Geraniums are among the most useful of flowering plants. In fact, we should not limit our praise to those which produce blooms. There are many fine geraniums which are also of value as foliage plants.

As house plants, the attractive white, pink and red blooms bring real cheerfulness into the home during the cold days of winter. And, if you have trouble providing adequate light to promote flowering during these cloudy months, you may enjoy the beauty and fragrance of the scented varieties.

Buy some geranium plants now from your florist or garden center. They will serve two purposes by adding beauty to your home this winter, and providing a source of cuttings next spring to start plants for your flower beds and borders.

Many of the new geraniums produce an abundance of large attractive flowers and are excellent in the house or outdoors. Ask your florist or green-house grower for some of the new varieties which tolerate hot weather. These new types will add beautiful color to your garden all summer and not stop growing during hot weather as the older varieties do.

Your geraniums will grow in any kind of pot as long as the soil is well drained. Plastic pots in subdued colors are very practical. They are more attractive and easier to keep clean than the old-style clay pots. Be sure the size or color is not so conspicuous as to detract from the plant in the pot.

Give your geraniums as much light as possible. Direct sunlight is needed if your plants are to continue blooming during the winter. Fluorescent lights will help promote good growth, but light from the sun or incandescent lamps is needed to maintain flowering.

Have you ever tried to raise geraniums from seed? Several fine disease-resistant varieties are now available. These will add variety to your indoor gardening and give you some interesting types for use as bedding plants next summer. The Carefree, Nittany Lion, and Read strains are useful as house plants or for the outdoor garden.

Plant geranium seeds in February. The young plants will be large enough to transplant to your outdoor flower beds in May. They should then produce an abundance of bloom during the entire summer. Plant the seeds in regular sterilized potting soil, covering them about one-fourth inch deep.

The germination of geranium seeds may be somewhat uneven but do not be concerned. The first seedlings should appear in about five days, and others may continue to emerge for several weeks. Transplant into three or four-inch pots and keep in full sun to avoid leggy growth.

Your geraniums need plenty of water but the soil must not be allowed to become waterlogged. Promote good green growth with a soluble house plant fertilizer. Apply a dilute solution every two or three weeks and avoid excess which might increase vegetative growth and reduce flowering.

VIRGINIA BEACH Garden Club News

Lynnhaven

Lynnhaven Garden Club is planning a special 26th anniversary luncheon for Tuesday, Feb. 4 at the Shore Drive Inn beginning at 12:30 p.m.

At the January meeting City Horticulturist Elgia Easter spoke on informal planting for a more pleasing appearance of homes and grounds. Judges were from Wolfsmare Garden Club.

Hostesses were Mrs. D. R. French and Mrs. C.W. Diggs.

Thoroughgood

The January meeting of the Thoroughgood Garden Club was held at the home of Mrs. C. E. Treake with Mrs. J. W. Barry as co-hostess.

Plans for the Club's Annual Spring Luncheon were formulated and the president, Mrs. W. H. Harrison, appointed Mrs. Richard L. Lindell and Mrs. George A. Towns as chairman and co-chairman of this event.

A very interesting program on flower arranging was presented by representatives from the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co.

Mrs. Virginia Harrison, Mrs. Pauline Harrison and Mrs. Carol Manning were recognized as top winners in the Christmas Package Contest. These packages and many more were distributed to the Club's adopted friends at the Lake Taylor Hospital by Mrs. Richard Lindell, Garden Therapy chairman, as part of the Club's very active Therapy program.

Play Specialists Suggested

Every children's ward should have a play-specialist.

That's the contention of Dr. Hugh Jolly, who has begun using play-specialists, usually nursery school teachers, for children in the Charing Cross group of hospitals where he is the pediatric director.

"Play (helps a child) deal with the stresses of life," said Dr. Jolly, "and (provides) a safety-valve for fears and anxieties which might otherwise become overwhelming. Since play is essential in ordinary life it is

Marion Crosby

The Marion Crosby Garden Club met for a luncheon at the Norfolk Lafayette Club Saturday. Our President Mrs. J. J. Baker had to resign due to ill health. Mrs. Q. M. Sheple will preside in her place.

Plans are being made to Charter a Bus so the club may attend the flower show in Philadelphia March 8, 9 and 10. First choice will go to Club members, then opened to public until bus is filled. Approximate cost will be $20 per person. Advance sale of tickets are $1.75 at door $2.25. Cash for both must accompany reservations. There will be no refunds but in case of illness, etc, we will try to sell your reservation.

Feb. 10 is deadline. Contact Mrs. Sheple 587-5466 or Mrs. Todd 340-6950. There will be a pleasure stop at Longwood Gardens on the way up!

Mrs. Frank J. Lukanich was installed as president of the Virginia Council of Accredited Flower Show Judges Tuesday Jan. 28 at the annual banquet in Richmond. The club boasts having seven National Accredited Flower Show Judges and all seven will be present. Mrs. L. M. Caputo and Mrs. M. H. Keller received their Master Judging certificates at the same meeting. Others are Mrs. S. G. Ireland, Mrs. M. S. Todd, Jr., Mrs. Lukanich, Mrs. A. H. Gallagher and Mrs. Sheple.

all the more important in the abnormal setting of hospital life."

The role of a play-specialist is to guide the children through play to get rid of their feelings of anger, fear, resentment, and frustration resulting from their illness and hospital stay.

Americans Are in Favor Of Marriage

Although the United States has now supplanted Egypt as the country with the world's highest divorce rate, Dr. David R. Mace, executive director of the American Association of Marriage Counselors, believes that Americans are really unusually marriage-minded.

"Americans believe deeply in marriage," said Dr. Mace in a physicians' publication, "Medical Aspects of Human Sexuality." "More than 90 percent of all Americans marry at least once in a lifetime, and surely that means something."

If a first marriage fails, Dr. Mace pointed out, six out of every seven divorced people now try again. A few generations ago, only one out of three divorced people remarried.

Pick Fashions by Horoscope

Many people attribute today's startling fashion trends to the new Aquarian Age. This is the age when it has been long predicted that everyone will be himself.

Nowhere is this more evident than in the world of fashion. The Piscean Age, which began approximately 170 B. C., is coming to an end. The long heralded Aquarian Age is now approaching and symbolically began in February 1962 when 8 out of the 12 planetary positions were in this unpredictable sign--and we are beginning to feel the impact!

Among the predictions for this new era, which will last about two thousand years, was the forecast that there would be an unprecedented revival of interest in the occult. This is certainly true of astrology and "Women's Wear Daily" recently referred to the current trend as "astromania." Whether as a true believer or a curious peeper, almost everyone knows their own sign and takes advantage of every opportunity to read about themselves in the astrological columns and feature stories.

An individual's horoscope--the constellation of birth stars--is calculated from the day, month, year, exact time, latitude and longitude of their birth and is as uniquely individual as a fingerprint. Yet there are strong common characteristics for those born under the same sun sign, determined by which of the twelve zones of the zodiac the sun was in at birth. Even in the new madly mod Aquarian Age of complete individuality, there are astrological influences on women born under the same sign that strongly determine how they will express their personalities; through the fashions they select.

Hystron Fibers Incorporated assembled a constellation of Trevira fashions ("constellation" also means a collection of splendors) from ascending American designers to illustrate these characteristics based on astrological fashion information supplied by Time Pattern Research Institute, Inc. of Valley Stream, New York, the world's first and only computerized astrological service using the day, month, year, time and place of birth.

The fire signs: The fire people, the warm and bright Arians, Leos and Sagittarians are ever ready to blaze new fashion trails. Since they are action people, they have a great interest in sportswear and they also usually choose dramatic fashions in vivid colors.

Aries (March 21 through April 20): The Aries woman is a fashion pioneer, the first to try a new fashion and therefore a natural fashion leader. Bold, clear, true red expresses best the brightness of her nature.

Leo (July 24 through August 21): Brilliant oranges, vivid yellows and rich, royal purples dominate the wardrobe of the dramatic lioness. Leo enjoys being center stage by wearing magnificent clothes in rich, expensive fabrics.

Sagittarius (November 22 through December 20): The Sagittarian applies her high intelligence to fashion. As she follows fashion's latest trends, the Archer employs her own instinctive, highly modern flair. She has a passion for sports clothes and feels particularly at home in tweeds and country clothes.

The element of Earth rules a lady with a fastidious taste for fine tailoring. Victor Joris chooses a stria weave in TREVIRA* and wool for the ultimate in city pants. Fabric by French River Mills of 55% Trevira, 45% wool.

The earth signs: The earth people (Taurus, Virgo and Capricorn) like conservative fashions in soft, muted tones and are very quality conscious.

Taurus (April 21 through May 20): Taurus women are never slaves to fashion, preferring well-tailored suits and classic dresses--understated elegance and overstated simplicity.

Virgo (August 22 through September 22): The Virgo woman is fastidious with impeccable good taste. Seldom seen in extreme fashions, she has a great sense of what is right. Virgo has an innate sense of style and can look very smart or carelessly casual, preferring simple, ageless fashions in softly subdued colors.

Capricorn (December 22 through January 19): The Capricorn woman is the fashion traditionalist, always interested in real quality in muted tones and fine fabrics. She wears her clothes, they don't wear her. Under the austere influence of Saturn, most Capricorns are very practical in buying clothes.

The air signs: The air people (Gemini, Libra, and Aquarius) are coolly detached and intellectual, quickness and light with a great artistic sense. Since they love to travel and move about, they want packable fashions and clothing that will keep its appearance from morning until night.

Gemini (May 21 through June 20): Gemini is the sign of youth, subject to whim and fancy. Even the older Geminians can carry off youthful styles successfully. They love mix and match outfits. Keeping up with fashion is a big part of the Gemini's life and they adore unusual accessories, the "madder" and newer, the better.

Libra (September 23 through October 20): Libra women are a delight to the eye because they have excellent fashion sense and do everything in moderation. Ruled by the beauty loving planet Venus, they are particularly fashion conscious, the essence of refinement and attention to detail. More dress designers are born under this sign than any other.

Aquarius (January 21 through February 19): This is the fashion fun group, they understand the social significance of clothing. No fashion is followed slavishly and the Aquarian always adds her own touch.

The water signs: The water people (Cancerians, Scorpios and Pisceans) are sensitive, intuitive, versatile and flexible. They like the extremely romantic fashions in soft, delicate fabrics.

Cancer (June 21 through July 21): The Cancerian woman approaches fashion cautiously but her feminine nature leads her to buying extremely romantic dresses, especially for evening wear, often in fabrics that glisten with the pale silver of the moon, her ruler.

Scorpio (October 23 through November 21): Scorpios like exotic and sophisticated fashions, but their taste is restrained and highly personal, never ostentatious.

Pisces (February 19 through March 20): With her great intuitive sense, the Piscean is often a little ahead of fashion but she is also fond of yesterday's classics. This is the sign of the poet and the romantic so the Piscean often falls in love with fragile, feminine styles in softly draped fabrics. Since she adores relaxation, she often indulges in a wild variety of hostess gowns and exciting at-home clothes.

There's creativity in cooking! Every woman knows that color plays an important part in her family's appetite so she creates a picture when dinner is set before her family. She keeps texture in mind as she plans to serve chewy foods with soft, bland or "saucy" ones. And she likes to "cate-flavored food with those 'at are sharp and spicy.

Falcons 'to Face Tough Month

The Com Falcons have made it through January as one of the unbeaten in the Eastern District basketball standings with their win Tuesday night over Norview, 59 to 57, in a close one. The Falcons are idle this weekend, but a tough February is ahead. They have now won 12 in a row.

Still with a chance at ending the month with no defeats in district play are Maury and surprising Princess Anne, which has moved quickly into the upper echelons of the district with some decisive victories. The Cavaliers downed Lake Taylor Tuesday night 57 to 48, First Colonial barely nipped Kellam 71-70. Maury passed Kempville easily 85-50.

This weekend finds Bayside at First Colonial, Kellam at Granby, B. T. Washington at Kempville, Princess Anne at Norview and Northampton at Union Kempville on Friday night. No games involving Virginia Beach teams are scheduled Saturday night.

Next Tuesday night the headline game will be between Cox and Princess Anne at the Cavaliers' home stand; Granby will be at Bayside; Kempville will be at Kellam and J. F. Kennedy of Suffolk comes to Union Kempville. And on Wednesday Princess Anne travels to Deep Creek for an inter-district game.

Then comes the fateful week for Cox. On Friday night, Feb.

7, the Falcons meet the Maury Commodores and on the following Monday they meet B. T. Washington of Norfolk at the Arena.

Depending upon the outcome of the Princess Anne-Cox game and the outcome of Cox's games with the two Norfolk scoring leaders, the eastern district title may not be decided until the final week when Princess Anne meets both Maury and Washington.

Union Kempville has not played since Jan. 22 when the Tigers played a doubleheader, one game in the afternoon and the other at night at Mary N. Smith and Northampton on the Eastern Shore.

The Cox win over Lake Taylor, 64-57 last Friday night was not unexpected, except that the Titans were really up for the game and were trying hard to knock Cox off the top of the heap. Frank Gupson of Cox had 21 points and Keith Sudduth had 19. That ran the Cox string of victories to 11, the same as Maury. Both also were then 5-0 on the district season.

Princess Anne's overall record was 10-2, but it was also 5-0 in district play. The Cavaliers took a pair of games last weekend, one from Kempville and the other from southeastern district leader, Wilson. That one came as a bit of a surprise.

Three names now stand out for the Cavaliers. Six-foot 9

Ernie Selderman scored 13 points in Friday's game against Kempville and 17 points against Wilson. Ricky Michaelson tossed in 31 points against the Chiefs and only 11 against the Presidents. Skeeter Whitlow dropped in 15 against Kempville and 19 against Wilson. PA beat Kempville 81-75 and Wilson 68-52. The young Kempville continues to make a good showing, although there is no senior class and although the statistics do not show it.

Also on Friday night, B. T. Washington bombed First Colonial 83-59, behind the 38-point attack of Roy Ebron. But on Saturday night the Patriots came back to nip Lake Taylor 58-54.

The other Friday night action saw Kellam barely struggle past Bayside 71-69. Bayside has still to win a game this season.

Cox's Sudduth remains with the area scoring leaders with a 22.2 point average in 11 games. PA's Michaelson has an 18.5 average for 12 games.

Before the season started, Maury and Booker T. were supposed to be the two teams that would dominate the backboards. Booker T. has lost only one in district play. The team to watch was supposed to be Princess Anne, which is now coming alive. But nobody apparently heard about Cox. Now they have as the Falcons look toward February.

Bank Reports Good Year

First and Merchants National Bank reported a good year in 1968 at its annual stockholder's meeting held in Richmond on Jan. 22.

The bank went on to state its own position for growth that sent earnings and deposits to new high levels and laid ground for future advances.

"Throughout the country, banks turned in new records for loans, deposits and earnings," said Robert L. Gordon Jr., president, and C. Coleman McGee, executive vice president. "First and Merchants participated fully in the benefits of this setting," they stated.

This "participation" amounted to a gain of 13% in both earnings and deposits. Loans jumped 20% over comparable year-end figures. The report gave details on its First Mortgage Corporation, its BankAmericard operation, its state-wide facilities, and looked ahead to the functioning of First and Merchants Corporation, its proposed one-bank holding company.

Stockholders approved a reorganization plan that will have the bank become a subsidiary of a holding company to be known as First and Merchants Corporation.

First and Merchants Corporation would become the ultimate parent in the contemplated one-bank holding company which was chartered in October 1968.

Gordon said that no definite objective had been set for the new corporation, but that the bank will "probably be taking a good look at such things as leasing, expanded computer services, and land development financing, although we will certainly not be closed to other possibilities." The new corporation is expected to become operational sometime in March.

Two new directors were named and 23 board members were established at the meeting. A. B. Burton of Lynchburg and Elmon T. Gray of Waverly are the newly elected directors.

Lyle, McCaw Win Angling Citations

James B. McCaw III of King Charles Court and Joseph L. Lyle Jr. of 64th Street recently won angling Citations in the Spin Division of the Metropolitan Miami Fishing Tournament.

McCaw's recognition was for landing a three-pound 14 oz. Ladyfish; Lyle landed a three-pound five oz. Ladyfish. They were fishing with Capt. Cliff Carille on Miss Out II, out of Sugarloaf Marina in the Florida Keys.

Bank Announces Changes

Robert S. Boyd, of Virginia Beach, vice president and formerly in charge of the Marketing Division of Seaboard Citizens National Bank, has been named to head the bank's public relations activities and O. B. James, Jr., of Norfolk, formerly corporate trust officer, has been elected Director of Marketing. It was announced by M. Lee Payne, president of Seaboard Bank. In addition to directing public relations for Seaboard, Boyd will also be involved in credit and lending activities.

Payne also announced the transfer of William I. Foster, Jr., also of Virginia Beach, assistant vice president, to the Marketing Division where he will have new responsibilities in sales training and national accounts coordination. Foster previously had been manager of the bank's Main Office customer facilities.

Boyd began his banking career with Seaboard in 1956 and served as Manager of the Credit Department until 1960 when he assumed advertising responsibilities which gradually evolved into the present Marketing Division. He was named assistant cashier in 1958; assistant vice president in 1961 and vice president of the bank in 1963.

James, a native of Norfolk and former vice president of both the Investment Corporation of Virginia and Investment Corporation of Norfolk, began his commercial banking career in January 1966, in the Trust Department of Seaboard, with responsibilities in the areas of Pension and Profit Sharing Trusts and, in August of that year, was elected corporate trust officer.

A Norfolk native, Foster received his BA degree from the Norfolk Division of William and Mary and his graduate degree

P.A. Band Has Versatile Look

The next time you hear Princess Anne High School Band they will sound as good as they always do, but they may look a bit sharper than the last time you saw them. They should, because they will be wearing their new uniforms.

The handsome red, white and blue uniforms were purchased from Ostwald Uniform Company. Money for the outfitting came from the Band Parents Association, Athletic Department at the school, a candy drive sponsored by the band and the school board, which donated $500 toward the uniforms.

Princess Anne's uniforms are of a unique design, for they are a "two-pants" suit—at least they will be at the end of the year when the band department will have enough money to purchase the second pair of pants. The idea of two pairs of pants was dreamed up by the Band Parents Association. Through observation and study it was learned that the largest amount of wear is to the pants during marching season. With the extra pair of pants the uniforms should last ten years.

The uniform is made up of a light blue jacket with navy lapels, navy pants, a white overlay with red trim, a hat and a pair of light blue pants with red trim. The band wears the jacket and navy pants for concerts; for marching they don the overlay, hat and the light blue pants. Other bands have adopted the overlay to make their uniforms more versatile, but few bands have utilized the second pair of pants.

Ronald J. Collins, band director at Princess Anne, is very happy with the uniforms. He praises all of those involved in purchasing the uniforms, in particular J. W. Littleton, the school principal. "It would have been impossible for us to get the uniforms if it had not been for Mr. Littleton...He backed us 100%."

Princess Anne High School has two concerts a year—Christmas Concert and a Spring Concert (May 23). They will also be playing in the Band Festival at First Colonial on March 15.

Gains Reported by Bank

In their 1968 annual report First and Merchants National Bank reported average deposits of 1968 as $617,971,000, a 10.6 percent gain over 1967. They also reported a 10.9 percent rise in average total assets of $707,848,000 and a 1.6 percent rise in year end capital accounts, a figure listed at $50,088,200.

The report described progress made by the bank on several new fronts. First Mortgage Corporation, acquired in 1967, enjoyed a year of expanded activity, volume and profitability.

BankAmericard, which was actively launched in March and had started-up expenses that reduced earnings in 1968, reached the point of profitability and should be a contributor to earnings in 1969. Public acceptance of the service is evidenced by the fact that BankAmericard has more cardholders and participating merchants than any other bank card issuer in Virginia.

Final formation of First and Merchants Corporation is still to be completed. This one-bank holding company will provide a vehicle for other financial services over the years ahead.

As a result of First and Merchants' progress in 1968 and the outlook for 1969, a 20 percent stock dividend was paid in October. The quarterly dividend rate was maintained at 40¢ on the larger number of shares.

The Information Center at College Park planned unit development.

College Park Gets Award

Westinghouse Electric Corporation has named the new community of College Park as recipient of its highly selective Award of Excellence in construction.

Lawrence J. Goldrich, president of the Larrymore organization which is developer and builder of College Park, accepted the Award of Excellence in ceremonies formally opening the new residential development on Jan. 23. Westinghouse vice president B. W. Morrison presented the plaque to Goldrich.

Candidates for the award are reviewed by a board of experts at Westinghouse and selected on the basis of planning, construction methods and aesthetic aims. Morrison said the award has been presented to only four builders throughout the nation.

Three major building organizations, Powell Homes, Larrymore, and Clark-Whitehill, exhibited 15 homes at College Park last weekend when the development officially opened to the public.

College Park is a $120 million venture that will embrace a total of 2700 residential units, including one-family detached homes, condominium and rental townhouses and rental-type garden apartments, and a full complement of recreational and service facilities. These will include smaller satellite shopping areas, lakes for fishing and boating, micro-recreational areas, greenbelts, sites for schools and houses of worship, and a research and development center. It is replacing the former Coleman Dairy Farm, an 850-acre Tidewater landmark on the Virginia Beach-Chesapeake city boundary.

In addition to the usual manufacturer's and builders' displays the information center of the development contains cultural facilities for the community. Located in the building, a converted dairy barn, is the Village Gallery, an art gallery, and the Village Playhouse, a combination theater-auditorium. Residents of College Park will have these facilities available to them for the creative arts.

According to a plan drawn by McGaughy, Marshall and McMillan, internationally-known land planners, almost 40% of the land mass will be occupied by community facilities and open parklands. The remaining 60% of the land will be occupied by residential construction.

College Park is one of two planned unit developments scheduled for construction in the area. The other development, Green Run, was given construction approval with restriction in March 1968. Construction has not reached the notifiable stage. The project lies between Holland Road and Princess Anne Road off Lynnhaven Road.

Graves Signs With Tech

Clinton Graves, who played offensive and defensive half-back for the First Colonial Patriots, has signed a football grant-in-aid to Virginia Tech.

Tech assistant coach, Alf Satterfield signed Graves Tuesday afternoon at his home in Virginia Beach. Graves is scheduled to play as a flanker or defensive back for the Cobblers.

Another Patriot player, Les Whitehorn, signed a grant-in-aid earlier to the University of North Carolina. Both Graves and Whitehorn were backfield players on the Patriots' Eastern District championship team.

Graves plans to major in sociology at Tech and has stated that he thinks he will get a good education there.

ODC Adds 2 Classes

Two new courses, "A Workshop in Modern German Literature" and "Latin Literature in Translation," will be offered at Old Dominion College during the second semester.

The first meeting of the German literature class will be held Tues., Feb. 4, at 4 p.m. in Fine Arts Building, Room 101, to determine the night and time which will best suit the students taking the course for the rest of the semester. Persons interested may take the course for either audit or credit. Additional information may be obtained by calling the languages office, ext. 230 or the Division of Continuing Education, exts. 274 or 276.

The Latin literature course offered through the department of English, will be taught by Miss Elizabeth Dabney Mondays and Wednesdays at 10 a.m. and Thursdays at 9 a.m. in Science Building, Room 123. Among the Latin authors to be studied in English translation are: Cicero, Virgil, Horace, Lucretius, Juvenal, Martial and Catullus. Further details may be obtained by calling the English department ext. 294 or 297.

Seaman Appren, Richard L. Vetra, USN, son of Mrs. Flo J. Vetra of Peach Creek Lane, has been graduated from nine weeks of Navy basic training at the Naval Training Center at Great Lakes, Ill.

Good Year Forecast For Houses

In spite of a rise in interest rates and inflation, 1969 will probably be another good year for housing construction.

Stanley Waranch, vice president and secretary of the National Association of Home Builders, says that approximately 1.7 million housing units will be built this year. He says that although it is difficult to forecast the effect of the interest rates, it should not effect housing too greatly. The need for more housing is given as the main force in combating factors which could slow down homebuilding.

Waranch says that more single family units will probably be built in 1969 than were built in 1968. This trend is obviously demonstrated by the opening of several new developments in the Tidewater area such as College Park, the planned unit development that opened here last weekend.

In Virginia Beach the concentration of housing construction will probably be in the general Kempsville area and Lynnhaven Borough.

"Notice to the Public"
Notice is hereby given to the public that Princess Anne Utilities Corporation has obtained the State Corporation Commission revised rates, rules and regulations for sewerage service rendered in the vicinity of Princess Anne Plaza in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, which involve increases over the charges now being made. The proposed rates filed to become effective upon the order of the State Corporation Commission, and after commencement of delivery of effluent to Hampton Roads Sanitation District are as follows:

A Two-Part Rate
Treatment Charge:
The exact charge of each individual customer as billed by

Hampton Roads Sanitation District on their rate schedule which is based on metered water usage; and

Service Charge:
For transportation to Hampton Roads Sanitation District, maintenance, service and collection.

To each residential customer - $28.50/qtr.
To each apartment customer - $19.00/qtr.

To each commercial customer a factor times the residential base rate of $28.50. Said factor would be the customer's 1967 water usage divided by the average 1967 water usage of a residential customer.

An investigation of the proposed charges has been entered upon by the Commission, and a hearing on such new rates has been set for 10:00 A.M. on February 12, 1969, in the Courtroom of the Commission, Blanton Building, Richmond, Virginia, at which time and place members of the public generally may appear and present such relevant data as may be desired and may be heard.

THE FIVE MOST IMPORTANT REASONS TO SAVE AT FIRST & MERCHANTS NATIONAL BANK

1 NEW TEN YEAR DEFERRED INCOME CERTIFICATE

It's brand new. And it's available only at F & M . . . . another first for First & Merchants.

The F & M Deferred Income Certificate means you can put off paying taxes on the interest for a whole decade—and 5% interest is guaranteed.

Here's how it works:

Invest as little as $500, or as much as you like up to $100,000. Then don't touch the principal or interest for ten years. You will not have to pay any tax on the interest during that time, if you use the cash method of accounting.

If you are thinking of retiring within 10 years—this is the savings plan for you. Because the certificate matures after you retire when you are in a lower income tax bracket.

But you enjoy a lot more than tax savings with this certificate:

Full 5% interest guaranteed, compounded monthly.

At maturity your certificate gains a return of 64.7%. An investment of $10,000 will give you in 10 years $16,470.17.

Your certificate is insured up to $15,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

2 FIVE YEAR INVESTMENT CERTIFICATE

Regardless of how the economy or interest rates fluctuate, regardless of anything. This investment certificate keeps on giving you 5% annual interest.

The Straight Talk People at F & M guarantee it.

With this investment plan, your interest is compounded monthly. At the end of the first month, you're paid 5% on your original funds; at the second month, you're paid the same 5% on your original funds, as well as on the first month's interest. And so on.

When held to maturity, your investment gains a return of 28.3%. If you invested $10,000, you'd have $12,833.61. And with 90 day's written notice, you can withdraw all, or a part of your money. With no interest loss under existing regulations.

And your certificate is insured up to $15,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

You can purchase this certificate for as little as $500 or as much as $100,000. It all depends on how much you'd like to invest.

3 5% FLEXIBLE MATURITY SAVINGS CERTIFICATE

Want to get a 5% return? But don't want to tie your money up too long? This savings certificate is for you.

Maturities range from 90 days to 5 years. Automatic renewal at maturity if you wish. Withdrawal privilege on 90 days written notice, with no loss of interest under existing regulations.

Certificates available in amounts from $500 to $100,000.

Interest payable quarterly, semi-annually or annually. And for amounts over $3,000, we will even pay you monthly.

Interest can be credited to your F & M savings account or checking account. Or we will send you a check by mail.

Of course, your deposit is insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation up to $15,000.

4 PASSBOOK SAVINGS

Still the most popular way to save, by far. And for some pretty good reasons.

A regular savings account is flexible. You can add any amount at any time. And you can withdraw whenever you need to.

You can open a savings account with as little as $10. Or more if you want to.

And we make it easy for you to save by our Save-O-Matic plan.

Your deposit is insured up to $15,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Don't forget, we have a special purpose club account for you too, to help you save for a vacation, to pay taxes, or other special needs.

5 STRAIGHT TALK ON SAVINGS

Even though we list this as our 5th reason to save at First & Merchants, it is still pretty important.

Because if you are not sure which of the F & M savings plans is best for you, a little straight talk is all you need. Just ask us.

Don't be afraid to ask questions. (It is your money you know.) And you will get straight answers from us.

The F & M straight talk people. With the widest choice of savings plans offered by any financial institution in Virginia.
